A tentative program for Memorial Day was adopted at a meeting of the Memorial Day committee Friday night in the law offices of William L. Meals, secretary, with a full attendance of the members. The program will be submitted to President Truman, who will be the principal speaker here on the afternoon of May 30, for final approval.

As tentatively adopted, the parade will form at 2 o'clock at the Meade school, and march through Chambersburg street, Center Square and Baltimore street, to the National cemetery. LeRoy H. Winebrenner will be grand marshal and aides thus far selected will be Charles and William Jacobs and David Tawney. The program at the cemetery is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

The program at the cemetery calls for the strewing of flowers on the graves by the school children, in accordance with the usual custom, brief GAR and American Legion memorial ceremonies, and the introduction of the President by Governor James H. Duff.

Expect Many Dignitaries
The possibility was also seen that National Commander Paul Griffith of the American Legion, together with the department commander of Pennsylvania, might be among the high-ranking officials, including several congressmen and cabinet officials, here for the ceremonies.

A committee will wait upon Governor Duff Monday in an effort to have the state build a temporary stand in front of the regular rostrum in the cemetery, and to ask for a detachment of the new National Guard and Governor's troop and the Valley Forge band.

Mr. Meals read a telegram from John A. Hays, secretary to U. S. Senator Francis Myers, Philadelphia. (Please Turn to Page 7)

A good part of the civilized world will observe Sunday, May 11, as Mother's Day. The "modern" observance of Mother's Day stems from an ancient Greek custom of mother-worship, but it was left to a Philadelphia spinster, Miss Anna Jarvis, to bring this day into general recognition and observance, first in this country, and later throughout the world. At one time a count showed that Miss Jarvis had planted it firmly in 45 countries.

Formal mother-worship, with ceremonies to "the great mother of the gods," Cybele or Rhea, was anciently observed on the Ides of March throughout Asia Minor. With the coming of Christianity, this developed into worship of "Mother Church," the celebration occurring on mid-Lent Sunday, when children returned home with gifts for their parents, especially their mothers.

Since that time the idea of honoring the mothers of the nation has grown each year, until today fathers, sons and daughters and others observe Mother's Day in every city, and in every hamlet and village from Maine to Florida and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and in many foreign lands.

Miss Jarvis, filled with kindness and sentiment for her own mother, devoted most of her life to enshrining motherhood in the hearts of the nation, and the civilized world. She single-handedly made Mother's Day an international institution. Then, at 90, with her eyesight completely gone, together with the health and money she spent freely to establish Mother's Day. FAIRFIELD HIGH TO CLOSE AT END OF SCHOOL YEAR

Fairfield high school will close at the end of this year, "temporarily," for reasons beyond the control of the school board.

That was the decision reached Friday evening by the Fairfield school board after a lengthy session held at the school.

The board discussed thoroughly every possibility of keeping the school open and then, finding that there was no possible way of maintaining a high school at Fairfield, voted to close the school at the end of this year.

Principal reason for closing the school was the lack of students for the institution and the greatly increased taxation that would be necessary to keep it in operation in future years and to provide better education for the students attending it.

Only 26 Town Students
With the town itself having only 26 students for the school, the board found that most of the students were from districts surrounding the community. While no official word has been received it was believed by the board that some of the townships now sending students to the Fairfield school will in the future send their youngsters to other high schools in the county.

With that situation and with the reimbursement from the state scheduled to be cut drastically in coming years, starting with the coming year, the board decided that it was impossible to keep the school open. While sentiment would prompt them to continue the school as (Please Turn to Page 4)

"That's All Right, Daddy."

Chicago, May 10 (AP) — Six year old Dale Richey learned for the first time yesterday that he had lost both of his legs as the result of a gasoline explosion six weeks ago.

Dale's father, Howard Richey, came to his son's hospital room and talked about soldiers who had lost their legs in the war and how they had learned to walk again. Then Richey, a 37-year old time-study engineer, told his son that both his legs had been amputated just below the knees.

"You're going to be all right, son," Richey told him. "But your legs are going to be shorter than they were before. They were so badly burned that the doctors had to take off the feet. You will have to learn to walk all over again."

"How will I be able to do that?"

GROWERS STILL HOPEFUL MUCH FRUIT ESCAPED

Temperatures dipped for the third successive night below the freezing mark Friday night and this morning, but fruit growers today were still hopeful that some of the fruit, at least, has escaped the clutch of the frost.

Frank Hewitson of the Arendtsville laboratory reported that a spot check Friday revealed much damage in the low spots and little damage to higher orchards. While far from complete, the spot check revealed most of the presently apparent damage among the peach crop.

Smudge pots burned in a number of orchards through the night as they have been since Wednesday night. Mrs. Robert C. Lott, Aspers R. D., reported this morning that the smudge pots used in their orchard appeared to raise the temperatures in the orchard by at least several degrees. Her husband, past president of the county Fruit Growers Association, was in bed with the gripe caused by attempting to spray despite high winds and the strain of 24-hour-a-day work in keeping smudge pots burning.

29 Degrees Last Night

Frederic E. Griest, Flora Dale, president of the state horticultural association, was another local fruit grower who was said to be using smudge pots in an effort to prevent too great frost damage to his crop. The temperature during the night dropped to 29 at Arendtsville, slightly higher than the 27 of Thursday night and slightly lower than the 30 of Wednesday night. Reports disclosed temperatures down to 26 in other sections of the county.

From the reports much of the fruit is apparently still undamaged by the cold nights, although most growers said they would be unable to tell for several days just how extensive the damage has been.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

A marriage license was issued at the court house today to Bernard Eugene Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Weaver, New Oxford, and Miss Julia Rose Gebhart, daughter of Mrs. Louise Gebhart, McSherrystown.

The boy asked as he kept turning the pages of a comic book. "We will get some wooden legs for you. All the soldiers in the war who had their legs cut off had to learn how to walk all over again."

Dale was silent for a minute. "I'd rather sit," he said.

The father changed the subject. Only last Tuesday he had told his wife for the first time of the amputation. He had withheld the news until after she had given birth to a baby boy. Sprints had been affixed to the boy's upper legs so Mrs. Richey would not know they had been amputated.

Before leaving Dale's room, Richey reached into a paper bag and handed him some new toys. Dale looked up from his comic book and smiled. "That's all right, Daddy," the youngster said.

The Biglerville High school's newspaper received honorable mention in Class C.

Gettysburg won first prize in the Penn State contest, also held last Saturday, for the best sports page out of 200 publications entered from all parts of Pennsylvania. A certificate for "outstanding achievement" accompanied the award.

The program closed with the singing of one verse of "Faith of Our Fathers" substituting "Mothers" for "Fathers." After the broadcast the sponsor distributed a sample product.

Friday in which David Mackley, 12, son of Mrs. Roy Mackley, 16 Fifth street, was struck by a hit and run driver and injured. Robert Staley Escapes Electric Chair; Jurors Ask Mercy; Out 152 Min.

Robert L. Staley, 23, Mechanicsburg, was found guilty of murder in the first degree with a recommendation of a sentence of life imprisonment.

A few minutes later Judge W. C. Sheely called Staley before him for sentence.

Staley was placed in the custody of Sheriff John E. Millhimes who is to take him to the Eastern penitentiary "for imprisonment for the rest of your natural life."

The verdict was read at 2:32 o'clock this afternoon after Staley had been returned to the court room from the county jail.

Biting his lips as the jury appeared, Staley broke into a smile as the verdict, relieving him of the death penalty asked by the Commonwealth, was read.

His elder sister, Mrs. Mary Scott, the only defense witness, was in the court room to hear the verdict. When it was read she sobbed quietly.

SISTER GIVES ONLY DEFENSE TESTIMONY IN STALEY TRIAL

On Monday night another jury convicted Ray H. Simmons of first degree murder and gave him the death penalty. Staley and Simmons were charged together in the hammer-slaying of Herbert L. Humpert the night of March 24. Defense Attorney Eugene V. Bullett began his talk to the jury at 9:37 o'clock. After pointing out that the district attorney's office and state police had been "most cooperative" in assisting the defense and in attempting to find every circumstance in the case and pointing out that he had been appointed to defend Staley, Bullett went on to state that there were some extenuating circumstances that should be considered by the jury in reaching its decision.

"While we feel most children do not get enough corporal punishment, the punishment given by a father when intoxicated does not help the moral background of the youth. We have the evidence in this case that this youth was frequently punished in that manner. This young man was taught to steal by his father when just a boy."

"Ten years ago this boy's brother robbed Herbert Humpert. He was 13 when this robbery was committed. It was discussed in the home and it made such an impression that when Simmons stated that he wanted some money Staley's mind went back to this occurrence. I want to say that the state police did a magnificent job in this case. The prosecution gave you the facts in a clear cut manner. They have been fair. In the statement made on April 1 by Staley, Detective Parsons did which I believe to be a fine thing." Attorney Bullett then read direct from the statement "Detective Parsons—you were thinking about giving yourself up in this case?" Staley—"Yes, I thought of calling Simmons to get the car to tell Mr. Yake."

Admits Simmons' Statement
That move deprived the Commonwealth of any opportunity to cross-examine Staley about his version of the Humpert death as read into the record earlier Friday from a statement to police taken immediately after his arrest.

The defense testimony came to an end less than a half hour after the Commonwealth had completed its side of the story. At 3:07 o'clock the Commonwealth rested and Attorney Bullett called Mrs. Annabelle Little, court reporter, to the stand.

Because no arrangements had been made previously to replace her as court reporter, the court asked a side-bar conference. At its end the court announced that the state had admitted into evidence the fact that Ray H. Simmons, in a statement to police, said that Staley had never hit Humpert. The Commonwealth admitted the statement had been made without admitting its truth of falsity, the court added. The defense had been attempting to call Mrs. Little to the stand in order to read that portion of Simmons' statement into the record.

Sister Testifies
Attorney Bullett then called Mrs. Scott. She testified that her father was Mark E. Staley, formerly of Gettysburg and Mechanicsburg, and her mother was Mrs. Blanche Staley, of Colorado.

There were seven children, she said, of which she is the eldest. When Robert was born the family lived near Mont Alto sanitarium, she testified.

The family, she added was on relief at that time and her father worked at various jobs but spent all his money for drink. He drank a great deal, she testified, and stole fuel for the home from her grandfather Staley. When Robert and Edward, two of her brothers, were older they were sent to get the fuel. Later, the family moved to Biglerville, where she was about 13 and Robert about 9, and their life continued much as before. The father worked and spent all the money for drink, she said, and tore down part of a barn for fuel, or took fuel from her maternal grandfather's house. Robert and Edward on one occasion had to go to get fuel from the grandfather.

Mistreated By Father
The father always mistreated the family, she said, and "sometimes beat the boys so that the blood ran down their backs." Later they moved to Beecherstown where they were "put on the street with no place to go." Later they moved to Gettysburg. While the father continued to work, she said, he spent all of his money for drink and the mother worked in the Trostle shirt factory here to support the family. Mrs. Scott said she, then about 14, took care of the other children while her mother worked.

Later they moved along the Harrisburg road and lived there from 1937 to 1945. Mrs. Scott said she married Joseph Scott, Jr., in 1941 and left home. Robert, she said, went to the eighth grade in school and then did odd jobs, and worked on a fruit farm. Her father, she said, (Please Turn to Page Two)

ASK MID-SEASON RE-STOCKING OF TROUT STREAMS

The Adams County Sportsmen's association, a federation of the various fish and game groups in various sections of the county, is asking the state for mid-season stocking of the trout streams this year, members of the Adams County Fish and Game association were told at their May meeting Friday evening at the court house.

With the request for replenishing the supply of game fish in the county streams goes a request that all of those streams be closed to fishing for a five-day period after the release of the additional fish.

The county federation also is asking that Possum creek be added to the list of trout streams for stocking in this county.

Game Official Speaks

The report on the county federation's action was made by Elmer Dillman who, with Donald Hammers, represents the Adams County Fish and Game association at the federation meetings.

Guest speaker was Lester E. Shaeffer, general operations assistant from the Huntingdon office of the Pennsylvania State Game commission. He discussed the need for an open season on deer throughout the state from the point of view of the Game commission.

Littlestown EAGLES ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Littlestown Aerie No. 2226, Fraternal Order of Eagles, held election of officers for the year 1947-48, at the regular meeting Thursday evening. Kenneth Sparver was elected from a field of three to serve as worthy president.

Other officers named were: Worthy vice president, Richard Long; worthy chaplain, Carroll Oaster; treasurer, Edward G. Loeffel; worthy conductor, Monroe J. Stavel; inside guard, Samuel Smeltzer; outside guard, Lloyd F. Weaver; and trustee for three years, Joseph Selby. Since the secretaries of all subordinate aeries are appointed by the chief auditor for a period of three years, it was unnecessary to elect a secretary. John W. Dutera is the present secretary.

On Monday night the aerie will be host to its members at a fried chicken supper to be served at the home from 5:30 p. m. until 10:30 p. m.

An initiation of a class of candidates will be held in St. Aloysius hall on Sunday, May 25, at 2 p. m. This will be in observance of the eleventh anniversary of the founding of the Littlestown aerie. The John W. Heller degree team of York, state champions, will put on the ritualistic work for this initiation. Prominent Eagle speakers will take part in the program.

"That's All Right, Daddy."

Chicago, May 10 (AP) — Six year old Dale Richey learned for the first time yesterday that he had lost both of his legs as the result of a gasoline explosion six weeks ago.

Dale's father, Howard Richey, came to his son's hospital room and talked about soldiers who had lost their legs in the war and how they had learned to walk again. Then Richey, a 37-year old time-study engineer, told his son that both his legs had been amputated just below the knees.

"You're going to be all right, son," Richey told him. "But your legs are going to be shorter than they were before. They were so badly burned that the doctors had to take off the feet. You will have to learn to walk all over again."

"How will I be able to do that?"

the boy asked as he kept turning the pages of a comic book.

"We will get some wooden legs for you. All the soldiers in the war who had their legs cut off had to learn how to walk all over again."

Dale was silent for a minute.

"I'd rather sit," he said.

The father changed the subject. Only last Tuesday he had told his wife for the first time of the amputation. He had withheld the news until after she had given birth to a baby boy. Splints had been affixed to the boy's upper legs so Mrs. Richey would not know they had been amputated.

Before leaving Dale's room, Richey reached into a paper bag and handed him some new toys. Dale looked up from his comic book and smiled.

Robert Staley Escapes Electric Chair; Jurors Ask Mercy; Out 152 Min.

Robert L. Staley, 23, Mechanicsburg, was found guilty of murder in the first degree with a recommendation of a sentence of life imprisonment.

A few minutes later Judge W. C. Sheely called Staley before him for sentence.

Staley was placed in the custody of Sheriff John E. Millhimes who is to take him to the Eastern penitentiary "for imprisonment for the rest of your natural life."

The verdict was read at 2:32 o'clock this afternoon after Staley had been returned to the court room from the county jail.

Biting his lips as the jury appeared, Staley broke into a smile as the verdict, relieving him of the death penalty asked by the Commonwealth, was read.

His elder sister, Mrs. Mary Scott, the only defense witness, was in the court room to hear the verdict. When it was read she sobbed quietly.

SISTER GIVES ONLY DEFENSE TESTIMONY IN STALEY TRIAL

Closing his case abruptly after the testimony of a single witness attorney Eugene V. Bulleit, counsel for Robert L. Staley who is charged with the murder of Herbert L. Humpert, completed defense testimony Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The sole defense witness was Mrs. Mary Scott, Fairfield R. D., eldest sister of the defendant. Staley himself never took the stand.

When Mrs. Scott finished her testimony, Mr. Bulleit turned her over to District Attorney J. Francis Yake, Jr., for Cross-examination but the Commonwealth rose to no questions and Mr. Bulleit rose to say: "The defense rests."

Admit Simmons' Statement

That move deprived the Commonwealth of any opportunity to cross-examine Staley about his version of the Humpert death as read into the record earlier Friday from a statement to police taken immediately after his arrest.

The defense testimony came to an end less than a half hour after the Commonwealth had completed its side of the story. At 3:07 o'clock the Commonwealth rested and Attorney Bulleit called Mrs. Annabelle Little, court reporter, to the stand.

Because no arrangements had been made previously to replace her as court reporter, the court asked a side-bar conference. At its end the court announced that the state had admitted into evidence the fact that Ray H. Simmons, in a statement to police, said that Staley had never hit Humpert. The Commonwealth admitted the statement had been made without admitting its truth of falsity, the court added. The defense had been attempting to call Mrs. Little to the stand in order to read that portion of Simmons' statement into the record.

Sister Testifies

Attorney Bulleit then called Mrs. Scott. She testified that her father was Mark E. Staley, formerly of Gettysburg and Mechanicsburg, and her mother was Mrs. Blanche Staley, of Colorado.

There were seven children, she said, of which she is the eldest. When Robert was born the family lived near Mont Alto sanitarium, she testified.

The family, she added was on relief at that time and her father worked at various jobs but spent all his money for drink. He drank a great deal, she testified, and stole fuel for the home from her grandfather Staley. When Robert and Edward, two of her brothers, were older they were sent to get the fuel. Later, the family moved to Biglerville, when she was about 13 and Robert about 9, and their life continued much as before. The father worked and spent all the money for drink, she said, and tore down part of a barn for fuel, or took fuel from her maternal grandfather's house. Robert and Edward on one occasion had to go to get fuel from the grandfather.

Mistreated By Father

The father always mistreated the family, she said, and "sometimes beat the boys so that the blood ran down their backs." Later they moved to Beechertown where they were "put on the street with no place to go." Later they moved to Gettysburg. While the father continued to work, she said, he spent all of his money for drink and the mother worked in the Trostle shirt factory here to support the family. Mrs. Scott said she, then about 14, took care of the other children while her mother worked.

Later they moved along the Harrisburg road and lived there from 1937 to 1945. Mrs. Scott said she married Joseph Scott, Jr., in 1941 and left home. Robert, she said, went to the eighth grade in school and then did odd jobs, and worked on a fruit farm. Her father, she said, (Please Turn to Page Two)

On Monday night another jury convicted Ray H. Simmons of first degree murder and gave him the death penalty. Staley and Simmons were charged together in the hammer-slaying of Herbert L. Humpert the night of March 24.

Defense Attorney Eugene V. Bulleit began his talk to the jury at 9:37 o'clock. After pointing out that the district attorney's office and state police had been "most cooperative" in assisting the defense and in attempting to find every circumstance in the case and pointing out that he had been appointed to defend Staley, Bulleit went on to state that there were some extenuating circumstances that should be considered by the jury in reaching its decision.

"While we feel most children do not get enough corporal punishment, the punishment given by a father when intoxicated does not help the moral background of the youth. We have the evidence in this case that this youth was frequently punished in that manner. This young man was taught to steal by his father when just a boy."

"Ten years ago this boy's brother robbed Herbert Humpert. He was 13 when this robbery was committed. It was discussed in the home and it made such an impression that when Simmons stated that he wanted some money Staley's mind went back to this occurrence. I want to say that the state police did a magnificent job in this case. The prosecution gave you the facts in a clear cut manner. They have been fair. In the statement made on April 1 by Staley, Detective Parsons did which I believe to be a fine thing." Attorney Bulleit then read direct from the statement "Detective Parsons—you were thinking about giving yourself up in this case? Staley—Yes, I thought of calling Simmons to get the car to tell Mr. Yake."

Asks for Mercy
"Parsons undoubtedly felt this young man had a right to present such circumstances in this case and reminded him of it."

Attorney Bulleit pointed out "that it is not denied in this case that the burglary was committed and that the murder was committed at the time of the robbery. It is your duty, (the jury's) to determine all the facts and circumstances about the case, to determine whether any mitigating circumstances exist. We have the testimony of Staley's statement that he on a number of occasions during the day attempted to call off the planned robbery. We have his statements that he did not want Humpert injured. You must decide whether this is murder in the first degree. You must decide whether Staley had a premeditated, cold, calculated plan to commit a felony and that as a result of this plan Humpert was killed or whether his attempts not to commit the crime, his desire to abandon this plan, took from it the coldness, calculation and premeditation. The defense asks that you temper justice with mercy." He finished his statement at 9:57 o'clock.

Asks Sympathy Erased

Attorney Daniel E. Teeter, assistant district attorney, told the jury that "I am going to point out the cold, startling facts for the commonwealth. You have heard all of the evidence for commonwealth against Robert D. Staley for the murder of Herbert L. Humpert. This case is an important one for the commonwealth for it is against the peace and dignity of our laws and our homes. The defendant refers to his background. I submit that there are many people in the commonwealth with similar backgrounds. Sympathy comes to our minds but we must put that sympathy out of our mind."

"This case must be based on cold hard facts. He says he was taught to steal but he does not say he was taught to kill. I want to recall the positive testimony of Dr. Johnson; that here were 17 lacerations in the scalp of Humpert, some two and one-half inches long, four of which cut clear to the skull. He told of other bruises and cuts, how both eyes were blackened, the nose broken, the lips cut badly; two-thirds of an upper arm bruised badly. Dr. Johnson eliminated any (Please turn to Page 2)

WALKER COOPER HAS 2 HOMERS IN GIANT WIN

By JOE REICHLER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A $175,000 last year, big Walker Cooper is proving to be a quarter of a million dollar beauty this season.

The husky New York Giants' catcher, who couldn't get out of his own way last season following his near-record purchase from the St. Louis Cardinals, has been one of the leading factors in the club's surprise showing this year.

Big Cooper, Johnny Mize and Willard Marshall have been banging the ball at a terrific clip. Cooper currently is hitting at .303 and ranks fourth in the league with 33 runs batted in. Mize had batted in 42 and Marshall 39.

Bums Drop To Second
Cooper slammed two home runs yesterday as the Giants slugged out a 13-10 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates at the Polo grounds. The win, coupled with Cincinnati's 9-6 victory over Brooklyn at Ebbets field last night, gave the Giant undisputed possession of first place in the National league. The Dodgers dropped to second place, a half game behind.

In the other National league games, the Braves, behind the one-hit pitching of Charlie (Red) Barrett, shut out the Chicago Cubs in a night game in Boston 1-0 and the St. Louis Cardinals divided a double-header with the Phillies in Philadelphia. The Redbirds won the opener 4-2 but dropped the second 2-1 in 15 innings.

The New York Yankees blew a fine opportunity to narrow Detroit's American League leading margin of one and a half games when the Chicago White Sox overcame an 8-2 Yankee lead and won 9-8 in 10 innings.

A's Trounce Tigers
The Tigers were soundly trounced by the Philadelphia Athletics in Detroit 11-3 and the Boston Red Sox defeated the Indians in a battle of home runs in Cleveland, 7-5. The Browns nipped the Washington Senators 1-0 in a night game in St. Louis.

With most of the crowd of 13,069 walking toward the exits, the Giants, apparently hopelessly beaten, trailing 8-1 in the last of the eighth, suddenly shelved Starter Kirby Higbe, Edson Bahr, Hank Behrman, and Art Herring for eight hits and two walks, good for eight runs to take a 9-8 advantage. Cooper's first home run with one on gave the Giants the one-run margin.

Pittsburgh fought back with two in the top of the ninth to go ahead 10-9, but the Giants came storming back with four in their half. Cooper's second circuit clout with two aboard giving him five runs batted in for the day.

Hapless Pioneers Down To 5th Place

(By The Associated Press)
Four teams climbed up a rung in the Middle Atlantic league standings last night, all at the expense of the hapless Vandergrift Pioneers who dropped a crucial double-header to the Johnstown Johnnies, 10-7 and 11-5, and plummeted from second to fifth place.

The double victory elevated the Johnnies to fourth place, only a half game behind Erie and Niagara Falls and a game and a half below the league-leading Oil City Refiners.

The first game was a slugging match in which each team got 11 hits with Johnstown making better use of its bingles. Gil Stathos of the Johnnies got a homer. In the second game, Johnstown was on the small end of a 5-0 count until the fourth frame when it unleashed a seven-run attack.

Erie made a bid for first place by nailing Oil City in the first game of their series, 4-3, right-hander Egon Feuker pitching a fine six-hit game.

The Niagara Falls Frontiers won their fourth in a row by downing the Youngstown Colts, 5-3. The irresponsible Uniontown Coal Barons won their seventh game of the season and their second consecutive by downing the Butler Yanks, 7-2. Stan Pain fanned 10 Butler batters and allowed only five hits.

Young Zivic Loses To Sammy Seareet

Pittsburgh, June 10 (P)—Sammy Seareet of Cecil, Pa., got off to a slow start but came back strong in the final rounds to gain a unanimous decision over Charley (Young) Zivic of Pittsburgh in their 10-round main bout in Zivic arena last night. Seareet weighed 147, Zivic, 152.

In other fights, Jumping Joe Barone, 125, Pittsburgh, decided Dick Cook, 132, Cincinnati, (8); Paddy Hill, 140, Monaca, scored a TKO over Joey Faiello, 132, Hays, Pa., (3).

JOINS MOBILE CLUB

Villanova, Pa., June 10 (P)—Frank O'Neill, Villanova college catcher for two seasons, said today he has signed a contract with the Mobile (Ala.) club of the southern association and that he would join the southern association next week. O'Neill is regarded as Villanova's best catcher since Mike Garbark graduated in 1938 and joined the New York Yankees. O'Neill hit .352 last season.

Babe Wins Again In British Play

Gullane, Scotland, June 10 (P)—Mrs. Babe Dirlikson Zaharias of Denver and Miss Ruth Woodward of Fall River, Mass., fought their way into the fourth round of the British Women's Amateur Golf championship today as their fellow American—Miss Helen Sigel of Philadelphia—bowed out in a third round match.

Playing true to form, the highly favored Babe had little difficulty in polishing off Mrs. Val Reddan, former Irish champion, by a score of six and four.

Miss Woodward, however, ran into tough going, and barely eked out a one-up victory over Miss Catherine Park of Scotland.

Miss Sigel, playing with a taped wrist—the result of an injury she suffered before the tournament opened when she struck a buried stone with her club during a practice swing—was the victim of a three and two defeat by Miss M. G. Smyth, Irish internationalist.

collected Bob's wages, and also took the money made by herself and Edward at various jobs. Her father continued drinking, she said, and had trouble with the boys. When he was sober "he would not punish the boys for anything they did but when he was drinking he would pick on the children." When he drank, "he would fuss with mother and she would pay no attention to him, then he would pick on the children and mother would get into the fight. This was continuous as far back as I can remember."

State Completes Case

The prosecution continued its case on Friday after the noon recess by calling Lloyd W. Kuhn, Bendersville banker and co-executor of the Humpert estate. Mr. Kuhn told of meeting Staley, state police, the district attorney and Mrs. Little at the Humpert farm on the afternoon of April 1.

He testified that the statements read by Mrs. Little quoting Staley while at the Humpert home were correct.

Robert Swope, South street, who was employed March 24 at an orchard near Bendersville, told the court that Staley had come to the orchard that afternoon and asked if he, Swope, knew where Herbert Humpert lived. He said that he did not, but added that he asked Ryland H. Wright, Flora Dale, who was working with him.

Wright, brought to the stand, told of telling Staley where Humpert lived.

Staley Was Drinking

Betty Clouse, Gardner's R. D., told of seeing the Simmons' car on the road leading past the Humpert home during the afternoon of March 24. Mrs. Myrtle E. Herring, Baltimore street, sister of Staley, was called but not asked to testify.

Mrs. Ernest E. Lupp, Baltimore street, testified she saw Staley about 7 p. m. on the evening of March 24. Staley came to her house to see his sister, Mrs. Herring, Mrs. Lupp said. She added that she saw Staley, Mrs. Herring and Ray H. Simmons in the kitchen of her home and that they were drinking. She went out, Mrs. Lupp added, and returned about 10 o'clock. The three were still drinking, she said, and told her they were on their second fifth. About three-quarters of an hour after she returned, Mrs. Herring testified, Simmons and Staley left.

The two men came back again about 1:30 o'clock on the morning of March 25 and Staley came into the house. He went to the kitchen and turned on the water. Staley made a fire for her in the furnace before he left and had said something about washing his hands, but had not washed them at that time, she recalled. She said she thought he had decided to wash them to get that furnace dirt off, but when she asked him if he wanted soap he turned the water off and walked into another room. In the next room, she said: "Bob had a wallet with some money in it. He opened it and looked in and sort of counted through it. I don't know how much he had in it. I said 'I thought you were broke.' He made some kind of an answer and then the horn blew of a car outside and I figured Ray was getting impatient. Bob said 'I'm gonna leave. Tell Sis I'll call her tomorrow.'"

Procession of Witnesses

Questioned as to how she knew Staley was "broke," Mrs. Lupp said she had brought the subject up when the pair was at her home earlier that night. She had told them she was flat broke and jokingly added that she'd probably have to rob a bank. "Bob," she said, "said to Ray: 'Maybe we ought to take her along,' or something like that."

William C. Imhoff, New Cumberland gas station operator, testified that Simmons and Staley came to his service station "between midnight and 3 o'clock the morning of March 25," and washed their car there.

John Jones, West High street, was called to testify that Staley, Staley's sister and Simmons had borrowed $3 from him on the night of March 24, coming to his house to borrow the money.

Deputy Sheriff Blaine E. Bixler then was called to the stand to identify an envelope containing $1,310 which he said had been given him by Corporal Lodwick D. Jenkins on April 4, and that he had custody of the money since that time. Jenkins testified he had been given the money by Detective R. O. Parsons and turned it over to Bixler. Parsons said he got the money April 4 from Mechanicus Chief of Police Harry W. Koser and had turned the money over to Jenkins.

Money Traced

Koser said that the money was given him on April 2 by Mary Baker, of Mechanicsburg, and that he in turn gave the money to Parsons.

Mary Baker, brought to the stand, kept her eyes averted from Staley throughout her testimony and spoke in such a low tone that the judge had to repeat all of her statements to the jury.

Miss Baker said that on March 25, at the Eagles in Harrisburg, she had been given a sum of money by Staley to keep for him. She added that she did not know how much money it was altogether. Then she said Staley later took two $50 bills, $40 at another time and on another occasion "something over $100." Staley then took all of the money back and on the morning of his arrest returned $1,310 to her to keep for him. When she learned April 2, that he had been arrested possibility of natural causes of death and he set the time of death during the period when Simmons and Staley were there. The commonwealth's theory is that this crime was committed in the commission of a felony."

Staley Case

"Blood on Hands?"

"We have burglary and robbery. In this case I am thinking particularly in the robbery of the key from the pocket of Humpert. Mrs. Lupp is a creditable witness because she is a friend of the defendant's sister. In Staley's presence Mrs. Lupp testified, she said jokingly, 'What do they do to someone robbing a bank?' Simmons said, 'We should take her with us.' This shows their determination to carry out the plan. Staley made no objection. She said when they returned at 1:30 a. m. Staley proceeded to the kitchen as if to wash his hands but when Mrs. Lupp came out to the kitchen he did not wash his hands. Would you be justified in believing he might have had blood on his hands?"

"Mr. Imhoff said that they washed the car about 3 o'clock the next morning. Why did they wash the car? Was there something on that car? The defense argues that Staley told the truth. We must admit it true as far as it goes. We have the witness Swope who said that Staley on the afternoon before the crime occurred asked where Humpert lived and that Staley was driving the car. In his statement Staley said he asked for several other persons before asking for Humpert so as to throw off suspicion.

Told of Money

"He cleverly coldly asked for someone else first. Does this indicate that he was trying to avoid robbing Humpert? Another witness says that the car went first past the Humpert house with the top down and then with the top up. This means they were casing the place. This shows the detailed reflection and cool planning with which the parties went about their work that day.

"Who was it that told Simmons about Humpert? Who told Simmons that there was about $5,000 to be gotten at the Humpert home? This indicates that he was dangling the money before Simmons to get him to go.

"Do you think that these young men left Humpert out there as they say they did? Can you conceive that they left him on the ground? I think you might devote some thought as to how Humpert got in the feed entry. Don't you think they knew he was just as they intended, knocked cold, and they took him and laid him beneath the hay hole?" Teeter said.

"If Humpert had been lucid, had been able to sit up, a couple of yells and the McKinnys would have been awakened. I think you can assume that they carried him into the feed entry, and then burglarized the house," said Teeter.

Asks First Degree

The assistant prosecutor argued that Staley's action indicated little or no mercy toward Humpert, and asserted his "actions speak louder than words," he said "it wasn't mercy. Staley still wanted that money," and he further said that "Staley was even holding out on his buddy. That's the kind of man you are dealing with."

In closing, he said: "We submit

Music Festival Is Held Here Friday: Participants and spectators, estimated to number more than 1,500, gathered on the Gettysburg high school athletic field Friday afternoon for the third annual Adams county high school music festival which was conducted under the sponsorship of the music departments of the county schools.

Individual and group selections were presented by the nine choruses of 500 voices and seven bands of more than 300 members.

Professor Ira Y. Baker, assistant county superintendent, was chairman of the general committee.

Hindenburg, German Airship, Burns While Landing; 30 Die: Lakehurst, N. J., May 7 (AP) — The flaming destruction of the once-seemingly impregnable dirigible Hindenburg brought swift action today by the American and German governments to determine the cause of the disaster. Thirty persons were known dead or missing.

Of the 97 passengers and members of the crew aboard when the greatest of all airships exploded, burst into flames and crashed to earth last night — just as it was lowering to the mooring mast, and only 200 feet above the ground — 69 persons survived. One of those killed was a spectator, burned to death in the falling, fiery debris.

Audience of 450 Hears H. S. Musical: Approximately 450 persons attended the musical presented by the Gettysburg high school musical organizations in the new high school gymnasium Wednesday evening.

Miss Dorothy Brindle, music director, and Edwin Longanecker, band instructor, directed the program.

Weaver—Myers: Miss Lillian Mary Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emory R. Myers, West High street, and George Kedge Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Weaver, McSherrytown, were united in marriage Saturday in the rectory of St. Mary's Catholic church, McSherrytown.

Doris Weaver and Sarto Young were the attendants.

Shultz—Jeffcoat: Miss Catherine Jeffcoat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Jeffcoat, of Gettysburg, and Albert Shultz, son of Mrs. Elsie Shultz, of McKnightstown, were married on March 30 in Westminster, Maryland, by the Rev. J. Hess Belt.

The couple is residing on the Edward Cullison farm at Cashtown.

THE INNER LIGHTS

The lights in this world are not all on the outside. There are lights inside of people—in the mind and heart—that often guide through dark and confusing places where an outward light could not lead.

We keep these lights glowing by our courage, faith, and spiritual outlook. When these lights go out, or are dimmed, we stumble and feel with our physical fingers, which all too often touch the wrong guideposts.

The winds of adversity may blow at these inner lights, and at times they may burn low, but an unfaltering purpose will not allow them to go out. Like love, these inner lights were created to guide us throughout life.

There are inner lights that guide the artist, the writer, and the scientist. They light up the souls of such beings, whose objective it is to create beauty, understanding between people, and to further the progress, health, and hope of the world. It is these lights that put feeling into art, sincerity into writing, and unselfish service into the efforts of the scientist.

It was these inner lights that guided Washington at Valley Forge, Lincoln throughout the dark days of Civil War, and which kept the spark of Freedom forever bright in the heart of every soldier, fighting to assure a better world. May God grant that the efforts of all of these may not have been in vain.

These inner lights continue to burn and keep the way ahead well lighted in many a life, clouded by sorrow, disappointment, and loss. They burn brightly, unknown to those about such a one—but there are always evidences that they form a permanent equipment. Attitude of mind and outward patience, as well as peace of mind, give ample proof.

The inner lights within one's heart, are like the harbor lights along the shore that guide ships safely into port. Thus our lives are guided, inspired, and kept steadfastly forward.

APPLYING FOR WORK

"I'm looking for a job," said he, "That hasn't any drudgery. I'd like to work the whole day through.

At something that is fun to do. Big money I am out to earn. Without the time it takes to learn. I do not want to wake too soon Or hurry through my lunch at noon. I want to live a life of ease And go and come just as I please. In short, I'd like to come across A pleasant job, without a boss Who'll think at work I ought to stay When I am in the mood to play."

The bureau fellow scratched his head.

"I know just what you want," he said.

"But let me put it to you flat: There isn't any job like that."

SHORTAGE OF SCHOOLBOOKS IS EXPECTED

By JAMES MARLOW
New York, May 10 (AP)—There'll be some shortage in schoolbooks next year but—Grammar School Johnny and High School Charley ought to be able to make out pretty well just the same. This is the guess of the American Textbook Institute which tells this story.

During the war grammar and high schools bought as few new textbooks as possible. Now there's a pent-up demand for them.

So far, the makers of textbooks haven't been able to meet the demand and probably won't for another year or so.

Last fall, at the start of the present school year, the institute figures grammar and high schools were short about 9,000,000 books. Next fall, at the start of the new school year, they'll be short of about 4,500,000 textbooks, or only half as many this year.

Will Have Enough.

Even so, the schools have on hand now millions of old textbooks which can be used for their students. So, while the full demand won't be met, the students are expected to have enough books to go around.

The shortages, where they occur, probably will be spotty. Which means: The shortages won't be centered in any one place.

The bookmakers now are turning out approximately 100,000,000 textbooks a year. To meet the demand, they'll have to be turning out 105,000,000.

For one thing, paper still is short. And there are mechanical bottlenecks. For example: A lot of other books, besides textbooks, have to be printed on the presses which turn out the textbooks.

So the textbook-maker has to schedule his press time. In other words: Take his turn.

If a textbook-maker misses his scheduled time for any reason, he loses it and has to work out another schedule by taking his turn.

Follows Trend

The closing of the school follows the general trend throughout the country of closing smaller schools, board members pointed out, with national educational authorities holding that only through larger schools will youngsters be able to obtain the education they need in modern times. Larger schools, it was pointed out, have the ability to provide such specialized education as agriculture, home economics, mechanics, and the like.

In addition, the closing of the school will mean a financial saving to the citizens of the community.

While abandoning plans to keep the high school in operation the board decided to study plans for bettering the elementary education provided by the community.

First To Decide

The Fairfield school was the first high school in the county to decide to close although other smaller high schools in the county are expected to close within the near future, board members said.

The high peak of student enrollment in the Fairfield high school was 110, which occurred several years ago, and even that amount, the board pointed out, is too small to provide proper education for the students under present conditions.

The school was established as a two-year school about 1914, later became a three-year school and eventually, in 1932, was enlarged to a four-year school with five teachers.

No decision was immediately made as to where the high school students will be transported next year.

she became ill and bedridden. There was no more strength or sight for letter-writing, and no money for postage, but her purpose had been accomplished.

Miss Jarvis' tall, angular figure and determined mien had often made strong men quail when she sallied forth to castigate some desecration, real or fancied, of her personally-owned holiday.

Until two years ago she continued, with her own sight dimming, to care for a wholly-blind sister who had been her charge since childhood.

Miss Jarvis' mother died in Philadelphia May 9, 1905, and on the anniversary of that date her daughter invited a few friends to join her in an informal meeting of reminiscence. The following year saw a church service in the mother's memory at Grafton, W. Va., the family's original home.

Out of that grew the idea of a world-wide tribute to all mothers. By 1908, under the spur of Miss Jarvis' pen, the movement began to sweep the country. In the next few years it spread to every state, and to many other countries, and in 1914 President Wilson signed a Congressional resolution making the day a "flag holiday."

The success of the movement, surpassing her expectations, led Miss Jarvis to give up her former work — she had been a clerk for an insurance company, before the turn of the century — and devote all her time to spreading Mother's Day around the world. She had had the forethought to stake out a personal claim on the day by incorporating herself as "The Mother's Day International Association," and she copyrighted the name. Her only purpose, apparently, was to forestall commercialism of the day. She drew no income from her corporation.

The plan was only partly successful. As the observance of the day spread, Miss Jarvis grew steadily more outraged by what she deemed improper observances. She had picked the white carnation as the official emblem, because her mother had prized two great beds of them at Grafton, but was indignant when growing demand for these flowery sent prices up. Mother's Day greeting cards drew her fire as "a poor excuse for the letter

Take No Action

The sportsmen took no action on the doe season issue although other sportsmen's groups in the county have gone on record as being opposed to an open season in this county.

Mr. Shaeffer discussed game conservation in general and showed two colored films, "Making Friends With the Farmer" and "A Wildlife Hunt."

President George R. Martin presided. The next meeting will be held Friday, June 13.

You're too lazy to write." Candy was suspected because too many sons "take home a box to mother and eat most of it themselves."

Mother's Day lives on, and has continued to expand and grow with the years. Sunday it will be observed, not only as a tribute to those mothers who have lived and passed on, but as a tribute to all mothers.

The white carnation will be worn for those who have passed on: the pink carnation for those mothers fortunately still living.

Philadelphia, May 10 (AP)—George Bibbighaus who was named on the Associated Press little all-America and all-Pennsylvania college football teams last season, will become head football coach at Lehigh high school following his graduation in June from Muhlenberg college. Lehigh high school, his alma mater, announced yesterday that in addition to his coaching duties he will teach American history.

matter of town policy, hard facts force the school to close, the board members declared. With only slightly more than three units of 22 students in the school the board would receive from the state full reimbursement on only three teachers, instead of four as previously.

Raise Tax Or Drop Teacher

Under such a situation the school board would either have to raise the taxes in the community in order to pay the full salary of one teacher, or to drop to three teachers, which would make high school education practically impossible, they said.

While an increase in the tax rate would maintain the school at its present level, the fact that teachers' salaries are to be raised would cause an even greater increase in the tax rate than immediately necessary, "thus placing an intolerable burden on the taxpayers of the community," as one board member expressed it.

With only four teachers, the school could not provide the specialized education offered by many schools, and to provide additional educational facilities the school board would have to build additional structures, thus increasing the demands upon the community for financial support.

Around the Motor Map

According to a recent court ruling you can't sue a driver for injuries he may inflict on you by reason of his carelessness—if you know he has been drinking. . . . Tomorrow's physician will get his calls over his private FM telephone circuit while he is riding from one patient to another. . . . A new windshield wiper blade is said to be capable of flexing in order to clean depressed surfaces of the windshield. . . . Gasoline pumps at filling stations are wearing out at an alarming rate, some 60 per cent of them reported as being in bad shape. . . . White sidewall tires are on the way back. . . . Automatic convertible tops should be operated at least once a month. . . . Those with hydraulic power cylinders will need cleaning with alcohol each fall.

Before Your Trip

If you are one of many who dislike starting on a trip and having the exhaust pipe or the muffler spring a leak you can spare yourself this annoyance by having your mechanic do a bit of testing now. If the muffler is very thin at the bottom, and he is able to press the metal in a bit with his fingers, you had better install a new muffler pronto. For the exhaust pipe he will need to scrape off some of the accumulated rust with a knife. This will reveal the pipe's condition.

While doing this it would be well to check over the tail pipe for dents. Sometimes the end of the pipe is partially closed with caked mud where the car has rammed into an embankment while being turned around.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"When owners tell me that in spite of several reverse flushings the engine still overheats I usually become suspicious of partially clogged holes for water passage in both the head and the block. Rust and scale become so lodged at these points that flushing won't remove them.

"Sometimes the flushing actually clogs the holes still more. In such cases it is necessary to remove the head and to ream out the incrustated scale. While doing this job note how engineers have selected passages of varying size in order to control the flow of water from block to head. Any changes in such rate of flow are certain to cause variations in the engine's thermal behavior."

Steering On The Loose

Returning from a trip a friend of mine reported that steering seemed very loose then the weather turned warm. He checked tire pressures carefully and inspected the front wheel bearings too. Somehow it did not occur to him that during the winter the congealed gear lube had had the effect of taking up slack between the gear and the worm. Warmer weather changed the situation. While use of heavier gear lube now would improve steering to some extent I have advised him to have the steering column readjusted.

Big Boon To Clubs

The fact hasn't been publicized as yet but crystal gazers are pointing out that the use of automobile telephones will be a great stimulus in increase automobile-club membership. Club service is so closely linked with telephone communication that at one time experiments were conducted in Connecticut to provide roadside phone service exclusively for motor club members. That was a forerunner of today's auto telephone.

In the picture of the future that is closer than most of us realize a motorist in distress would merely dial for his nearest AAA club which, in turn, would secure for him the services of the best equipped service station. He would not even have to stop around for available aid. It would all be done for him the instant he gave his membership number and identified his location. Your telephone would also be most useful for obtaining hotel accommodations.

Quick Test For Leaks

Do you suspect leakage in the exhaust system? And would you like to know exactly where such leaks are to be found?

The trick, then, is to run the engine out in the open and feed a little oil to the carburetor intake after taking off the air cleaner. The smoke which this oil produces will quickly show up leakage in the exhaust system. While ordinary engine oil or even kerosene will do for this test it would be better to use gum solvents as these would be more beneficial to the engine.

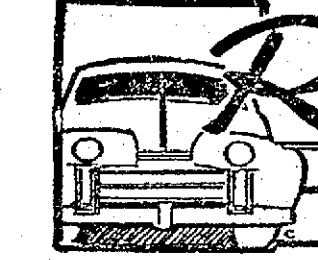

Light For Backing

Effective backing lights for negotiating a dark driveway at night are the spotlight. All you need do is hold your foot lightly on the brake pedal while backing and the driveway behind will be well illuminated. If the car has no hand control for the throttle I would flash the stop lights to get a general view of the situation behind, then start the car going in reverse. Immediately press the clutch pedal down, transferring your right foot from the accelerator to the brake pedal. The driveway is again lighted and the car will have enough momentum to carry it to the street.

Incidentally, it is sometimes helpful to drive ahead a few feet to make sure that the car is in a straight line. Then start backing with the steering wheel in this straight-ahead position.

Just Give It Time

If your new car doesn't seem to steer just right don't start raising the roof and tempting the dealer to try different adjustments. Some owners have even asked for changes in front-end alignment, this merely making matters worse. The answer lies in the fact that the front end of the car is new and a bit stiff. Here's what happens:

Because the support arm pivot pins and the stabilizer links are still quite tight the car doesn't return to normal height whenever the front end dips down. Naturally this affects the steering. It is just one of those things that will disappear completely if given time.

used for motor bearings because the shaft is always slowed down by pistons working against compression. Thus plain bearings are quite sufficient.

Castor oil isn't practical in a passenger car engine because it tends to gum up when heated. It can be used in racing motors because they are always town down and reassembled between races.

Not all synthetic rubber tires give a harder than natural rubber tire ride because they are designed to be operated on lower air pressure.

Q. What should I use as a solvent for freeing the manifold heat valve?

I have tried kerosene but the valve still sticks.—J. N. L.

A. Use a prepared penetrating oil. Kerosene with soda added may also be found effective. When applying solvent always tap the end of the valve's shaft with a hammer.

MAROONS DRUB ST. FRANCIS 9

A seven-run rally in the sixth inning enabled the Gettysburg high school baseball team to nose out St. Francis Prep here Friday afternoon in a slugfest, 13-11. The victory was the third in four starts for Coach Howard Shoemaker's lads.

St. Francis got off to a fast start by scoring five runs in the first two frames. The Maroons took the lead with four runs in the third to make it 6-5 but the visitors again went ahead with two runs in the fifth and another in the sixth.

Ronnie Kump, who relieved Donald Bucher as pitcher in the second inning, started the sixth inning with a double after one was out. Hershey doubled and Benner singled. W. Bucher was safe on a fielder's choice. Hess filed out to left but a base on balls to Leecher, a double by Biesecker and single by Elsenhart followed by an error by Sheedy allowed the runs to trickle over.

St. Francis fought back in the seventh and pushed over a trio of runs before Kump fanned Dobscha for the final out with the tying run on base.

Kump whiffed 13 batters as relief hurler. Hess led the Gettysburg attack with a pair of triples while Elsenhart collected a single and triple and Benner a pair of safeties. J. Breen poled three singles for the visitors.

Howie Schultz Is Sold To Phillies

Philadelphia, May 10 (AP)—Branch Rickey, owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers, indicated today he intends using Jackie Robinson, first negro baseball player in modern major league history, at first base despite recent reported anti-racial diamond developments.

Robinson's main competitor for the regular first base job with the Dodgers, Howie Schultz, was sold to the Philadelphia Phillies here last night for $50,000.

Rickey, here for a conference with Herb Pennock, general manager of the Phils, disclosed the sale of Schultz after the Dodgers had dropped an 11-inning night game 6 to 5 to the Phils. It was the first game of a four-game series.

Derby Winner To Seek Preakness Pot

Baltimore, May 10 (AP)—Jet Pilot, the front running flyer from Maine Chance farm, and 10 challengers who aren't quite sure about that Kentucky Derby business, are slated to shoot for the $138,140 Preakness pot today, but they really ought to let the Weather Man be an added starter.

With a record Pimlico crowd of around 45,000 predicted for Maryland's premier turf classic, so much seems to depend upon whether it rains or shines that the Weather Man has been quoted more than the trainers.

The Jet job won the Derby in off-footing because he seems to like the stuff. And the general idea is that he won't do so well over a fast strip in the mile and three-sixteenths Preakness—which is a sixteenth shorter than the derby—because of half a dozen speed horses in the field.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS ON GROWING OLDER

If the process of the years has been one of development, enrichment of mind and heart, and a mellowing of the spirit, these should be the most precious of all as one grows older. Each of us journeys to a self-selected destination, and if it is satisfactorily reached, we can safely leave the verdict of our life to a higher power than any that may rest with us, or with others.

We all need to meditate upon those few lines by Robert Browning, the poet, whose life was one of triumph to the very end. Said he: "Grow old along with me! The best is yet to be. The last of life, for which the first was made."

The youth is concerned with beginnings. He is the experimenter. But as he matures he suddenly realizes how important it is to finish things, to complete tasks, thus rounding out his years. The early years are for growth and cultivation, the later ones for fruitage.

As we grow older our vision is keener. We see from greater heights, and over a multitude of experiences. We have climbed mountains, surmounted great difficulties, and learned to appraise values. And by understanding ourselves in an ever increasing manner, we grow more tolerant and charitable toward others. We become more companionable—and easier on our friends as well!

The world is certainly a stage, as Shakespeare says, but it is far more. It is a great school, in which each of us selects his courses, pursues his studies, and perfects his way of life most satisfactorily to himself. God bequeaths to us the invaluable power of choice.

Things that seemed so important in our earlier years, grow less in importance, and the larger things loom in importance. The substantial becomes our mental and spiritual diet by which we live in greater measure and happiness. To grow old gracefully is to have learned the secret of a useful life.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Gratitude."

DIFFICULTY

It isn't what he likes to do that proves a fellow's best;
It's the disagreeable duty that is manhood's truest test.

For the easy, pleasant service most of us have will enough,
But it takes a man to conquer when the going's really rough.

We are sifted all by trial, as they say: "Run through the mill." We are tested for endurance and for sturdiness of will.

There are many for the labors all consider fun to do,
But the disagreeable duties must depend upon the few.

If the cause is worth achieving, it will not be lightly won.
There'll be many tasks unpleasant which by stout hearts must be done.

So, my boy, this truth remember, for at night you'll better rest,
If against the odds encountered you have done your level best.

QUICK THINKING

Pittsburgh, June 10 (P)—When 8-year-old James Boustead stumbled into an open sewer at the railroad station in nearby Natrona, Lawrence Wildt, 10, knew what to do. He dashed to the nearest manhole, 200 feet away, pried off the lid, and lowered himself inside just in time to catch James as he was floating past, unharmed.

31 JAPS ARE CHARGED WITH EATING HUMANS

Manila, June 10 (P)—Thirty-one Japanese soldiers charged with butchering and eating Filipinos, and occasionally their own men, during long months of hiding in Mindanao jungles will be tried before the Philippine army war crimes tribunal next month.

The Japanese surrendered in February when a Japanese interpreter convinced them the war was over. They are held at Del Monte, northern Mindanao, charged with more than 20 counts of murder, involving cannibalism.

S. Melville Hussey, Bayonne, N. J., a member of the U. S. Army's legal section in Manila, obtained confessions from the man-eating Japs.

Some Admit Charge

He said one of them, Lt. Hajime Ainoda, told him human meat was eaten because the men's physical condition was desperate, and animal meat was difficult to obtain.

"Whenever possible we avoided killing by eating the bodies of people who died from illness, or were killed in action or were executed for crimes," Ainoda explained. He said "at least two bodies of Japanese soldiers were eaten by us," but Hussey reported evidence that at least 10 were eaten.

Ainoda, a medical corpsman of the Suzuki unit, admitted leading one cannibalistic patrol in which four Filipinos were captured. Rakkimi Yamamoto, one of four members of a deserted reconnaissance unit, said they joined the Suzuki unit and "found that they were practicing cannibalism."

Frequently Ate Humans

"We frequently ate human meat as our dinner. Boiled it with vegetables and ate it," he said. "Meat was brought into camp by patrols who had cut it up and dressed it."

"Sometimes the meat was dried and sun-cured. Since no other meat was available, we had to eat human flesh. For this reason, Filipinos were captured and butchered. I was so hungry I ate it, although I would have preferred pork."

A Filipino, Felix J. Saguinwan, identified three of the Japanese as the ones who broke into his home in November 1945, bayoneted his mother, father, sister and brother, and cut flesh from the bodies. As he, another sister and his sister-in-law watched, he related, the Japanese cooked the flesh.

Forced To Taste Meat

"After eating all they wanted, they placed the human meat on a plate and ordered us to eat," he said. "We refused, sickened by the thought."

"Then one of the Japanese held a rifle at my back and prodded me with the muzzle. I then tasted the meat. The two girls were forced to do likewise."

"The Japanese," he said, "laughed and made fun of us." Then they assaulted the girls and carried them off.

Lt. Col. Fumio Suzuki, leader of the unit, committed suicide after his capture. He had opposed cannibalism, but when he had a private executed for practicing it, the executioners dug up the body secretly and ate it.

DRIVER IS SLAIN BY HITCH-HIKER

Media, Pa., June 10 (P)—A 23-year-old motorist was shot to death at the wheel of his fast-moving automobile and a police officer declared early today a hitch-hiker would be formally charged with the slaying.

Fred Jack, chief of Delaware county detectives, said that a man he identified as Daniel P. Taranow, 21, New York city, had admitted orally that he shot Francis Devon, 23, of Oxford, Pa., because Devon refused to surrender the car.

Jack said he would charge Taranow with murder sometime during the day.

Devon, a brakeman employed by the Pennsylvania railroad, served in the army for 38 months and was a brother of Lt. Edward Devon, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's personal airplane pilot.

Jack said that Devon slumped dead in his 1947 sedan as it crashed through a pole a mile east of Media yesterday. The hitch-hiker, Jack added, leaped from the car, rolled down an embankment and fled.

It was not until five hours later that Taranow was captured in a secluded dell not far from the scene of the shooting.

DEMAND UNION SHOP

Pittsburgh, June 10 (P)—About 800 CIO-United Steelworkers were on strike at the Scaife Co. plant at nearby Oakmont today in support of their demand for a union shop. A union spokesman said no wage issue was involved in the walkout which began yesterday. The company said it offered a pay raise of 14.5 cents an hour.

CRUSHED BEHIND WHEEL

Wattsburg, Pa., June 10 (P)—Harry L. Musser, Erie county deputy coroner, reported Edward Zaunick, 28, of near Kane, was crushed to death in the wreckage of his automobile near here yesterday. Musser said Zaunick apparently went to sleep at the wheel.

11,000 MINERS IDLE IN PROTEST

Uniontown, Pa., June 10 (P)—Work stoppages among soft coal miners protesting labor legislation before Congress spread to 20 mines employing 11,204 men today as AFL-United Mine Workers' officials pondered their strategy in the idle-ness they termed "unauthorized."

The stoppages were scattered through the three counties that comprise the heart of an extremely rich southwestern Pennsylvania bituminous section—Payette, Greene, and Washington.

Two mines voted to resume work after being idle over the week-end. They were the Gates mine of the H. C. Frick Coal and Coke company, employing 400, and the Kyle mine of the same company employing 600. They account for a combined daily production of 5,600 tons.

Among the closed mines was the world's largest, the famed Robena mine of the Frick company which employs 1,800 miners and has a normal daily production of 10,000 tons. Some of the other larger pits affected range from 2,000 tons to 7,000 tons in output.

Without exception, all of the larger mines are "captive" pits—those mines whose production goes to steel plants and never sees the open market.

The U. S. Steel corporation, one of the steelmakers involved, reported it was losing 25,000 tons of coal daily, 5,000 tons short of the total used each 24 hours at the Clairton Coking Works, which supplies 80 per cent of the coke used by the company's Pittsburgh district plants.

TAX CUT BILL IS HEADED FOR 1947 OBLIVION

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, June 10 (P)—A big part of Congress' work for 1947 may land in the ashcan.

Congress has put a lot of its time and effort this year into a bill to cut income taxes and a bill to restrict labor unions.

Mr. Truman has opposed both. He's expected to veto the tax-cut bill. He may veto the labor bill.

A veto will kill the bills for 1947 unless Congress can get up enough votes—two thirds—to re-pass them into law.

There's small chance Congress can re-pass a vetoed tax bill. It probably can re-pass a vetoed labor bill. So the outlook is:

1. No income tax cuts this year.
2. A new labor law.

This will give some idea of the work which went into the bills, both of which were rammed through by the Republicans.

In the House 33 bills, and in the Senate 38 bills, to restrict labor unions were introduced. They went to House and Senate committees.

Heard 237 Witnesses

It was the job of these committees to come up with a single bill, after plenty of thought, examination and discussion.

So the Senate committees started hearings January 23 and ended them March 13. House committee hearings started February 5 and ended March 15.

Between them, the two committees heard 237 witnesses argue for and against restrictions and took a total of about a month of closed-door committee sessions. Then the completed, single bills went to full House and Senate.

The House debated three days and passed its bill April 17. The Senate passed its bill after debating from April 23 through May 13.

Because the House and Senate bills differed, a joint House-Senate committee was created to work out a single, compromise bill. This took more closed door sessions. A compromise was reached. And, finally, full House and Senate approved the compromise bill.

Must Act By June 20

Now take the tax-cut bill. Tax experts, employed by Congress, started last fall to figure out how income taxes might be cut. They got up tables, information, ideas.

After Congress opened January 3, about 20 tax-cut bills were introduced. The bills went to committees of House and Senate.

They had about two weeks of hearings, heard about 15 witnesses,

TWO KIDNAPPED OFFICERS FREE

Jerusalem, June 10 (P)—Two British officers kidnapped yesterday by Extremists were released unharmed today at Kiriat Shaul as a British military cordon prepared to search that Jewish colony.

A government announcement said the two men walked toward the British troops after the cordon had been thrown around the colony, which is near the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

The search of the area went on as scheduled. Military patrols had been scouring the area since the two were seized at a crowded swimming pool at Ramat Gan.

Hagana, a moderate Jewish underground organization, publicly appealed to Palestine Jewry to help in tracing the victims.

The policemen were Sgt. E. O. Hackett of London and Constable P. C. Ward of Dublin.

The kidnappers' escape truck was found before dawn today a short distance from Hertzlia, near Kiriat Shaul, a Jewish colony north of Ramat Gan.

Salem, Mass., (P)—Burglars who visited Jerry's Army-Navy store could be going on a long vacation.

They stole $1,500 worth of fishing and hunting equipment.

SNAPPY—A novel new midriff style play suit with pottery design is modeled by film actress Marguerite Chapman.

Army Promises Aid To Displaced Persons

Wernersville, Pa., June 10 (P)—The American army will redouble efforts "to find ways and means" of aiding displaced persons in Europe, said Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, former commander of U. S. Forces in Europe.

But, he added, "we cannot do it alone."

McNarney's address, read by his aide, Chaplain Herbert Friedman of Denver, was made on Sunday at an emergency conference of the United Jewish appeal, aimed at raising $170,000,000 to provide relief for Jews and other needy persons throughout the world.

The displaced persons problem, the general declared, "calls for Jewish statesmanship—American Jewish statesmanship" and added "you have the sympathy of your Christian fellow citizens in your great work."

Plan Snack Bars And Lavatories On Buses

Bedford, Ja., June 10 (P)—Snack bars and lavatories will be installed in some of the new buses soon to be placed in operation on state highways, J. W. Edwards, of Williamsport, president of the Pennsylvania Bus association, disclosed Monday.

Edwards told the association's 26th annual convention here that the bus industry hopes to increase the maximum legal length of buses in Pennsylvania from 35 to 37 feet and the width from 96 to 102 inches to provide better service.

"New bus equipment for both inter-city and local use will be smoother riding and safer because of improved brakes," he declared, adding: "Two-way radio facilities are now available which will bring less delay in operating schedules."

SELL RADIO STATION

Philadelphia, June 10 (P)—The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin stated Monday sale of radio station WPEN and WPEN-FM to the Sun-Ray Drug company, of Philadelphia for $800,000, subject to Federal Communications commission approval.

look about 600 pages of testimony. All this was followed by several weeks of closed-door committee sessions.

The full House acted first, passing a tax-cut bill March 27 after three days of debate. The Senate, debating several days, passed its bill May 28.

Since House and Senate bills differed a bit, again a joint House-Senate committee was set up.

It met several times, worked out a compromise and sent it to the full House and Senate which okayed it.

This bill and the labor bill went to the White House. Mr. Truman must act on the tax bill by Monday and on the labor bill by June 20.

EXPECT FLOOD WATERS WILL SOON RECEDE

Hannibal, Mo., June 10 (P)—Floodwaters pouring into the Mississippi river, which already have made more than 20,000 homeless and have inundated nearly 50,000 acres of farm land, in eastern Missouri and west-central Illinois, appeared today to have reached a high point.

Rivermen and U. S. engineers expressed belief that only further rains would aggravate the situation, but they also said that several river towns in Illinois and Missouri still faced serious flood conditions, despite the promise of receding waters.

U. S. Army engineers and the Coast Guard had every available worker on the job in the flood area and the American Red Cross had 50 staff workers and about 600 volunteers aiding the homeless.

Town Evacuated

Water was eight to ten feet deep in the village of Alexandria, Mo., near the Iowa line, the result of a levee break, and all residents have been evacuated.

In Hannibal, a city of 20,000, the water covered nine blocks of the town's main street. Four thousand residents of South Hannibal were partially isolated. No buses were operating and at least a dozen stores were flooded.

At Canton, Mo., 30 miles upstream, the river had reached a stage of 19.92 feet, an all-time high. Although half of the town is under water and a third of the 2,200 residents are homeless, relief work was reported well in hand. No trains or buses are operating out of the town and only one highway is open.

A river land district levee, two miles north of Louisiana, broke yesterday, flooding 3,000 acres. Sixty families in Louisiana were evacuated. At Quincy, Ill., where the Mississippi reached a record stage 23.6 feet, railroad yards on the waterfront were flooded, but the town itself, situated on a bluff, was not endangered. Several persons were forced to evacuate homes in South Quincy.

WIFE SLAYER SENTENCED

Ebensburg, Pa., June 10 (P)—John R. Wynn of Conemaugh was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday in Cambria county court in the March, 1946, slaying of his 37-year-old wife, Donnie. Wynn pleaded guilty to battering in his wife's head with a stove poker as she lay in bed at their home.

The Old Spanish Trail, connecting Pensacola, Miss., and New Orleans, La., is 250 miles long and cost $4,000,000.

Red Rose Ceremony Held At Manheim

Manheim, Pa., June 10 (P)—The Red Rose the late Baron William Henry Stuegel stipulated 175 years ago Zion Lutheran church should pay annually as rental has been handed over to a sixth-generation descendant of the storied colonial glass maker and ironmaster.

Owen J. Roberts, former U. S. Supreme court justice, acting for the church congregation gave a red rose Westfield, N. J., in the annual payment of "one red rose forever" as Stuegel asked in the deed conveying the church property to the congregation in 1772.

The ceremony was not revived until 1892 and was omitted in 1917 and 1918.

Roberts told the congregation the Baron evidently realized that "unless the spirit of God is present, there is no liberty."

FIRE IN FEAT MOSS

Pittsburgh, June 10 (P)—Eleven fire companies fought a stubborn blaze in a four-story hardware building which tied up street car and automobile traffic for blocks in the Northside section yesterday.

Damage was estimated at $15,000 by officials of the Sam McKnight hardware store who said the fire started as a result of spontaneous combustion in a pile of stored peat moss.

Washington, June 10 (P)—Adequate flood control through the speedy Conemaugh dam is necessary if the Pittsburgh area is to keep its industries and to attract new ones, Rep. Buchanan (D.-Pa.), told the House appropriations committee today.

THE INNER LIGHTS

The lights in this world are not all on the outside. There are lights inside of people—in the mind and heart—that often guide through dark and confusing places where an outward light could not lead.

We keep these lights glowing by our courage, faith, and spiritual outlook. When these lights go out, or are dimmed, we stumble and feel with our physical fingers, which all too often touch the wrong guideposts.

The winds of adversity may blow at these inner lights, and at times they may burn low, but an unfaltering purpose will not allow them to go out. Like love, these inner lights were created to guide us throughout life.

There are inner lights that guide the artist, the writer, and the scientist. They light up the souls of such beings, whose objective it is to create beauty, understanding between people, and to further the progress, health, and hope of the world. It is these lights that put feeling into art, sincerity into writing, and unselfish service into the efforts of the scientist.

It was these inner lights that guided Washington at Valley Forge, Lincoln throughout the dark days of Civil War, and which kept the spark of Freedom forever bright in the heart of every soldier, fighting to assure a better world. May God grant that the efforts of all of these may not have been in vain.

These inner lights continue to burn and keep the way ahead well lighted in many a life, clouded by sorrow, disappointment, and loss. They burn brightly, unknown to those about such a one—but there are always evidences that they form a permanent equipment. Attitude of mind and outward patience, as well as peace of mind, give ample proof.

The inner lights within one's heart, are like the harbor lights along the shore that guide ships safely into port. Thus our lives are guided, inspired, and kept steadfastly forward.

APPLYING FOR WORK

"I'm looking for a job," said he, "That hasn't any drudgery. I'd like to work the whole day through."

At something that is fun to do. Big money I am out to earn. Without the time it takes to learn. I do not want to wake too soon Or hurry through my lunch at noon. I want to live a life of ease And go and come just as I please. In short, I'd like to come across A pleasant job, without a boss. Who'll think at work I ought to stay When I am in the mood to play."

The bureau fellow scratched his head. "I know just what you want," he said.

"But let me put it to you flat: There isn't any job like that."

SHORTAGE OF SCHOOLBOOKS IS EXPECTED

By JAMES MARLOW

New York, May 10 (AP)—There'll be some shortage in schoolbooks next year but—Grammar School Johnny and High School Charley ought to be able to make out pretty well just the same. This is the guess of the American Textbook Institute which tells this story.

During the war grammar and high schools bought as few new textbooks as possible. Now there's a pent-up demand for them.

So far, the makers of textbooks haven't been able to meet the demand and probably won't for another year or so.

Last fall, at the start of the present school year, the institute figures grammar and high schools were short about 9,000,000 books. Next fall, at the start of the new school year, they'll be short of about 4,500,000 textbooks, or only half as many this year.

Will Have Enough

Even so, the schools have on hand now millions of old textbooks which can be used for their students. So, while the full demand won't be met, the students are expected to have enough books to go around.

The shortages, where they occur, probably will be spotty. Which means: The shortages won't be centered in any one place.

The bookmakers now are turning out approximately 100,000,000 textbooks a year. To meet the demand, they'd have to be turning out 105,000,000.

For one thing, paper still is short. And there are mechanical bottlenecks. For example: A lot of other books, besides textbooks, have to be printed on the presses which turn out the textbooks.

So the textbook-maker has to schedule his press time. In other words: Take his turn.

If a textbook-maker misses his scheduled time for any reason, he loses it and has to work out another schedule by taking his turn.

she became ill and bedridden. There was no more strength or sight for letter-writing, and no money for postage, but her purpose had been accomplished.

Miss Jarvis' tall, angular figure and determined men had often made strong men quail when she sallied forth to castigate some desecration, real or fancied, of her personally-owned holiday.

Until two years ago she continued, with her own slight dimming, to care for a wholly-blind sister who had been her charge since childhood.

Miss Jarvis' mother died in Philadelphia May 9, 1905, and on the anniversary of that date her daughter invited a few friends to join her in an informal meeting of reminiscence. The following year saw a church service in the mother's memory at Grafton, W. Va., the family's original home.

Out of that grew the idea of a world-wide tribute to all mothers. By 1908, under the spur of Miss Jarvis' pen, the movement began to sweep the country. In the next few years it spread to every state, and to many other countries, and in 1914 President Wilson signed a Congressional resolution making the day a "flag holiday."

The success of the movement, surpassing her expectations, led Miss Jarvis to give up her former work — she had been a clerk for an insurance company, before the turn of the century — and devote all her time to spreading Mother's Day around the world. She had had the forethought to stake out a personal claim on the day by incorporating herself as "The Mother's Day International Association," and she copyrighted the name. Her only purpose, apparently, was to forestall commercialism of the day. She drew no income from her corporation.

The plan was only partly successful. As the observance of the day spread, Miss Jarvis grew steadily more outraged by what she deemed improper observances. She had picked the white carnation as the official emblem, because her mother had prized two great beds of them at Grafton, but was indignant when growing demand for these flowers sent prices up. Mother's Day greeting cards drew her fire as "a poor excuse for the letter matter of town policy, hard facts force the school to close, the board members declared. With only slightly more than three units of 22 students in the school the board would receive from the state full reimbursement on only three teachers, instead of four as previously.

Raise Tax Or Drop Teacher

Under such a situation the school board would either have to raise the taxes in the community in order to pay the full salary of one teacher, or to drop to three teachers, which would make high school education practically impossible, they said.

While an increase in the tax rate would maintain the school at its present level, the fact that teachers' salaries are to be raised would cause an even greater increase in the tax rate than immediately necessary, "thus placing an intolerable burden on the taxpayers of the community," as one board member expressed it.

With only four teachers, the school could not provide the specialized education offered by many schools, and to provide additional educational facilities the school board would have to build additional structures, thus increasing the demands upon the community for financial support.

Follows Trend

The closing of the school follows the general trend throughout the country of closing smaller schools, board members pointed out, with national educational authorities holding that only through larger schools will youngsters be able to obtain the education they need in modern times. Larger schools, it was pointed out, have the ability to provide such specialized education as agriculture, home economics, mechanics, and the like.

In addition, the closing of the school will mean a financial saving to the citizens of the community.

While abandoning plans to keep the high school in operation the board decided to study plans for bettering the elementary education provided by the community.

First To Decide

The Fairfield school was the first high school in the county to decide to close although other smaller high schools in the county are expected to close within the near future, board members said.

The high peak of student enrollment in the Fairfield high school was 110, which occurred several years ago, and even that amount, the board pointed out, is too small to provide proper education for the students under present conditions.

The school was established as a two-year school about 1914, later became a three-year school and eventually, in 1932, was enlarged to a four-year school with five teachers.

No decision was immediately made as to where the high school students will be transported next year.

open season on doe is necessary, he declared, to save the state's deer herd. In some sections of the state where the deer supply is not "too plentiful," that condition is due to the fact that previous open seasons on doe were too long delayed, he asserted. The open season is a conservation measure, he asserted, declaring that strict management of the state's deer herd is essential to its own preservation. The number of hunters has greatly increased, Mr. Shaeffer added.

Take No Action

The sportsmen took no action on the doe season issue although other sportsmen's groups in the county have gone on record as being opposed to an open season in this county.

Mr. Shaeffer discussed game conservation in general and showed two colored films, "Making Friends With the Farmer" and "A Wildcat Hunt." President George R. Martin presided. The next meeting will be held Friday, June 13.

you're too lazy to write." Candy was suspected because too many sons "take home a box to mother and eat most of it themselves."

Mother's Day lives on, and has continued to expand and grow with the years. Sunday it will be observed, not only as a tribute to those mothers who have lived and passed on, but as a tribute to all mothers.

The white carnation will be worn for those who have passed on; the pink carnation for those mothers fortunately still living.

Philadelphia, May 10 (AP)—George Bibbighaus who was named on the Associated Press little all-American and all-Pennsylvania college football teams last season, will become head football coach at Lehigh high school following his graduation in June from Muhlenberg college. Lehigh high school, his alma mater, announced yesterday that in addition to his coaching duties he will teach American history.

Just Give It Time

If your new car doesn't seem to steer just right don't start raising the roof and tempting the dealer to try different adjustments. Some owners have even asked for changes in front-end alignment, this merely making matters worse. The answer lies in the fact that the front end of the car is new and a bit stiff. Here's what happens:

Because the support arm pivot pins and the stabilizer links are still quite tight the car doesn't return to normal height whenever the front end dips down. Naturally this affects the steering. It is just one of those things that will disappear completely if given time.

Around the Motor Map

According to a recent court ruling you can't sue a driver for injuries he may inflict on you by reason of his carelessness—if you know he has been drinking. . . . Tomorrow's physician will get his calls over his private FM telephone circuit while he is riding from one patient to another.

. . . A new windshield wiper blade is said to be capable of flexing in order to clean depressed surfaces of the windshield. . . . Gasoline pumps at filling stations are wearing out at an alarming rate, some 60 per cent of them reported as being in bad shape. . . . White sidewall tires are on the way back. . . . Automatic convertible tops should be operated at least once a month. . . . Those with hydraulic power cylinders will need cleaning with alcohol each fall.

Before Your Trip

If you are one of many who dislike starting on a trip and having the exhaust pipe or the muffler spring a leak you can spare yourself this annoyance by having your mechanic do a bit of testing now. If the muffler is very thin at the bottom, and he is able to press the metal in a bit with his fingers, you had better install a new muffler pronto. For the exhaust pipe he will need to scrape off some of the accumulated rust with a knife. This will reveal the pipe's condition.

While doing this it would be well to check over the tail pipe for dents. Sometimes the end of the pipe is partially closed with caked mud where the car has rammed into an embankment while being turned around.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"When owners tell me that in spite of several reverse flushings the engine still overheats I usually become suspicious of partially clogged holes for water passage in both the head and the block. Rust and scale become so lodged at these points that flushing won't remove them.

"Sometimes the flushing actually clogs the holes still more. In such cases it is necessary to remove the head and to ream out the incrustated scale. While doing this job note how engineers have selected passages of varying size in order to control the flow of water from block to head. Any changes in such rate of flow are certain to cause variations in

Steering On The Loose

Returning from a trip a friend of mine reported that steering seemed very loose then the weather turned warm. He checked tire pressures carefully and inspected the front wheel bearings too. Somehow it did not occur to him that during the winter the congealed gear lube had had the effect of taking up slack between the gear and the worm. Warmer weather changed the situation. While use of heavier gear lube now would improve steering to some extent I have advised him to have the steering column readjusted.

Big Boon To Clubs

The fact hasn't been publicized as yet but crystal gazers are pointing out that the use of automobile telephones will be a great stimulus in increase automobile club membership. Club service is so closely linked with telephone communication that at one time experiments were conducted in Connecticut to provide roadside phone service exclusively for motor club members. That was a forerunner of today's auto telephone.

In the picture of the future that is closer than most of us realize a motorist in distress would merely dial for his nearest AAA club which, in turn, would secure for him the services of the best equipped service station. He would not even have to shop around for available aid. It would all be done for him the instant he gave his membership number and identified his location. Your telephone would also be most useful for obtaining hotel accommodations.

Quick Test For Leaks

Do you suspect leakage in the exhaust system? And would you like to know exactly where such leaks are to be found?

The trick, then, is to run the engine out in the open and feed a little oil to the carburetor intake after taking off the air cleaner. The smoke which this oil produces will quickly show up leakage in the exhaust system. While ordinary engine oil or even kerosene will do for this test it would be better to use gum solvents as these would be more beneficial to the engine.

Light For Backing

Effective backing lights for negotiating a dark driveway at night are the stoplights. All you need do is hold your foot lightly on the brake pedal while backing and the driveway behind will be well illuminated. If the car has no hand control for the throttle I would flash the stop lights to get a general view of the situation behind, then start the car going in reverse. Immediately press the clutch pedal down, transferring your right foot from the accelerator to the brake pedal. The driveway is again lighted and the car will have enough momentum to carry it to the street.

Incidentally, it is sometimes helpful to drive ahead a few feet to make sure that the car is in a straight line. Then start backing with the steering wheel in this straight-ahead position.

This Explains It

Ball or roller bearings are not used for motor bearings because the shaft is always slowed down by pistons working against compression. Thus plain bearings are quite sufficient.

Castor oil isn't practical in a passenger car engine because it tends to gum up when heated. It can be used in racing motors because they are always torn down and reassembled between races.

Not all synthetic rubber tires give a harder than natural rubber tire ride because they are designed to be operated on lower air pressure.

What's Your Trouble?

Q. What should I use as a solvent for freeing the manifold heat valve?

I have tried kerosene but the valve still sticks.—J. N. L.

A. Use a prepared penetrating oil. Kerosene with soda added may also be found effective. When applying solvent always tap the end of the valve's shaft with a hammer.

Q. I have bought a pair of fog lights and intend installing them on my car. Where do I connect the hot wire?—S. E. L.

A. This wire goes to the generator side of the ammeter. If the ammeter is already clogged with accessories purchase one of the little multiple connectors. This will greatly facilitate the hook-up of added gadgets.

Q. A great deal of oil seems to Seek More Parts In Plane Crash Probe

Bainbridge, Md., June 10 (AP)—Civil Aeronautics Board investigators today still were looking for two of three missing parts they said they must have before they can determine the cause of the Memorial Day crash of an Eastern Airlines DC-4 in which 53 persons died at Port Deposit.

The investigators yesterday got one important missing piece, a V-shaped forging of duraluminum. It was found by Verner Phipps and his son of Peach Bottom, Pa., about one-quarter of a mile from the wreckage.

The Pennsylvanians gave the part to Maryland state police who turned it over to the CAB investigators who will pay a $100 reward to Phipps. The other two urgently sought parts are a piece of metal to which the V-shaped bracket was attached in the tail assembly and a metal propeller tip. Witnesses of the crash, the worst in United States commercial aviation history, have been summoned to a hearing June 16.

"I am still against any FEPC bill," said Chairman Adam T. Bower (R-Northumberland) of the House labor committee as Rep. Herbert P. Sore, the Republican floor leader pointed out "it's a dead duck" unless reported out of the committee to delay, since five legislative days are required to pass a bill.

Bower, however, arranged for another conference with Governor James H. Duff, who has pressed for passage of legislation prohibiting discrimination in employment because of race, creed or color.

Follow-Up Medical May Be Provided

Harrisburg, June 10 (AP)—Follow-up care for the commonwealth's ill school children would be provided under provisions of a bill passed last night by the House and sent to the Senate.

"The bill would require all school districts to retain—with state aid—a school health nurse to make home visits.

It also permits application by needy parents to local boards of assistance for financial help to correct physical defects of their children.

Chapter 20

It was quite an army that Rush mustered at three o'clock in the morning. He had picked up a thousand posters from Prime's own hands at the delivery door of the Chronicle several hours earlier and marshalled his crew at the back door of Pedrick's apartment house at three. They divided the posters and the crew among the three cars. Rush and Gay went in Rush's rented car. Smokey and Merwin, who amused Pedrick greatly, were in Pedrick's car and Robin and Duffy were in Kit English's car. Earlier, Rush, with the help of Pedrick, had mapped out the residential district in three sections and each car headed for a section.

Three hours later as the first glow of the sun faded the darker blue of the eastern night they met again in Pedrick's apartment.

In the alley behind Pedrick's Rush and Robin held a brief conference following which they spent a moment smearing mud over the license plates of the two cars. Then Robin drove off with Rush and Gay close behind him.

Robin's car picked up speed and headed through the residence districts. Rush reached in his shoulder holster and took out a thirty-eight revolver. He spun the cylinder once and looked out of the corner of his eye at Gay. Her eyes were on the gun in wide amazement.

"Have I given you the idea that you need protection from me?" she asked.

"No, I always figured my innocence was armor enough," said Rush.

He rolled down the window beside him and with the gun in his left hand reached out of the window and fired at the car ahead.

"Are you crazy?" asked Gay, and for the first time she was shaken out of her customary poise. Her voice rose an octave. "Rush! That's Robin in the car ahead. He's your friend, remember?"

Rush emptied the gun at the car ahead and answering flashes came as Robin shot back. The night was torn into screaming fragments with the sound of the guns.

"Blanks," said Rush. "This is what is known as an object lesson. We're proving to the citizens of Forge City that the place is gang-ridden. We're giving them a gun battle right in their laps. I'm going to wake up this joint if it takes dynamite."

Robin and Rush continued to give the citizens a gun battle for just over twenty minutes, then in the silence while Gay reloaded his gun Rush heard the distant howl of a squad car. He gave two loud blasts on the horn and waved as Robin looked over his shoulder. Five minutes later they were a mile away and a mile from each other. Rush drove sedately to the door of Gay's apartment house and opened the door. He followed her up the walk, through the hall and to the door of her apartment.

"Do you suppose," he said at the door, "that I could steal an hour's sleep on your davenport? I need an hour or so's sleep and I don't want to come in to the hotel at this time in the morning. Too many people would wonder where I'd been."

Gay tapped her toe on the wood floor, then agreed.

Fifteen minutes later Rush minus shoes, coat and shirt was stretched on Gay's davenport. She came out of the bedroom in a long white and very flowing negligee. Her red hair flamed over her shoulders and cascaded in a thousand waves against the white silk.

She came to the davenport and sat on its edge. She leaned forward and kissed Rush full on the lips. Her hair fell forward and made a curtain on either side of her face.

Then she stood up and walked back into her bedroom, closing the door after her.

The smell of coffee and the sound of bacon frying awakened Rush. He stretched muscles back into their original shape, swung his feet off the davenport on to the floor, scratched his head and ran his hand over sleepy eyes and down across a rough chin. He stood up and walked to the door of the kitchen. Gay, dressed briefly in a halter and shorts, looked up from a frying pan full of bacon.

Rush sat down across from Gay in the breakfast nook. He poured a cup of coffee and drank it black and hot before he spoke.

"Where's the morning paper?" he asked.

"Don't be so domestic," said Gay. "Stop acting like a bored husband."

She reached a hand down to the bench beside her and tossed the paper across the table. Rush spread it and poured a cup of coffee as he read the headlines. They were almost hysterical.

"You saved my life," he said accusingly.

"It was nothing," said Gay. "How did I do it?"

"You let me stay the night here. Look." His finger stabbed at the column he had indicated. The head read—

BOMB BLAST IN HOTEL ROOM

The room, Gay noted, was 715. She raised eyebrows at Rush. "This has stopped being funny," she said. "They're playing for keeps."

Petrillo Attacks Congress AFM Probe

Detroit, June 10 (AP)—James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFM), on record today with some verbal swings at assorted congressmen, including Rep. Carroll Kearn (R-Pa.), head of a subcommittee investigating the AFM.

The outspoken union head, addressing opening sessions of the 50th annual AFM convention here yesterday, declared the Congressional probe was a "one-sided, lop-sided affair."

He also described the six senators from Illinois, Michigan and Ohio as "the damndest reactionaries ever to go to Washington."

Kearns, a doctor of music and himself a member of the AFM, denied Petrillo's assertion, and said at

SAYS PRESENT LAW SUFFICIENT TO COVER KKK

Harrisburg, June 10 (AP)—A provision in a proposed revision of Pennsylvania's penal code was cited today by the chairman of the Senate's judiciary general committee as meeting a demand for passage of "an Anti-Ku Klux Klan Bill" at the current session of the assembly.

Sen. John H. Dent, the Democratic floor leader, made the demand last night in trying to force from the committee a bill to outlaw any organization persecuting persons "because of their race, creed or color by the use of terrorism, threats or other fear-engendering methods."

Dent's motion was turned aside 33-16 after Chairman John M. Walker declared his committee felt that "the remedy is already in the penal code and separate legislation is not necessary."

BRITAIN'S FOOD SHORTAGE HAS BROAD EFFECTS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

It isn't easy for a country like ours, which never has been hungry on a national scale, to understand just what is meant by the distinguished British dietitian, Dr. Franklin Bicknell, when he states in "The Medical Press" that "England is dying of starvation" and that "as a nation we must literally perish" unless food stocks improve.

And we don't get much help from the British government's estimate of the situation, which is that despite the admittedly short rations, the country's overall health has been better than before the war because of more equitable distributions of foods. What that means, I take it, is that the folk who used to be very hungry are less hungry now, and those who once were blessed with an abundance have been reduced to the general level. Anyway, the government emphatically denies that England is starving.

Your columnist has been watching this development closely, having seen more than a little of it at first hand, and has no doubt that the food situation in Britain is serious. The problem seems to be qualitative. That is to say, people are getting enough bulk in their tummies without securing the necessary nourishment—fats and so on.

Cumulative Effect
Dr. Bicknell states that the foods available, outside of restaurants, provide a diet of less than 2,100 calories daily. He says the average moderately active man needs 3,000 calories, and the average housewife 2,500 calories, daily to provide the energy necessary for a full day's work.

The bad effect of a diet so short in calories is cumulative. Healthy people can stand it for a time, but when they get it day after day, month after month and year after year, as the Britons have been doing since back in war days, then health suffers. The awful monotony of it is in itself a nerve breaker. Continuation must mean a collapse.

Many Reasons
The shortage of foodstuffs in England is due to several causes. For one thing she imports the bulk of her food and there is such a great world shortage now that many countries are running on dangerously low rations. Then Britain, despite her own needs, is spending something like $300,000,000 this year to help the inhabitants of the British occupied zone of Germany.

But England's shortage is due in no small degree to the new socialist government's austerity program under which it is conserving its credit abroad for the purpose of fostering manufacture and trade so to overcome the country's economic crisis. The people are being asked to tighten their belts in order to save this money.

Such Spartan determination is one of the widely admired characteristics of the British race. However, there's a limit to the endurance of even such hardy folk, and it's small wonder that experts like Dr. Bicknell are warning that the time has come to provide a better diet.

East Berlin

East Berlin—Mrs. Mary Stoner, who was very ill at her home for some time, is now able to be about.

A. When you take off the gear case cover again check to see if the oil return hole to the crankcase is clogged. On your car a special wrench is needed for tightening the cover bolts.

Q. Quite a lot of oil is leaking out around the distributor shaft of my car. I have been told that this may be due to excessive pressure within the crankcase, the oil being forced out. Is this possible? —R. E. B.

A. Yes, the chances are that the screens of the crankcase vents are clogged with dirt. If you will clean these you will find that the oil will stop working up around the distributor.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, Hartford, Conn., and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply.

ENGINEER ON SPEEDING TRAIN DIES OF BURNS

Bryn Mawr, Pa., May 10 (AP)—John C. Clark, of Harrisburg, Pa., 50-year-old engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad, died today in Bryn Mawr hospital of third degree burns suffered when he was caught in a searing arc created by crossed cables while a 56-car train sped on at 50 miles an hour.

Two high voltage cables short circuited in the cab of Clark's west-bound freight train last night and enveloped the engineer in flames before the automatic throttle brought the train to a stop at near-ford. A PRR spokesman said. Clark's clothing was burned from his body.

Two other crewmen, George Saylor, 40, a fireman, and Leo Coltaio, 32, a brakeman, both of Harrisburg, suffered burns of the hands and feet as they tried to extinguish the flames. They were treated at Bryn Mawr hospital.

Train Stops Safe

The PRR spokesman said the train was enroute from Philadelphia to Harrisburg over the railroad's main tracks and had just passed the Wynnewood station when there was a blinding flash over Clark's head. Saylor and Coltaio were on the opposite side of the cab when the accident occurred and escaped most of the flames.

As Clark released his grip on the electric engine's throttle the train automatically began to brake itself and came to a stop about a half mile away from the point where the accident occurred.

Traffic on the railroad's four main line rails was delayed for nearly half an hour.

RED FACED CHIEFS

Murphyboro, Ill. (AP)—Police Chief Clarence Ward and Fire Chief Urban Hanson sympathized with each other because of embarrassing incidents.

While Chief Ward surveyed traffic, a light fingered passerby pilfered his blackjack from his hip pocket. Chief Hanson, demonstrating a fire extinguisher to school, was showered with chemicals as a result of a corroded hose.

Deatrick, near East Berlin.

Mother's Day will be observed Sunday at St. Mary's Catholic Church when members of the Holy Name Society, each wearing a red or a white carnation, will attend the 7:30 mass and receive Holy Communion in a body. 'ATOMIC' SHIPS STILL UNSAFE FROM BLAST

By ROBERT M. FARRINGTON

Washington, May 10 (AP)—Ten months after the Bikini atom bomb tests, the target ships still are "unsafe for permanent occupancy."

The Navy so reported Friday in announcing that most of the big vessels which survived the twin blasts last year will be towed without crews to Hawaii and the west coast this summer for study.

Officials emphasized, however, that the heavy radioactive contamination will not endanger the populations of either Pearl Harbor, San Francisco, or Bremerton, Wash., where the studies will be carried on. They are part of the Navy's intensive research program which already has resulted in drastic changes in ship design theories.

Work On Decontamination
A battleship, a cruiser, two submarines and two transports already have made the long voyage from Kwajalein in the central Pacific, where the target ships have been anchored since last fall.

The announcement said the decontamination study is one of the Navy's most important projects in preparing against atomic warfare.

"Until these radioactive materials are removed by means of decontamination methods, the ships will be unsafe for permanent occupancy," the announcement said, "but personnel can work on board them and stay for a limited period provided certain special safety precautions are followed."

The light carrier Independence will be towed to San Francisco where a radiation laboratory has been established to join the two transports, Gasconade and Crittenden.

Bullseye Ship

The heavy cruiser Salt Lake City and the destroyer Hughes will go to Bremerton. The heavy cruiser Pensacola recently arrived at the naval shipyard there.

The orange-painted "bullseye" ship, the battleship Nevada, will join the battleship New York now at Pearl Harbor. The Nevada was designated as the aiming point in the first bomb drop, but was missed by a wide margin and suffered little damage.

Two submarines, the Skipjack and

MORE TIRE FOR YOUR MONEY

There's EXTRA VALUE in the Tire that OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES

It's time to measure what you get for what you pay. No matter what you buy, the measure of true worth is in performance... how long it will serve you.

In tires there are several yardsticks... mileage, protection against bruising and road shocks, resistance to skidding. In all of these, the B.F. Goodrich Silvertown gives you extra value.

Its wider, flatter tread which covers more road area, spreads the wear more evenly. The more tire in contact with the road also means more tread to grip... to prevent skidding. Beneath this better tread is a 35% stronger cord body built with sturdier cords and more of them to give better resistance to road shock and bruising.

All this Extra Value adds up to today's big tire buy... the postwar B. F. Goodrich Silvertown—the tire that OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES.

Auto Dives Into Creek; Driver Lives

Franklin, Pa., May 10 (AP)—A Titusville motorist was extricated by two city policemen early today from the wreckage of his automobile, partly submerged in rain-swollen French creek after a plunge down a 35-foot embankment.

J. D. Peebles, Route 5, Titusville, dazed and slightly hurt, was aided to safety by policemen Alan Brown and Scott Lowers, Jr., who witnessed the accident. They said the car leaped a curb, tore away part of a residence porch and tumbled end over end to the creek.

Peebles suffered a possible nose fracture, face and head lacerations.

Chapter 22

Martina sat in the big shining kitchen and watched Hattie Hallows preparing the evening meal for her family. As she worked Hattie kept up a constant stream of conversation—small happenings of the neighborhood, amusing incidents in the life of her three children, the adventures of Anne Amory's radio serial characters in which she was vitally interested.

Martina listened with half her attention, answering in monosyllables. Hattie, sensing her preoccupation, redoubled her efforts at conversation.

"Surely there's something I could do to help," Martina said.

"Well, yes—if you want to. Set the table and make the salad. A tossed salad with cabbage and celery, lettuce and tomatoes—a little onion if you like. You'll find the things in the vegetable pan, the oil and vinegar on this shelf. Did you ever do so much cooking, Martina?"

"Not much. When I shared Julie Kendall's apartment we used to have little dinners, but I'm afraid most of it came from the delicatessen. You see, I was away from home so much—"

"I know," Hattie floured the bread board and began to roll out biscuits. "I guess there are some women who are just natural born cooks!"

"Like you," smiled Martina.

"Yes. Others have more spectacular gifts—like you! We used to listen to your radio program quite often. We thought your voice was sweet!"

Suddenly Martina said, "You know how Dan feels about things. Would he really hate it if I went back on the air?"

Hattie glanced at her quickly. "You're throat is better?"

"Definitely cured. I just found out for sure this morning. I—I guess I'm a little excited about it. Besides—Mr. Hueston thinks my voice is much improved!"

"Well, that's wonderful! You know, Martina, I've often wondered how I'd feel if I had a real gift—a real talent. Maybe if you do have one you're expected to share it with the world! Otherwise, why have it?"

"That's what I've been thinking. I have so little to do all day. I thought perhaps—Of course, we'd have to move up to town, but Dan would like that. This is his busy time at the shop and he'd like very much to be here so he can work later."

"Houses and apartments are so scarce just now," Hattie observed. "But we'd love to have you stay here."

"Thanks a lot, we'll think about it. Maybe it won't work out after all."

"Things usually adjust themselves," Hattie said easily.

The screen door banged open and Mike came in. He was growing taller, broader. "Hi Mom! Oh—company for supper, Hi, Martina!"

"Hello, yourself! Look, Mike—Mr. Allerton said if you could come down this week-end he'd have a horse ready for you to ride."

The boy's eyes sparkled as he looked questioning at his mother. "Gee, could I Mom?"

"I don't see why not, Mike."

"Gosh, that's swell! Thanks, Martina. You'll ride with me?"

"I should say so. You come out with Dan Friday evening, then."

"I'll be there with bells on."

"Lucy's late," Hattie said on a note of worry just as they heard the front door open and close.

"Gettin' snooty, ain't she?" Mike demanded, washing his hands at the sink. "Comin' in the front door like company!"

But Lucy didn't come directly into the kitchen and Mike went to see what was keeping her. He was back in a moment. "There's some guy in there with her! A new one every day!"

Martina smiled. "Lucy must like business college!"

"She's having a good time," Hattie answered. "I'm glad, she's a good girl."

"She's lovely."

"Well, look who's here!" Mike swung open the kitchen door to admit Nora Byron who had come up on the back porch.

Nora called gaily, "Put on an extra plate for supper! Oh!" She colored a little at sight of Martina chopping cabbage vigorously, trying hard not to appear any different, trying not to remember the moon hour. "Oh, hello, Martina. I didn't see you at first."

"Hello, Nora," Martina was afraid her smile looked a little strained, then reminded herself. "She doesn't know that I saw her having lunch with my husband—and it's all in my imagination that she seems a little flustered." Aloud she said, "Nice to see you, Nora. How's the nursing profession?"

"I'm between cases," Nora said, taking off her white hat and fluffing her golden hair at the kitchen mirror.

Martina was thinking, "Why doesn't she say she met Dan to-night and he took her to lunch. It would be the most natural thing in the world. But she doesn't want me to know it, she feels guilty about it, because she's still in love with him. Dan will tell me, though I know he will. He'll say 'I took time out for lunch to-day after all. Wish I'd known where to find you—"

but I ran into Nora on the street—"

Dan had said not to wait up, but in the big bed in Hattie's guest room Martina was restless and wide-eyed. At eleven-thirty she heard him come in and go directly to the kitchen to run a rag in the ice-box. Fifteen minutes later he came into the room. Martina put down her magazine and smiled at him.

"Hello, chicken! What are you doing awake?"

"Checking up on you. Tired?"

"When! Am I? Stopped downstairs for a bite to eat. I've been eating in snatches all day."

Martina lowered her eyes over the pain in them. Why didn't Dan tell her? Did he think his lunching with Nora too unimportant to mention—or too important? Wasn't he going to say anything about it?

Chapter 23

Mike came down with Dan on Friday evening and he and Martina rode all day Saturday. They watched Mr. Allerton milk and Mike helped Mrs. Allerton clean the chicken houses. Dan phoned and said he wouldn't take the usual Saturday afternoon half holiday, so Mike and Martina went fishing and swimming in the river two miles back of the house.

Mike said, "Gee, Martina, this is really swell. I'd like to live out here!"

"Bring your duds, Mike, and move in. There's plenty of room."

"I can't see why Dan doesn't like it!"

Martina held her breath. "Did he say he didn't like it?"

Mike flushed, realizing he was repeating something he shouldn't. "Oh, not—not really. He just said he'd like to be in town more."

"I guess next winter we'll have to move in. It's too far for Dan to drive every day—and we're off the bus route, you know."

"Yeah. But I think it would be swell out here in winter. You could skate on the river, maybe—and sleigh-ride!"

"We can come down on skating parties."

"Sure, we can do that."

They ate a leisurely Sunday dinner and then all went swimming again. In the late afternoon, Martina coming downstairs refreshed and relaxed found that Dan and Mike were still out somewhere. She went to the piano and playing a soft accompaniment, began to sing.

The melody flowing smooth and lucid through the darkening shadows of the room, released within her the pent-up emotions of the past weeks. She began to feel the same excitement that had raced in her veins in Graddy's office—a sureness of tone, a quality of production she had never known before. The exaltation increased as she sang on, until the pure lovely melody became one with the depth of her nature and the whole room became filled with it. She was completely lost in melody, as if she had at last found that which she had been so long seeking.

Dan left Mike with Mr. Allerton and came into the house. On the steps outside he paused, halted by the beauty of the song coming from inside the house. It was a simple melody, old and well-loved, and he felt his breath catch in his throat at the sheer artistry of the singer. He had not known that Martina could sing like this. He did not remember hearing her on the air, since hers had been a daytime program, and since he had known her she had not sung. Now he was amazed at what he heard. This was no ordinary voice—to its obvious quality was added the charm and personality of the singer, and Dan, even knowing so little about music, recognized it for what it was.

He stood in the doorway to the living-room, entranced as she drifted into the Brahms lullaby. There were no words at his command to form the impressions he received. He only knew that he was listening to a suddenly awakened artist.

She turned and saw him standing there, and the rich rosy color flooded up into her cheeks as her hands dropped from the keyboard. She said on a soft hushed note, "Dan, darling—"

He came forward and seated himself on the bench beside her, his arms about her. She looked up, half-fearful of his reaction.

"Martina, I didn't know—"

"You like my singing, Dan?"

"I'd be a dumb brute indeed if I didn't. But it makes me afraid—"

"Of what, darling?"

"This is a gift you can't keep, you must share it with the world—but it will come between us. If I had known the greatness of it, I—I should never have dared to ask you to become my wife—"

The shock of his words paled her face. "Dan, you mustn't say that!"

He went on doggedly. "It's the way I'm made, I guess, Martina—I—I can't share you with—with anybody!"

Her breath came short and fast. "As if you'd ever have to, darling. If you'd rather, I'll never sing another note!"

He shook his head. "I couldn't ever ask that of you. I'm not that much of a selfish fool. But don't you see, Martina, if you go back to your work—perhaps this sounds incredibly stupid—what sort of a life could we have together. You'd never be free!"

She managed a little laugh.

"Aren't you using your imagination rather freely, Dan? Remember I haven't gone anywhere yet—not even back to radio—and you're making a movie star of me! Before anything like that could happen, I'd have to have years of training—"

"With Graddy Hueston, I suppose!"

"Well, of course. And perhaps others, too."

He rose and began to pace up and down the room. He lit a cigarette, the smoke careened and settled. He ground the cigarette into an ash tray and promptly lit another. The gracious room passed and repassed under his nervous tread. Finally he paused before her, his blue eyes disturbed and unhappy.

"I—I'm afraid I just can't take it, Martina! Suppose some day somebody would address me as 'Mr. Wayland!'"

She laughed and came to him to wind her arms lovingly about his neck. "I hardly think that's likely, Dan. As I said, you're letting your imagination run wild! I'm not nearly as good as you and Graddy think. This couldn't have happened because of a few weeks rest! Besides I believe you're jealous—of my voice—and maybe of Graddy."

"You're darn right I am!"

"If I'd wanted to marry Graddy I would have—but I didn't. I married you—just as you wanted me and not Nora Byron."

He looked a little startled.

They said no more about it, but Martina was glad when Mike came in. It would have been difficult to keep off the subject if she and Dan had been alone.

The next day Dan looked up from his work to see Graddy Hueston leaning on a show case. It was quite evident that Graddy was not at all interested in the sparkling array of antique reproductions there displayed. In fact, Dan felt quite sure he knew what Graddy had come to see him about.

Chapter 24

Dan and Graddy Hueston walked down the street together and when they reached a small restaurant automatically turned in through the revolving door. They passed up the bar, took a small table in the rear and ordered coffee. Neither spoke until the steaming black liquid was placed before them. Finally it was Dan who said, "There's no use sparing, Hueston. What's on your mind?"

Graddy said realistically, "Martina, of course!"

Dan felt the hairs rise along the back of his neck, for somehow he sensed that what Graddy was going to say would make sense and he would have no defense against it, other than the mortal fear that clutched his heart—the fear that he was losing his wife.

He was silent now waiting for the other man to go on, seeing the controlled fury in Graddy Hueston's eyes, the baffled rage because this upstart husband of the one he continued to think of as his own particular creation should be in a position to defeat his purposes. It did not occur to either of them at the moment that they were not considering Martina's feelings or desires in the matter at all.

"Perhaps you don't know that Martina received a letter this morning in which Air-Waves, the largest advertising agency in the country, has asked her to audition for a singing star part with Van Loretto's orchestra, one of the finest and best-known organizations in radio."

Dan flushed at Graddy's assumption that it was necessary to explain to him the importance of the parties involved. What an ignorant he must consider him! But he managed to answer quietly, "No, I didn't know."

"Perhaps you don't know, either, that she has, absolutely refused the audition."

"And she told you that it—it was because of me that she refused?"

Graddy said scornfully, "Certainly not. Martina is not the kind of person to discuss her private affairs with anyone! But I could see it plainly—a blind man could!"

"And you brought me here to discuss my private affairs with you?"

Graddy thought, "Curse this fellow! I'll not allow him to get under my skin!" Aloud he said angrily, "You may discuss whatever you like. Frankly I'm not interested in you, Holloway, only insofar as you have the power to affect Martina's future. Perhaps I'd better tell you the whole thing," he went on a little more calmly. "I wouldn't have known that Martina got the letter except that Cliff Neale who was behind the whole thing, called me and then I later talked with Morgan of the agency. He assured me that Martina had phoned him refusing the audition. He said he was very sorry, for he had heard that she had great promise. I made him see that she was just being foolish and he agreed to hold the offer open. That's why I have come to you."

"Then Martina doesn't know—"

"Martina doesn't even know that I have learned about the offer."

"Oh!" The tightly restricting band that had seemed to be closing in on Dan's windpipe relaxed. A warm feeling of hope rose up within him. Martina had done this because of her love for him—Because she thought he didn't want her to go on

NEW PA. PENAL CODE PRESENTED IN HARRISBURG

Harrisburg, May 10 (AP)—Persons carrying or displaying a red flag in any public procession or gathering would be liable to fine or imprisonment under a proposed new state penal code.

The new code, now up for action in the state legislature, would punish offenders by a fine of $1,000 or a year in jail.

The code would also impose a fine of $2,000 or two years imprisonment against persons found guilty of a conspiracy to bribe amateur or professional athletes to throw or lay down in a game or any other sport.

Bribery would be defined as the offer of money or present or future contract or any valuable thing whatsoever with the aim of influencing an athlete "to lose or cause to be lost any game, contest, race or sport or to limit his or their or any team's margin of victory."

The 169-page penal code is described by Sen. Arthur C. Blass (R-Erie) as a complete remodeling of the state's criminal law.

Other provisions would:

Require the public display of the American flag at all public gatherings with the exception of meetings for religious worship.

Make the organizers or members of groups advocating "the use or advocacy of violence of any form of terrorism as a means of bringing about" political reform or change in the government subject to 10 years in jail or $10,000 fine.

Bars loitering or prowling at night around dwellings with violators punishable by a year in prison or a $1,000 fine or both.

Public exhibition of any deformed or mentally unsound person for any consideration would be punishable by two years imprisonment or a $2,000 fine.

Sale or exposure for sale, loan or lease of deadly weapons to anyone under 16 years would be punishable by a year in jail or $1,000 fine, while manufacture or sale of any toy weapon capable of discharging "a cartridge or other explosive" would face a similar penalty.

Sale, gift or furnishing of cigarette papers or tobacco to persons with her career!

But Graddy Hueston had begun to speak, persuasively now, waxing ever more eloquent in his description of the new enchanting quality of Martina's voice. Once Dan interrupted to say, "I know. I heard her sing. All you are saying is quite true."

"Then, man, don't you see what you're doing? It's not hard to understand what has happened. You've never been really sure of Martina since—"

Dan, torturing himself, finished, "Since the day her parents died and she turned to you! Our wedding day!"

Graddy flushed again. "I was not thinking of that, believe me. I only thought that knowing the beauty of her gift, you've always been afraid it might come between you. For Martina is not an ordinary girl, one who should settle down to the humdrum existence of being a mere housewife. Oh, she'd do it—for your sake—but don't you see how unhappy she'd be? Can't I make you understand that what I'm after is Martina's happiness?"

"And you don't think she can find it with me?"

"Oh, hang it all, Holloway—I!"

"Look!" Dan said quietly, "I don't know why I take the trouble to explain this to you, but here's the way it is. Since I heard Martina sing yesterday, I've known it was all up between us. Because I'm the kind of a man who wants to be the head of his own family—I want to be able to give all the good things of life to the women I love. Call it pride, call it pigheadedness, call it whatever you like. That's the way it is with me. Martina doesn't need my efforts. She doesn't need my care. With the fame and fortune you and your associates can give her, she won't even need my love. I promise you I'll make her see that. You tell your Mr. Morgan that Martina will come for the audition. I'll make the promise good!"

He stood up, ending the interview. But Graddy, with a hand on his arm detained him. Strangely he felt no sense of elation. He said a little hoarsely, "You're a bigger fool than I thought, Holloway! I'd take Martina any way I could get her! But evidently your love isn't big enough—I!"

Dan shook off the hand. "Well, there's one compensation—I won't need to have anything more to do with you!" And he stalked out of the restaurant, his blue eyes cold with misery.

He walked slowly back down the street toward his shop, but before he reached it he had made a decision. He'd have this thing out with Martina now—no use prolonging the matter.

The summer sky had become overcast with sullen clouds, and the house, when he reached it, had a strangely empty look. Afterwards he wondered why, even before he talked to Mrs. Allerton, he had known intuitively that Martina had gone!

Teacher Pay Issue Delays Appropriations

Harrisburg, May 10 (AP)—Only a decision on the extent of the state's share of an increase in teachers' salaries barred the path today of presentation to the Legislature of the Commonwealth's 1947-49 spending program.

Chairman Norman Wood (R-Lancaster) disclosed the general appropriation bill is "about ready" for approval by the House appropriations committee, but explained:

"The only holdup is a decision on how much the state will appropriate for school subsidies under legislation now before the Assembly."

He referred to the Sollenberger-Stuart bill calling for an increase in the mandated minimum pay of teachers from $1,400 to $2,400 with accompanying boosts in school subsidies which are estimated will cost the state an additional $75,000,000 a year.

GREEK-TURKISH AID UNSCATHED BY HOUSE FIGHT

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

Washington, May 10 (AP)—The administration's $400,000,000 Greek-Turkish aid program emerged unscathed Friday from its baptism of fire on the House floor.

Its supporters are weary but confident that they have the votes to ward off continuing attacks upon the measure designed to bolster the two Mediterranean countries against communistic pressures.

But behind the bill was one attempt to kill it outright—a move which went down to defeat by a standing vote of 127 to 37. Rejected, also, were two preliminary attempts to give the United Nations a say on southeastern Europe's problems.

Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas (D-Calif.) sought unsuccessfully to postpone any aid for Turkey for a year and to give the U.N. a chance to look into the situation.

Rep. Javits (R-NY) tried in vain to have Congress instruct President Truman to lay the Greek-Turkish problem before the U.N. while carrying out the assistance contemplated in the bill.

The House similarly turned thumbs down on Mrs. Douglas' demand that it write into the measure a specific prohibition against sending either Turkey or Greece atomic weapons or secrets. Opponents of that ban said existing law already prohibits any such action.

News Briefs

Oil City, Pa., May 10 (AP)—Miss Carrie A. Weber, an instructor in South Side Junior high school for more than 25 years and a member of the city faculty 37 years, died yesterday in Oil City hospital. An only sister survives, Sister Celestine, a teacher at Franklin. Funeral services will be held Monday.

Johnsburg, Pa., May 10 (AP)—Albert Beaver left his cleaning shop for a short time yesterday to join other citizens greeting high school students on their return from a trip to Washington. When he went back to the shop, robbers had taken clothing valued at $2,000.

Knapp Creek, N. Y., May 10 (AP)—A mother cat with three kittens has also adopted a baby red fox. The cub was found near the body of a mother fox killed by Hubert Peace. When it was placed with the kittens at Peace's home the mother cat promptly took over. The fox is fed from a doll's bottle.

Chapter 22

Martina sat in the big shining kitchen and watched Hattie Halloween preparing the evening meal for her family. As she worked Hattie kept up a constant stream of conversation—small happenings of the neighborhood, amusing incidents in the life of her three children, the adventures of Anne Amory's radio serial characters in which she was vitally interested.

Martina listened with half her attention, answering in monosyllables. Hattie sensing her preoccupation, redoubled her efforts at conversation.

"Surely there's something I could do to help," Martina said.

"Well, yes—if you want to. Set the table and make the salad. A tossed salad with cabbage and celery, lettuce and tomatoes—a little onion if you like. You'll find the things in the vegetable pan, the oil and vinegar on this shelf. Did you ever do so much cooking, Martina?"

"Not much. When I shared Julie Kendall's apartment we used to have little dinners, but I'm afraid most of it came from the delicatessen. You see, I was away from home so much—"

"I know," Hattie floured the bread board and began to roll out biscuits. "I guess there are some women who are just natural born cooks!"

"Like you," smiled Martina.

"Yes. Others have more spectacular gifts—like you! We used to listen to your radio program quite often. We thought your voice was sweet!"

Suddenly Martina said, "You know how Dan feels about things. Would he really hate it if I went back on the air?"

Hattie glanced at her quickly. "You're throat is better?"

"Definitely cured. I just found out for sure this morning. I—I guess I'm a little excited about it. Besides—Mr. Hueston thinks my voice is much improved!"

"Well, that's wonderful! You know, Martina, I've often wondered how I'd feel if I had a real gift—a real talent. Maybe if you do have one you're expected to share it with the world! Otherwise, why have it?"

"That's what I've been thinking. I have so little to do all day. I thought perhaps—Of course, we'd have to move up to town, but Dan would like that. This is his busy time at the shop and he'd like very much to be here so he can work later."

"Houses and apartments are so scarce just now," Hattie observed. "But we'd love to have you stay here."

"Thanks a lot, we'll think about it. Maybe it won't work out after all."

"Things usually adjust themselves," Hattie said easily.

The screen door banged open and Mike came in. He was growing taller, broader. "Hi Mom! Oh—company for supper, H. Martina!"

"Hello, yourself! Look, Mike—Mr. Allerton said if you could come down this week-end he'd have a horse ready for you to ride."

The boy's eyes sparkled as he looked questioningly at his mother. "Gee, could I, Mom?"

"I don't see why not, Mike."

"Gosh, that's swell! Thanks, Martina. You'll ride with me?"

"I should say so. You come out with Dan Friday evening, then."

"I'll be there with bells on."

"Lucy's late," Hattie said on a note of worry just as they heard the front door open and close.

"Gettin' snooty, ain't she?" Mike demanded, washing his hands at the sink. "Comin' in the front door like company!"

But Lucy didn't come directly into the kitchen and Mike went to see what was keeping her. He was back in a moment. "There's some guy in there with her! A new one every day!"

Martina smiled. "Lucy must like business college!"

"She's having a good time," Hattie answered. "I'm glad, she's a good girl!"

"She's lovely."

"Well, look who's here!" Mike swung open the kitchen door to admit Nora Byron who had come up on the back porch.

Nora called gaily. "Put on an extra plate for supper! Oh!" She colored a little at sight of Martina chopping cabbage vigorously, trying hard not to appear any different, trying not to remember the noon hour. "Oh, hello, Martina. I didn't see you at first."

"Hello, Nora." Martina was afraid her smile looked a little strained, then reminded herself. "She doesn't know that I saw her having lunch with my husband—and it's all in my imagination that she seems a little flustered." Aloud she said, "Nice to see you, Nora. How's the nursing profession?"

"I'm between cases," Nora said, taking off her white hat and fluffing her golden hair at the kitchen mirror.

Martina was thinking. "Why doesn't she say she met Dan downtown and he took her to lunch? It would be the most natural thing in the world. But she doesn't want me to know it, she feels guilty about it, because she's still in love with him. Dan will tell me, though I know he will. He'll say 'I took time out for lunch to-day after all. With I'd known where to find you—"

but I ran into Nora on the street—"

Dan had said not to wait up, but in the big bed in Hattie's guest room Martina was restless and wide-eyed. At eleven-thirty she heard him come in and go directly to the kitchen to rummage in the ice-box. Fifteen minutes later he came into the room. Martina put down her magazine and smiled at him.

"Hello, chicken! What are you doing awake?"

"Checking up on you tired?"

"Where? I'm I? Stopped downstairs for a bite to eat. I've been eating in snatches all day."

Martina lowered her eyes over the pain in them. Why didn't Dan tell her? Did he think his lunching with Nora too unimportant to mention—or too important? Wasn't he going to say anything about it?

Chapter 23

Mike came down with Dan on Friday evening and he and Martina rode all day Saturday. They watched Mr. Allerton milk and Mike helped Mrs. Allerton clean the chicken houses. Dan phoned and said he wouldn't take the usual Saturday afternoon half holiday, so Mike and Martina went fishing and swimming in the river two miles back of the house.

Mike said, "Gee, Martina, this is really swell! I'd like to live out here!"

"Bring your duds, Mike, and move in. There's plenty of room."

"I can't see why Dan doesn't like it."

NEW PA. PENAL CODE PRESENTED IN HARRISBURG

Harrisburg, May 10 (AP)—Persons carrying on displaying a red flag in any public procession or gathering would be liable to fine or imprisonment under a proposed new state penal code.

The new code, now up for action in the state legislature, would punish offenders by a fine of $1,000 or a year in jail.

The code would also impose a fine of $2,000 or two years' imprisonment against persons found guilty of a conspiracy to bribe amateur or professional athletes to throw or lay down in a game or any other sport.

Bribery would be defined as the offer of money or present or future contract or any valuable thing whatsoever with the aim of influencing an athlete to lose or cause to be lost any game, contest, race or sport or to limit his or their or any team's margin of victory."

The 189-page penal code is described by Sen. Arthur C. Blass (R-Erie) as a complete remodeling of the state's criminal law.

Other provisions would:

Require the public display of the American flag at all public gatherings, with the exception of meetings for religious worship.

Makes the organizers or members of groups advocating "the use or advocacy of violence of any form of terrorism as a means of bringing about political reform or change in the government" subject to 10 years in jail or $10,000 fine.

Bears loitering or prowling at night around dwellings with violators punishable by a year in prison or a $1,000 fine or both.

Public exhibition of any deformed or mentally unsound person for any consideration would be punishable by two years imprisonment or a $2,000 fine.

Promoters or participants in athletic contests or exhibitions in which persons compete for more than 12 hours in any day would be subject to a year in jail or $1,000 fine.

Control Gun Sales

Sale or exposure for sale, loan or lease of deadly weapons to anyone under 16 years would be punishable by a year in jail or $1,000 fine, while manufacture or sale of any toy weapon capable of discharging "a cartridge or other explosive" would face a similar penalty.

Auto Dives Into Creek; Driver Lives

Franklin, Pa., May 10 (AP)—A Titusville motorist was extricated by two city policemen early today from the wreckage of his automobile, partly submerged in rain-swollen French creek after a plunge down a 35-foot embankment.

J. D. Peebles, Route 5, Titusville, dazed and slightly hurt, was aided to safety by policemen Alan Brown and Scott Lowers, Jr., who witnessed the accident. They said the car leaped a curb, tore away part of a residence porch and tumbled end over end to the creek.

Peebles suffered a possible nose fracture, face and head lacerations.

OPERATORS BACK. Pittsburgh, May 10 (AP)—Officials of the Pennsylvania Bell Telephone company predicted today enough operators would be on duty over the week-end to handle the expected Mother's Day volume of calls despite a vote by about 400 operators to honor existing picket lines set up by employees of the Western Electric company.

WOULD MAKE VOTE RECORD OPEN TO ALL

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, (AP)—The voting record of your senator or representative isn't easy to get.
Congress isn't showing any signs of making it easier although Rep. Hale Boggs, Louisiana Democrat, has offered a bill to do just that.
The bill went to a committee, then to a sub-committee, for consideration which hasn't started. And this session of Congress is almost over.
Library Has Record
The bill, if it became law, would do this:
By writing to the Congressional library, any newspaper editor or group of 10 or more citizens could get any congressman's voting record free. (Boggs said he made it a group of 10 or more citizens just to prevent some individual "crackpot" from bothering the librarians.)
The Congressional Library now keeps a record of every congressman's voting and gives it to him at the end of the year—but just his own. You, as a citizen or editor, couldn't write to the library and get your congressman's record.
Not even a congressman can get from the library the voting record of any other congressman. The library won't give it to him.
Three Ways Now
How then can you, a private citizen, get a record of your congressman's votes? Here are three ways:
1. You can write, but must pay for the service, to a private Washington organization which keeps such records.
2. If your local library has it, you can search through the Congressional Record of each day's work in Congress. That's a gigantic task.
3. You can look up the files of your local newspapers. Papers which print votes in Congress generally use only those on major issues.
No Law Against It
Why won't the Congressional Library give even a congressman the voting record of another congressman? There's no law against it.
This writer asked top people in the library and, in brief, got this answer: "We did it until 1942. Then Congress or, rather, the appropriations committee of the House, indicated strongly it wanted us to stop doing it." (That powerful committee decides how much money a government agency, like the Congressional Library, can have to keep running.)
This is what the librarians meant by that statement:
In 1940 a House member ran against a senator, for the latter's seat, and defeated him.
The House member got the sen-

Bride Posts Bail In Fraud Allegation

Erie, Pa., June 10 (AP)—Pleading innocent to a charge of obtaining $7,440 by false pretense from her husband's uncle, Mrs. Linda Katzman, 35, attractive English wife, posted $1,500 for grand jury action at a hearing before Alderman John Curtis yesterday.
Her husband, Dr. James Katzman, Erie dentist, did not appear at the hearing.
His uncle, Harry Katzman, Erie butcher, said she told him she was an heiress awaiting the arrival of a million pounds sterling from the sale of a factory in England and that she borrowed from him on this pretension.
Attorney Lindley McClelland, counsel for Mrs. Katzman, said the action was brought against his client to force annulment of her marriage after her husband's family learned she was neither Jewish nor wealthy as her husband had allegedly represented her to be.

ator's voting record from the library and the senator got the House member's record the same way.
They used those records in the campaign. Two years later members of the appropriations committee remembered that campaign.
When the librarian, Dr. Luther Evans, went up before them to talk about money for the library, the Record shows he was told this:
The money congressmen vote for running the library shouldn't be used for gathering information (voting records) to be "used against" them. A committee member further said that if the library kept this up "you will find it embarrassing to you some of these days."
Right there the library quit giving even a congressman another congressman's voting record.

HIGHWAY WORK BEING PUSHED, SMOCK ASSERTS

Bedford, Pa., June 10 (AP)—Pennsylvania bus company executives heard today that the state is proceeding as rapidly as possible with its big post war improvement program despite continued handicaps of higher prices and material shortages.

Secretary Ray F. Smock of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways told the Pennsylvania Bus association at its 26th annual convention here that sufficient funds are available to complete work slated for 1947 and 1948 but added in a prepared address:

"Whether we can go ahead without modernization on a scale demanded by motorists after next year is a question which the department cannot answer. We plan for and spend only the funds that are available."

He said the average cost for a mile of 16-foot wide pavement rose from $11,380 to 1909 to $1,000,000 now for three miles of four-lane divided highway.

Shortage of Bidders
"The department has been holding road lettings almost weekly since last February," Smock said. "We have been able to award some contracts. There still is a shortage of contractors bidding on the work."

It has been necessary for the department to defer projects, badly needed, to finance other jobs more imperative, because of increased costs.

He said projects among consideration for early construction are two additional bridges across the Susquehanna River at Harrisburg, a by-pass on the Lincoln Highway at Lancaster, modernization of the Harrisburg-Lancaster highway, and a by-pass at Pottsville.

"Every community of any size in the commonwealth has at least one traffic artery needing modernization," he declared. "We cannot build them all at once, even if funds are available."

SHE WANTS NEW CAR
Pittsburgh, June 10 (AP)—Miss Loretta Roche of Castle Shannon took her fight for a new automobile to court yesterday, with an equity suit which asked the common pleas court to restrain the Dormont Oldsmobile company, and the manufacturer from selling any cars at that agency until she gets delivery on the one she ordered 15 months ago.

The company said Miss Roche's name was far down on its waiting list of prospective buyers.

Things Of The Soil FINAL PLANTING DATES ARE HERE

It seems that even as we talk about spring frosts and first planting dates that the calendar brings around the "last safe date" for certain important crops. This is true of early June. Already the "must" sign is put out for several vegetables.

Cantaloupes require 100 to 120 days from the date of planting seed to maturity. It is simple arithmetic to compute 100 days from June 10 to discover the amazing date of September 8.

Salsify will barely have time to mature if sown at once, as approximately 120 days are required for root maturity from date of starting.

It is now too late to sow seed for celery plants. However, gardeners may buy rooted plants from commercial sources and set them out any time during June. It is usually wise to set out plants for the late crop by the last week in this month.

Pumpkins should be planted at once. Here is another crop that requires from 100 to 130 days to mature—meaning toward late September under favorable conditions. Growing more pumpkins for basement storage over winter is urged. Idle fence rows are ideal sites for this hardy vegetable.

Cucumbers for making pickles are an important item in garden plans. Around 60 days are required for

INDIANS HOPE PARTITION MAY BE TEMPORARY

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Indians attending United Nations sessions at Lake Success are hopeful that the partitioning of their homeland will be only a trial separation and that a reconciliation of the Hindu and Moslem communities will be effected once they have said goodbye to the British.

These feelings seem more wishful than hopeful, however, at this early stage in settling the future of the sub-continent's four hundred millions.

They are expressed by members of sympathizers of the Hindu-dominated all-India congress party, who have kept Indian presentation in the U.N. all to themselves and away from the Moslem leagues. The league yesterday (Monday), at a session in New Delhi disturbed by a riot enacted by non-league Moslems, voted to set up the separate dominion of Pakistan, and the Congress party is expected to vote for establishment of its dominion of Hindustan on Saturday.

May Seek Independence
Thus, the principles for partitioning India will be settled. The details of livelihood on both sides of the lines are something else to be worked out.

Even with the split-up, Hindustan and Pakistan will rate among the most populous countries on earth and will be inter-dependent to a certain degree whether they like it or not.

Whether they will be so dependent upon each other for security and economic reasons that they must eventually reunite remains to be seen. The best the British could get out of the whole deal would be a choice by both dominions to remain in the British Commonwealth instead of proclaiming themselves independent, which either or both may do.

Indian politicians of all stripes appear to be working toward one common objective: To keep India, once free of the British "Raj," from finding itself again a prey to exploitation from the outside.

Fear Outsiders
But the division of the sub-continent only multiplies his task and the rival leaders in the two major dominions may find it difficult to keep outsiders from playing one against the other.

The first major internal reform already undertaken by Indians in the interim government at New Delhi is a step toward abolition of untouchability in the Hindu caste system.

Many Hindu leaders, including Jawaharlal Nehru, who stands on the very top rung of the caste system as a Kashmiri Brahmin, refuse to recognize untouchability, and Mohandas K. Gandhi lives among the untouchables. There is a practical political angle to raising the lot of the so-called scheduled castes, however, and the leaders are doubtless mindful of the many easy conversions to Christianity from the lowest ranks who were outcast from the Hindu fold.

Open To Communism
Such an anachronistic pattern would provide a ripe field for any intruding elements such as Communism with the promise of lifting the standard of living.

The caste system has been a target of Moslem extremists in their attacks on the congress party. But although Islam preaches the brotherhood of man, many Moslems are members of the congress party and against the Moslem league.

The Russians, near neighbors of Northern India in the Himalayas, thus far have been most circumspect in their dealings with Indians. They have teamed up in the United Nations in at least two major issues involving human rights and have met cordially in dealings concerned with Asiatic problems.

soil moisture is likely to be deficient. Continue to remember the profitable compost heap and utilize all safe waste vegetation (including immature weeds) on it.

Correct broody hens as soon as their broodiness is detected.

June 21 to 30
Set out vigorously rooted celery plants at once. Include a row or two of the green Giant Pascal.

Begin culling the laying hens as soon as production declines.

Strew air-slaked lime in a heavy band around plant beds invaded by slugs and snails.

Combat leafhoppers on potatoes to prevent hopperburn.

Do not allow newly planted evergreens to suffer from lack of moisture. Soak the rooting soil every few days.

Plan and plant for a full pantry of canned and dried vegetables next winter.

Red spiders cause infested plants to resemble plants which have been burned or affected with blight. Dusting sulphur will usually repel the pests.

If any garden insect enemies prove troublesome, write the editor for control information.

Now is a good time to call in a reputable tree surgeon to inspect damaged or otherwise defective shade trees. A tree worth having is worth caring for.

Mrs. Amelie Edgerton Marshall, 36 (above), was listed by New York police as a suicide after leaping from her penthouse apartment. Mrs. Marshall jumped, police said, after seeing the body of her husband, Horace, who had fallen to his death from the apartment.

JUDGES' RAISE GOES TO SENATE

Harrisburg, June 10 (AP)—Legislation to increase salaries of state Supreme Court justices and all other Pennsylvania jurists was headed for a Senate vote today.

The measure was amended in the upper branch last night to give the state's jurists an average boost of 18 per cent according to Sen. John M. Walker (R-Allegheny), sponsor of the proposal and chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee.

The House at the same time moved toward a vote a series of bills increasing by 10 per cent the pay of county employees, whose salaries are fixed by the state Legislature.

The judicial pay measure was amended by Walker to provide these changes in judges' salaries: Supreme Court, chief justice, $20,500 to $23,500; associate judges, $19,500 to $22,500; Superior Court, president judge, $18,500 to $21,500; associate judges, $18,000 to $21,000; Common Pleas judges in Philadelphia, $14,500 to $16,500; counties above 100,000 except Philadelphia, $12,000 to $14,000; blackberries know and employ to keep their plants free from certain borers and virus diseases. It is a simple operation. For example, after the female of the raspberry cane borer punctures the tender cane tip and deposits her egg, she makes two rows of holes around the cane about an inch apart, one above and the other below the egg. This is done to prevent continued growth destroying the egg by pressure. Of course, the girdling causes the cane tip to wilt. Therefore, prompt roguing out and burning of the affected tip permits complete destruction of the egg before it hatches and thereby provides an effective way to control the borer. A similar degree of control by roguing is obtained against the red-necked cane borer. Too, it is effective in reducing certain virus (sap-borne) diseases, such as mosaic.

The first mentioned insect, the raspberry cane borer, usually propagates in wild raspberry plants. The egg-laying female beetle appears in early June. If the egg is permitted to hatch, the young larva burrows downward inside the cane, beginning soon after it hatches in July. The second year it may cause the entire cane to die.

To control this pest by roguing it is necessary to watch raspberry canes carefully in June and cut out the egg-infested tips as soon as discovered by the characteristic wilting. The egg is usually deposited about six inches below the tip and the cut, therefore, should be made below the lowest circle of holes. The removed portion should be burned at once to destroy the egg. Likewise, dying canes caused by the second-year ravages of the borer should be removed and burned as soon as detected.

Presence of the red-necked cane borer is recognized by swellings, similar to galls, on infested canes. Even if this pest does not cause the cane to die, it usually prevents fruit production. Prompt removal of spent bearing canes is necessary.

Virus diseases are usually more severe on blackberries than on raspberries. Such diseases are carried to all parts of the plant in the sap and are easily transmitted from infected to healthy plants by plant lice. To rogue out a diseased plant does not prevent the roots from sending up infected suckers later but removal of the virus-infected top reduces dangers from transmitting insects.

Every grower of cultivated raspberries, blackberries and dewberries should so arrange his tasks that he can prune out the old canes (the ones that have borne the fruit) soon after berries are harvested. Not only does this prompt operation remove potential disease dangers and such insects as the two borers already discussed, but it throws into the new canes the vigor and strength which otherwise would be wasted on the old canes. Too, pruning soon after the harvest season permits removal of crowding or inferior new canes.

Many growers in this region are adopting the post-harvest spraying precaution to reduce anthracnose and cane blight, also spur blight of red raspberries. This consists of a weak solution of Bordeaux mixture (a 2½-5-50 strength) applied as soon as possible after berries are all harvested. Of course, if old or bearing canes are pruned out before this spray is applied, effects on the new canes will be far more beneficial.

EBENSBURG HAS $90,000 BLAZE

Ebensburg, Pa., June 10 (AP)—Officials today were checking loss, which may run as high as $90,000 from flames which last night swept one business building and damaged two others on High street in the heart of Ebensburg's business district.

Flames originated in Aroney's Food Market, a large one-story frame building spread rapidly through the store, and broke out through the rear of the structure. The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

The J. Covitch & Sons Men's Clothing store, next door to Aroney's, was badly damaged. Loss to this building, owned by Pennsylvania Congressman Harve Tibbott, was estimated at $25,000.

Griffith's restaurant, on the opposite side of Aroney's store, was damaged by smoke.

Fireman Overcome
Ebensburg Fire Chief Michael Aroney, who works in Aroney's store, said total loss at the three buildings might run to $85,000 or $90,000. He is a brother of the owners, Herbert J. and Anthony Aroney, who estimated their own loss at more than $50,000, much of it from the destruction of refrigeration equipment.

Herbert Wagner, a member of the Ebensburg Fire department, was overcome while fighting the fire. He was taken to his home after first-aid treatment.
Fire departments from Nanty Glo and Cresson aided in the fire fighting.

TEACHING YOUR DOG TO "CARRY" Making Your Dog a Better Citizen by Tom Farley

To train your dog to carry, first secure a wooden dumbbell of the right size for your dog. This should never be left where the dog can play with it but should be used only for his lessons. Bring your dog to a sitting position and show him the dumbbell saying "Take It". If he refuses, press lightly behind the teeth (picture 1) and open his mouth. Insert the dumbbell and tell him to "Hold It". Then keep one hand under his chin to prevent his dropping it until he understands that you mean for him to keep it in his mouth. Praise him extravagantly when he holds it (picture 2) and when he understands this command put one hand on dumbbell and say "Give" (picture 3). If he does not release lower and lower (picture 4) until he is taking it from the hand on the floor and finally will take it without the hand (picture 5). When he has mastered this he may be taken for a walk but if he drops the dumbbell make him pick it up himself—don't hand it to him.

When a millionaire auto tycoon, who rose from humble beginnings with little more than a tremendous store of energy and a fierce individualism, resents being turned out to pasture on his palatial west coast estate, his only recourse is to secretly buy a run-down filling station with a poor but ambitious young man. At least that is what happens in Warner Bros.' exciting new comedy-romance, "That Way With Women," starring Dane Clark, Martha Vickers and Sydney Greenstreet.

WEDNESDAY
There isn't a member of the family, from grandpa down to the youngest tot, who can fail to enjoy "Little Mister Jim," new M-G-M offering featuring "Butch" Jenkins on the Majestic screen.

Here is the story of an eight-year-old boy brought up on an Army post, adoring his understanding young parents, guided in his childhood decisions by a wise Chinese houseman, getting embroiled in such familiar childhood incidents as a birthday party in which the guests are more or less "blackmailed" into bringing presents; learning to ride his first bicycle; turning his nose up at "girl stuff."

Ray Milland and Barbara Stanwyck, co-stars of "California."

One of the most spectacular and important productions ever to bear the Paramount trade mark is due next Thursday on the screen of the Majestic theatre. It is the technicolor adventure-romance, "California," co-starring Ray Milland, Barbara Stanwyck and Barry Fitzgerald, with a supporting cast of more than 5,000 headed by George Coulouris, Albert Dekker, Anthony Quinn, Frank Faylen and Gavin Muir.

Directed by John Farrow, "California" is set in the days before the state was part of the Union, when it was the storm center of violently opposing factions—those who wanted it to become part of the growing republic and those who wanted it to be an empire.

Ray Milland portrays a rugged soldier of fortune in this, his first outdoor action picture. He is romantically teamed with Miss Stanwyck, who will be seen as a glamorous gambler and adventuress. Their love story is told against the action-packed struggle of California toward her destiny.

FREE TRAVEL
Chicago, (AP)—Miss Burch McRae has decided that after 38 years of working for a railroad it is about time she does some traveling—for free.

She has retired from her position as stenographer for the New York Central Railroad at the busy LaSalle Street station and will use her pass to see other parts of the country.

"I've never even been to New York," Miss McRae said.

STALEY TAKEN TO PRISON FOR LIFE SENTENCE

The gates of Eastern penitentiary were scheduled to close behind Robert L. Staley, 23-year-old Mechanicburg youth today as he begins a life of imprisonment for the claw-hammer slaying of Herbert L. Humpert, 70, Gardner's bachelor farmer.

Staley had stood impassive in Adams county court Saturday afternoon while Judge W. C. Sheely pronounced sentence, "That you shall undergo imprisonment in Eastern penitentiary for the remainder of your natural life."

While Staley's sister, Mrs. Mary Scott, Fairfield, sobbed loudly, the prisoner was led from the court house by Sheriff John E. Millhimes, Deputy B. E. Bixler, Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster and Borough Officer Kenneth Tawney.

Taken To Harrisburg
Removed to the county jail Staley was given a few moments to get his clothing together and then was removed immediately by the sheriff and his deputy to the Dauphin county prison at Harrisburg. The trip to Harrisburg was started within an hour after an Adams county jury at 2:32 o'clock Saturday afternoon had brought in a verdict of guilty in the first degree with life imprisonment. This morning the sheriff and Deputy Blaine E. Walter left here at 7 o'clock for Harrisburg to pick up the prisoner and drive him to Eastern penitentiary.

Meantime Staley's partner in the slaying of Humpert, Ray H. Simmons, also of Mechanicburg, remained in the Dauphin county jail awaiting disposition of a motion for new trial brought by his attorneys after a jury earlier last week had found him guilty of first-degree murder and recommended the death penalty.

Warns Spectators
When court was resumed Saturday afternoon to hear the verdict reached by the jury in the Staley trial Judge W. C. Sheely told the group of nearly 100 gathered in the court room that there was to be no public demonstration no matter what verdict was brought in. Some of the spectators had arrived at 7 o'clock Saturday morning and brought lunch with them.

The court not only would permit (Please Turn to Page 7)

New Oxford Church Will Get New Bell

A newly-purchased bell is to be installed in the steeple of St. Mary's Catholic church, New Oxford, next week with a special service on Sunday afternoon, May 18, when the Most Rev. George L. The purchase of the new bell for New Oxford was financed recently by contributions from parishioners as well as persons living outside the parish, including some non-Catholics. TOWN IS FILLED WITH VISITORS OVER WEEK-END

Adams county was the mecca Sunday for thousands of motorists, many of them attracted by the beauty of the countryside in its spring attire of new green and the millions of blossoms of the fruit trees, for which the county is widely famous.

Motorists by the thousands, the majority of them from other points in Pennsylvania, but many from other states, as far away as Louisiana and California, visited Gettysburg Saturday and Sunday, in addition to a number of large buses which brought parties here.

State police of the Gettysburg sub-station said traffic on the main highways, north and south and east and west, was "unusually heavy" Sunday, beginning shortly after noon.

Hotels, rooming houses and cabins reported business was good over the week-end, and restaurants, gasoline service stations and souvenir stands enjoyed a good trade.

Many Tour Field
Sunday was the heaviest day, although many of the bus trips were reported Friday and Saturday.

An estimated 2,268 persons visited the battlefield Sunday, and 1,344 on Saturday, according to Alvin Baker, superintendent of the Gettysburg National cemetery. There were 91 guided trips over the battlefield Sunday, and 49 such trips on Saturday, he said.

Among notables to visit Gettysburg and the field Sunday was Conrad Nagle, well-known screen star, and party, including his daughter.

State police said the only accidents reported to them were of minor nature, and borough police said their slate was clean. At times during the afternoon the cars passing around Center Square resembled a parade, police said.

The weather was ideal for a Sunday outing, and the amount of traffic was evidence that thousands were taking advantage of the warm day, and almost cloudless, sunny sky. Hundreds of motorists visited the upper part of the county, where fruit and other trees were in full bloom. The "red bud" on the battlefield attracted much favorable comment.

WINNIE JUDD ESCAPES AGAIN

Phoenix, Ariz., May 12 (AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd, who killed two women and shipped their dismembered bodies to Los Angeles in a trunk in 1931, escaped early today from the state hospital for the insane, Dr. John A. Larson, superintendent, announced.

It was her third escape from the institution since she was saved from execution by being adjudged insane. Her escape from a second floor cell-room was discovered by an attendant at 12:30 a. m. She was last seen at 9 p. m. last night.

Dr. Larson used the word "convalescence" in explaining escape of the 41-year-old murderess.

He said she was believed to have used a key which opened two doors, one on the second floor—which allowed her to descend a stairway—and another on the ground level.

A gate on the north side of the hospital grounds was found open, Dr. Larson said.

ELKS OBSERVE MOTHER'S DAY; DR. CLINE TALKS

"America is going to be great, not because of the atomic bomb, but America is going to be great as you and I as individuals have caught the vision of our mothers," Dr. Thomas L. Cline, professor of English, Gettysburg college, declared in a Mother's Day address Sunday night at the annual Mother's Day exercises held by Gettysburg Lodge No. 1045, B.P.O. Elks, at the Elks' home on York street.

After paying tribute to mothers everywhere, Dr. Cline injected an appeal for the youth of Gettysburg. "You and I know that our country is built for adults. Can't we, as adults, grasp this thing, and build a little more for the boys and girls who will be the future fathers and mothers of America?"

Dr. Cline, who will sever his connection with Gettysburg college at the end of the present school year, declared, in opening his address, that "this is probably my last public appearance in Gettysburg," and added: "What could be finer than to make my last talk an address on Mother's Day?"

Important Decision

Addressing much of his talk to youth, Dr. Cline said: "Man when he selects the mother of his children has probably made the most important decision of his life," and added that "I think the finest moment in a boy's or girl's life comes when he or she reaches the capacity to see the holy, the spiritual and the good in life."

START MAKING APPLE PICTURE

Cameramen came to Gettysburg Sunday to start taking technicolor pictures for the moving pictures of the apple industry in Adams county.

Robert S. Fisher and Victor Lukens, representing the Audio Productions, Inc., New York, arrived late Sunday afternoon with thousands of feet of film and several cameras and this morning toured the apple blossom belt of the county preparatory to taking the initial "shots."

Mongolian Troops, Soviet Planes Invade Sinkiang

By HAROLD K. MILKS
Nanking, June 10 (AP)—The official Central News Agency today said government military sources confirmed reports that Outer Mongolian troops, supported by four Soviet warplanes, invaded Sinkiang province Thursday. The agency said the Mongols had penetrated to a depth of more than 200 miles and now were fighting Chinese defense troops 200 miles northeast of Tihua.

The official report followed closely a similar report by semi-official sources. Until today the Ministry of National Defense had suppressed a stream of excited cables to local newspapers by their Chinese correspondents in Sinkiang reporting details.

Central News Agency reported in a dispatch from Tihua that "bitter fighting" was continuing between Sinkiang troops and invading forces from the Soviet-sponsored Mongolian republic.

The dispatch, the agency said, reported that warplanes accompanying the Mongolian cavalry and other troops into Sinkiang strafed Chinese troop concentrations and bombed and strafed civilians and towns in the invasion path.

No Chinese government official here immediately confirmed these reports but an official military spokesman referred the Associated Press to the Central News Agency report. The agency is a government organ.

Military sources said it was believed that only a small number of native troops and a few trained Chinese officers comprise the western Sinkiang garrison. The region has been in a state of continued unrest since Outer Mongolia was granted independence.

Military observers said that because of the great distances involved and the lack of readily available forces it was unlikely the government would dispatch adequate defense forces to Sinkiang.

Playground To Open Wednesday

All set kids? The borough playground at the high school opens Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Supervisor Fred P. Haehnlein today announced that nearly everything is in readiness for the expected onslaught of hundreds of youngsters eager to use the swings, slides, jungle jim and other contraptions dedicated to getting more youthful joy out of life.

The combination equipment—which includes everything from flying rings to climbing poles, ladders and flying bars—will not be in readiness for the opening, however.

INVITE YOUTHS TO B.B. SCHOOL HERE NEXT WEEK

Further details on the St. Louis Cardinal baseball school to be held on the Gettysburg college baseball diamond June 15, 20 and 21 under sponsorship of the local Rotary club were revealed Monday evening at the regular meeting of Rotary at the YWCA.

O. H. Benson, chairman of the Youth committee, urged members to "do missionary work among the young men of the community" to secure as many as possible to attend the school.

"Men between the ages of 17 and 22 inclusive should register at the college diamond Thursday, June 19 at 9 a. m. to receive full benefit of the six full sessions that will be held. They are to bring their own uniforms, if they have them, shoes and gloves. Bats and balls will be furnished. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held so that as much instruction as possible during the three days will be given by the big league players who will be present as instructors. All young men within a 50 mile radius or more are invited to attend," Benson said.

Present New Members
Paul Ecker and Walter B. Lane were introduced as new members of Rotary by President Dr. Chester N. Gilt.

C. Arthur Brame, commanding officer of the Adams County State Guard unit which will be deactivated at the end of the week was praised by the club for his work in forming the unit and in serving as its head since its formation in 1943. G. Henry Roth presented a short history of the local state guard.

Col. Alfred McKenney, commanding officer of the ROTC unit at Gettysburg college, introduced the speaker, Prof. Frederick C. Ahrens, of the faculty of Gettysburg college. He spoke on "A Jeep Tour Through Europe" in which he outlined his army service time for the U. S. army. In Czechoslovakia, after the war was over, hundreds of German civilians sought to become prisoners of war, he said. A German civilian leaving Czechoslovakia had to leave behind everything but 30 marks, while a prisoner of war was permitted to take with him most of his goods. Germans tried bribery to become technically prisoners of war, he said.

MISS SWEITZER TO AID Y-TEENS

Miss Grace Sweitzer has been secured as a part-time worker for the Y-Teens. Mrs. Dwight F. Putman, Y-Teens chairman, reported Monday at the regular meeting of the YWCA board held at the local "YW."

Miss Sweitzer, a student at Gettysburg college, will serve as part-time instructor until February, Mrs. Putman said. At that time she will conclude her studies at the college here and return to New York city. A native of York, she served several summers as playground supervisor and last summer served in a tenement housing project in New York city.

Mrs. Robert Fortenbaugh was named as historian for the "Y" board. Mrs. A. Harrison Barr conducted the devotions on the theme "The Need of Prayer in Everyday Life."

The board expressed its appreciation to Miss Margaret Myers for her years of service to the YWCA and for compiling a history of its first 10 years. Reports from the various committee chairmen completed the meeting.

SCHOOL BOARD DELAYS ACTION ON '48 BUDGET

The Gettysburg school board will close its books as of July 7, it was decided at Monday night's regular meeting of the board at the high school, but the next meeting will not be held until July 14.

Final disposition was made of expenses incident to the recent commencement exercises, but the board put off adoption of its budget, pending action of the state legislature in providing for salary increases and other matters which will affect the amount of money the school board will be forced to raise for next year. A special meeting may be held later this month.

The board discussed various means of meeting additional costs of instruction and school expenses next year, including a $5 per capita tax, or an increase in the tax millage, but reached no decision.

No Action In Two Matters

The board tabled a request for financial assistance from the Adams County Free Library association, for further investigation. The proposal to employ a full-time recreational director here, through the school board, with state reimbursement, was discussed, but no action taken.

Dr. Lloyd C. Keefe, superintendent of schools, was given authority to purchase new typewriters from government surplus stock, if and when available, and "if the prices are right." Dr. Keefe said the school needs new typewriters. Last year's arrangement of the present typewriters was continued in force. The maintenance is to be divided between New Oxford and Chambersburg maintenance men.

The treasurer's report showed expenditures of $12,520.67, and a balance of $43,840.09. The cafeteria report for May showed receipts of $693.31, expenditures of $514.49, leaving a balance of -$178.82.

PASTOR URGES CE MEMBERS TO SERVE CHRIST

"It is today that is important, this instant and every instant that follows, in your service for Christ," the Rev. J. S. Dickson, Paradise, told 100 members of the Adams County Christian Endeavor Union at their annual convention at the Methodist church here Monday night.

"Serve Christ now," am very much impressed with the word 'now.' For if we tend to put that service off into the future we shall probably never serve Him. As young people you need to think it would be wonderful to be a missionary and to go to hidden places in China, to the mountains of India to be a pioneer for Christ. We can dream vast dreams of service to Christ, but all too often we are so lost in the dream that we forget to serve Him in the present," the Rev. Mr. Dickson continued.

"Is Christianity visible in your life today? If you are at high school do your teachers and fellow students

When a millionaire auto tycoon, who rose from humble beginnings with little more than a tremendous store of energy and a fierce individualism, resents being turned out to pasture on his palatial west coast estate, his only recourse is to secretly buy a run-down filling station with a poor but ambitious young man. At least that is what happens in Warner Bros.' exciting new comedy-romance, "That Way With Women," starring Dane Clark, Martha Vickers and Sydney Greenstreet.

Featured in a large supporting cast are Alan Hale, Craig Stevens, Barbara Brown, Don McGuire, John Ridgely, Dick Erdman and Herbert Anderson.

WEDNESDAY
There isn't a member of the family, from grandpa down to the youngest tot, who can fall to enjoy "Little Mister Jim," new M-G-M offering featuring "Butch" Jenkins on the Majestic screen.

Here is the story of an eight-year-old boy brought up on an Army post, adoring his understanding young parents, guided in his childhood decisions by a wise Chinese houseman, getting embroiled in such familiar childhood incidents as a birthday party in which the guests are more or less "blackmailed" into bringing presents; learning to ride his first bicycle; turning his nose up at "girl stuff."

Ray Milland and Barbara Stanwyck, co-stars of "California."

One of the most spectacular and important productions ever to bear the Paramount trade mark is due next Thursday on the screen of the Majestic theatre. It is the technicolor adventure-romance, "California," co-starring Ray Milland, Barbara Stanwyck and Barry Fitzgerald, with a supporting cast of more than 5,000 headed by George Coulouris, Albert Dekker, Anthony Quinn, Frank Faylen and Gavin Muir.

Directed by John Farrow "California" is set in the days before the state was part of the Union, when it was the storm center of violently opposing factions—those who wanted it to become part of the growing republic and those who wanted it to be an empire.

Ray Milland portrays a rugged soldier of fortune in this, his first outdoor action picture. He is romantically teamed with Miss Stanwyck, who will be seen as a glamorous gambler and adventuress. Their love story is told against the action-packed struggle of California toward her destiny.

COLLEGE NINE DOWNS LEHIGH

Ira Plank's Gettysburg college baseball nine notched its fifth win in nine starts Saturday afternoon by nosing out Lehigh 4-3 at Bethlehem.

Bill Brown's homerun following Houtz' single produced a pair of runs for Gettysburg in the third. Another run came in the eighth when Hart beat out a bunt and went to second as Joe Cervino grounded out. Ecker was safe on an error.

Wileman singled and Hart scored. What proved to be the winning run was scored without a hit. After two were out Brown walked. He attempted to steal second and when Smith threw into centerfield continued home, Emmerich, Lehigh centerfielder, being injured and forced to retire. Gold recovered the ball too late to catch Brown.

Lehigh tabbed a run in the fourth on a double by Collins and a single by Gold. The Engineers pushed over two runs in the eighth. Molnar walked and German singled. Kress attempted to sacrifice, Brown missing Houtz' toss to allow Molnar to score. German going to third. Collins walked to fill the sacks. Lefty Buehler relieved Houtz after the latter had pitched a ball to Gold. After pitching two more balls, Buehler fanned the batter of three pitches. Ecker then pitched German off third base. Smith singled Kress home. Hummel relieved Buehler and got the next batted on a line, drive to Hart. In the ninth Walters reached third after walking. With one out Bacon took the mound and retired the side on three pitches.

INDEPENDENCE DRIVE FOR HOLY LAND IS BEGUN

By JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.
Lake Success, N. Y., May 12 (AP)—Russia spearheaded a drive in the United Nations Saturday aimed at giving Palestine full independence possibly within six months.

Continuing debate on the Holy Land issue at 11 a. m. the 55-nation political committee was faced with a Soviet demand that a proposed United Nations inquiry commission submit a plan for "establishing without delay the independent state of Palestine."

Should the Russian proposal be included in the inquiry group's terms of reference, the commission would specifically be instructed to submit a plan to the regular session of the assembly for action in September.

See Long, Hard Road
If the assembly then approved the plan Palestine would be declared an independent state—provided, of course, that Great Britain—which holds the Holy Land under a League of Nations mandate—accepted the decision.

Most delegates agreed that it would probably be a long, hard road before Palestine is actually declared an independent state.

The Soviet proposal appeared due to draw the fire of the United States and Britain. They want merely to give the inquiry commission broad instructions and evade specific terms.

But the Arab states and possibly India were ready to back the Soviet proposal.

ACHESON QUILTS; LOVETT NAMED

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Dean Acheson resigned today as Under-Secretary of State and President Truman appointed Robert A. Lovett to replace him June 30. Lovett, a New York banker, is a former assistant Secretary of War.

In disclosing the changes, the White House made public a letter in which Mr. Truman wrote Acheson of his "great regret" that "I can not again ask you to put aside your desire to return to private life."

Acheson has long sought to resign and return to private law practice. Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross announced Mr. Truman's selection of Lovett as Acheson's successor. Lovett's nomination will be sent to the Senate some time this week.

While Lovett will not take over his post until July 1, it is understood that he will work with Acheson in advance of that time to acquaint himself with many problems with which Acheson has dealt.

The President said he realized that the two deferrals of the resignation "have meant a great financial sacrifice." He disclosed he agreed tentatively to permit Acheson's resignation last January 10 and said he appreciated Acheson's "magnanimous action in standing at your post for another six months."

FINDS WORLD IS ARMED TO TEETH

New York, May 12 (AP)—The nations of the world, says the New York Times, have almost 19,000,000 men under arms and are "spending perhaps $10,000,000,000 more on armaments than they did on the eve of war in 1941."

The story was written by Hanson W. Baldwin, the Times' military writer, and was based on a survey conducted by him and Times' correspondents in many countries.

Baldwin said that about 40 nations "are spending at least $27,400,000,000 a year on armaments."

The Times' survey placed the United States sixth in armed strength, as follows: China, 5,750,000 (Nationalist and Communist); Russia, 3,800,000; Great Britain, 1,210,000; India, 1,000,000; Turkey, 675,000; and United States, 670,000. But the story added:

"The United States has so tremendous a lead in sea power that not even Britain is a close second. The shipyards of the world are turning out relatively few new naval vessels."

CONSTELLATION EXPLODES; 4 DIE

Cape May, N. J., May 12 (AP)—A TWA constellation plane on a training flight crashed and exploded on Delaware bay, killing its four crewmen.

Nearby fishermen reached the scene shortly after the plane sank yesterday but found only a few splinters of the plane, some bits of flesh and several articles of clothing.

At the TWA maintenance and supply base, New Castle, Del., the dead were identified as Patrick S. McKiernan, Pomeroy, Wash.; Robert E. Weeks, Hockessin, Del.; Luke Vollack, Jr., Cheyenne, Wyo., and Martin Heller, Baltimore.

The New York office of TWA said after an investigation of the crash: "There was no indication of malfunctioning of aircraft or engine prior to the time the plane went into the water."

"The restricted area in which floating debris from the plane was found and the position of the wreckage sighted from the surface indicated that the plane did not disintegrate before it went into the water."

The Civil Aeronautics administration in Washington said the plane was on a routine local training flight and a TWA spokesman added the crew was practicing emergency landing procedure. He identified Weeks as the senior captain in charge and the check pilot of the flight.

PHONE STRIKE IN 6TH WEEK

New York, May 12 (AP)—The coast-to-coast telephone strike entered its sixth week today with an estimated 185,000 members of unions affiliated with the National Federation of Telephone workers still on strike.

Their refusal to cross picket lines of still striking unions kept many thousands away from their jobs, but in San Francisco the CIO American Communications association, declaring the NFWW strike "has been broken," announced that its 12,000 members in northern California and Nevada would return to work.

At St. Louis, the Southwestern Bell Telephone company announced the latest demand of the Southwestern Telephone Workers union (Ind) was "not acceptable." The union last night asked for a $5 weekly wage increase, with allowances bringing it to approximately $6, plus action on 20 of its original 89 contract demands.

The company early yesterday had rejected the union's demand for an across-the-board hike of $6, with other adjustments, saying it would cost $13.65 per week for employes to meet the demand.

The 15,000-member Ohio Federation of Telephone workers declined a company offer of a $4 across-the-board increase. Negotiations will be resumed in Washington late today between Western Electric company and the National Association of Telephone Equipment workers.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Latest from Mexico: Late accounts from the capital mention, that the Mexican Congress held an extraordinary session, immediately on the receipt of Santa Anna's defeat at Cerro Gordo. The strongest resolutions were adopted, and all breathe defiance. One of them declares any individual a traitor, who either in his private capacity or invested with any authority, may enter into treaties with United States of America. They decreed that every place in the vicinity of the Capital should be fortified—and Generals were appointed to superintend the fortifications.

There is a deep animosity by the Mexican people to Santa Anna, since the battle of Cerro Gordo, coupled with the broad charges of cowardice and treachery, and cries of vengeance, and a report had reached Tampico, that he had been captured and killed by his own countrymen.

Married: On the 6th inst., by the Rev. T. Tanyhill, Mr. James Alexander Currens, to Miss Rebecca Jane McDannell—both of Emmitsburg, Md.

On the 5th inst., by F. W. Koehler, Esq., Mr. Peter Allewell, of Berwick township, to Miss Leah Slover, of Paradise township, York county.

On Thursday James A. Thompson, Esq., Burgess-elect, took the oath of office, and entered upon his duties. The Council was also organized by the appointment of John B. McPherson, Esq., as President of the Board, and Robert G. Harper, Clerk and Treasurer.

The Mexican Colors and Standards, taken at the capture of Vera Cruz, have been deposited at the War Department, Washington, by the gallant Col. Bankhead, who was charged with their delivery by Gen. Scott.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Somerset Fire: The fire which on the 9th laid the town of Somerset in ruins, was a terrible disaster — as severe a blow to the inhabitants as the Chicago conflagration, taking into consideration the relative population and wealth of the two places. A letter from Mr. William H. Picking, to his brother in this place (John Picking, Esq.), says that a number of the citizens lost everything. The fire originated in a foundry, and swept over the business part of the town, destroying sixty of the most valuable dwellings.

Mr. Picking lost everything, his family not even saving a change of clothing. His loss is over $30,000, with an insurance of $10,000.

The loss to Somerset is disastrous to the individual sufferers, and invites prompt aid. Gettysburg ought to do its share.

Married: Carl Wolf — Sunday, at Littlestown, by Rev. Mr. Williams, Mr. Henry J. Carl, formerly of Hanover, to Miss Margaret L. Wolf, of Mountjoy township.

Nelson-Hollmer — On Christmas evening, 1871, at the Lutheran parsonage, Ghent, New York, by the Rev. A. Stewart Hartman, Mr. Thos. Mc. Dowell Nelson, of Chambersburg, Pa., and Miss E. Annie Hollinger, daughter of Jacob Hollinger, of "Rose-lawn," Cumberland township, this county.

For Sale: A good second-hand Hearse Body. Enquire of Dr. T. T. Tate, Gettysburg.

The Cincinnati Convention: After several days of skirmishing and maneuvering, attended by more excitement than usually attends nominating conventions, the Cincinnati "Reformers" on Friday succeeded in nominating candidates for President and Vice President. Six ballots were taken for President—on the sixth ballot Horace Greely receiving 322 votes and C. Francis Adams, 328.

The Convention then proceeded to vote for Vice President. B. Gratz Brown receiving 495 votes on the second ballot.

The result produced intense excitement, and an attempt to make the nominations unanimous failed, many of the prominent delegates

Today's Talk

THE PASSING MOMENT

I have just read a most interesting and inspiring book by Louis J. Halle, Jr., entitled "Spring in Washington." It is about birds and the birth of buds, about the songs and fragrance, and significance of the Seasons, especially the Springtime.

This book is not only informative, from a naturalist's viewpoint, but it takes the reader out of what the author calls his "hive" and introduces him to the freedom of Nature, and to the only worthwhile pursuit of life. I would like to quote many a line from this brilliant and sincere writer, but I just want to hang this brief talk upon one saying. Said Halle: "To snatch the passing moment and examine it for signs of eternity is the noblest of occupations. It is Olympian."

There is nothing trivial about the call of a bird, nor the first breaking of a bud or leaf. It is a thing of significance, of wonder, and can only be classed as a miracle. With a world in chaos and with no immediate prospect of universal Freedom from Fear, Nature remains unconcerned about profits, the Iron Curtain, or the selection of Presidents and Rulers. Hers is a realm of natural movements in a free democracy.

In Nature the passing moment is a supreme event! In each one there may be grasped the interpretation of immortality. Nothing is wasted in Nature, nothing lost. And no matter what the laws of man, her processes will continue noiselessly and without interruption—unless man goes completely mad and destroys both himself and the world. The laws of Nature were never meant to be fooled with.

Meanwhile the same song that Thoreau listened to while at Walden Pond is heard to this day! The returning visit of every songster and the greening of every blade of grass at this renewing Season of the year are significant news. Much more significant than all the quarreling among nations. I take up W. H. Hudson's book "A Traveler in Little Things" and read his chapter upon "The Return of Chiffchaff." I read again from John Muir's "Mountains of California" his chapter upon "The Water Ousel"—passing moments in the lives of great interpreters of Nature.

Nature is so happily re-creative! I watch the building of a tiny warbler's nest in the Summerhouse as a passing moment of supreme delight, its skill and patience, a thing of wonder.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Be a Searcher."

LIE

"How are you?" he asked, and I smiled and told a pretty lie. For 'twas easier to tell I was feeling very well; And, to me, 'twas very clear That was what he wished to hear. Had I told him of my pain, He would never ask again.

Had I answered with a sigh, Evermore he'd pass me by. Lest if he should say "Hello" I should tell a tale of woe. So the truth I didn't tell When I said: "I'm very well."

But, perhaps, the Lord on high Will approve so white a lie.

leaving in disgust, Carl Schurz, President of the Convention, was so taken by surprise, that he sank back into his chair and failed to announce the final vote for President, and Gen. Cochran inquired of the Chair whether Greely was nominated or not. Schurz simply responded "yes!"

The nominees reflect the mongrel character of the Convention. Principle was utterly ignored, as the only hope of securing even proximate harmony—Greely is a ferocious Protectionist, whilst Gratz Brown is a ferocious Free-trader. Greely has ability and has made the New York Tribune a power in the land; but as a political leader, he has always failed, by reason of his crochety nature, sudden changes of opinion, and tendency to go off on a tangent on some wild hobby for the time uppermost in his brain. During the war he changed front continually—at first insisting that Jeff Davis and the Southern conspirators be allowed to go in peace and divide the Union; then followed the cry "On to Richmond," until disaster crowned the Union arms. Then came demands for cessation of arms and negotiation with Rebels; Greely himself peering off to Canada to talk it over with Samuels and other Rebel agents, while he dragged Lincoln into opening fruitless negotiations with Jeff Davis' agents in front of Richmond while Grant was hammering away at the doomed city.

SEEK SLAYER OF FIVE-YEAR-OLD GIRL; FIND BODY

Norristown, Pa., May 12 (AP)—State police want a short, young blond man in a black automobile for questioning in the abduction and slaying of pretty five-year-old Carol Ann Thompson, daughter of a Lansdale, Pa., carpenter, Coroner J. W. Rushong reported.

Nearly 300 square miles of Montgomery county, north of Philadelphia, were gone over minutely yesterday by police checking automobiles for bloodstains, and Sgt. Edgar K. Pote asked investigators to be alert in examining 1938 or 1939 cars and their tires.

The little blonde girl's body was found in a well six miles from her home Saturday night about an hour after her six-year-old brother, William, Jr., told his father, William Thompson, a stranger approached the two children and took the girl in an automobile.

Floating In Well

Marvin Brooks, 13, found the girl's body. He told the coroner and police he was walking on the neighboring property of Dr. George E. McGinnis when he saw Carol Ann's body floating about four feet from the top of the well.

The child's dress had been ripped off but she was still wearing a little red coat. Her dress and underclothing were found in the well. Dr. John C. Simpson, coroner's physician, said after an autopsy the child had been assaulted. "A very hard blow with a very blunt instrument" caused the death, he said, adding a shoulder strap from her dress was put around her neck after she was dead.

Sheriff George Perry of Fort Atkinson, Wis., sent an inquiry, seeking to link the tragedy with the still unsolved disappearance of Georgia Wecker, 8, from a Wisconsin farm May 1. State police and county authorities, however, expressed belief the slayer of the Thompson girl was a local man who knew the backroads of the county.

"Most Brutal" Murder

Carol's brother gave police this story of events preceding the slaying: The two children were playing with a wagon their father had given them. As they were riding down an incline in front of their home, a stranger approached and told William to get the wagon and he would give the boy a push so the lad would go farther.

The boy got in and the man pushed him. When the wagon stopped William looked back and saw his sister getting into the car. "Your sister is going for a ride," William quoted the man as saying. "Let me go, too," the boy begged. The man promised to take him next and drove away.

County Detective Albert Murphy said after he viewed Carol's body, "This is the most brutal murder I have ever seen in many years of police work."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 12 (AP)—You can't go anywhere these days—unless it's to South Bend — without hearing about what a terrific football team Notre Dame will have next fall. . . . One guy, who really should know something, writes: "They have more good boys than any college or pro team in the country. I saw them work out a couple of weeks ago. Not only will they win all their games, but if anyone makes three touchdowns, it will be a moral victory." . . . Another mid-west scout adds: "They tell me that Sid Luckman, working out with Notre Dame in spring football, was the fourth-best passer on Frank Leahy's squad." . . . If such reports are correct, we'd rather see the varsity vs. Old Timers game next Saturday than anything they'll play next fall.

SERVICE ACE

Frankie Parker tells this one on himself . . . loaded down with an armful of rackets, Frankie climbed aboard a crowded bus the other day heading for the Southern California Tennis championships at the Los Angeles Tennis club. . . . As he tried to extract the fare from his pocket, the rackets nudged a buxom feminine passenger. . . . The woman glared at Parker and said: "Young man, I hope you handle those rackets better on a court than you do in a bus."

END OF THE LINE

Wonder if there are any other father-son football coaching combinations besides Tuss McLaughry of Dartmouth and son John, who succeeds Mel Hein at Union, and, of course, the Staggs? . . . One reason why Clint Hartung turned pitcher, Mel Ott says the Giants' fumble butlers were themselves out trying to teach him to catch flies last spring.

Armyworm And Its Control

The first recorded outbreak of armyworms in what is now the United States occurred in 1743 in what later became New Jersey, Delaware and other states of the north Atlantic region. Since that time this pest has so seriously ravaged farm crops in widely separated regions and appeared so suddenly where it was not expected that farmers in general should know how to identify the enemy and employ wholesale methods of control.

Armyworms are usually more numerous in summers following late springs or when the early April soils were wet and cold. In fact, it appears that weather conditions causing a late emergence of the egg-laying moth are conducive to increased numbers of the first brood.

Radish Sowing Should Be Weekly

Radishes share with green onions from sets the welcome which is always given the first harvest from the vegetable garden. But never sow more than a week's supply of early radishes at a time.

The early type, such as Scarlet Globe, matures in three weeks, and in another week turns pithy; so if you have not used them all, there will be a sad waste of good radishes and garden space.

To avoid waste, sow not more than seven feet of row each week until hot weather approaches; or double the sowing, but use a second early, such as Icicle, and start using it when half-grown. For hot weather, sow one of the long, slow growing varieties; and in midsummer put in the winter varieties, which are largest of all, but of good quality and can be used until Christmas.

But remember to sow radishes thinly, and give each plant plenty of room to mature. The seed come up in a few days, and many gardeners sow their first crop by mixing a few radish seed with the seed of slow germinators, such as carrots, parsnips, parsley and beets, all of which can be sown as soon as the soil has been prepared. Be sure to use not more than a tenth as many radish seeds. They will come up long before their slow germinating companions, and "mark the row." This will help you cultivate without danger of disturbing the slow sprouting seeds.

Best Beets Are Golf Ball Size

Beets give a heavy yield for the space they take in the home garden; and can be harvested all summer long and served in many delicious ways.

The height of their quality is reached when they are as big as a golf ball; so several sowings at intervals are advisable to keep new crops coming to be harvested in their prime.

If you have trouble growing beets, it may be your soil needs lime. They are among the first vegetables to show bad effects from acid soil. It causes stunted growth, small roots, and too much red and yellow coloring in their leaves.

If your beets showed these symptoms last summer, be sure to spread lime or limestone screenings over your garden this spring.

Beets also suffer from crowding, after their roots have begun to swell. They always require thinning out, because each seed is really a cluster of seeds, and too many plants will always grow, too close together, no matter how thin the seeds are sown.

Germination does not average as high as many other seeds, the federal standard being 65 per cent. It is usually advisable to sow seeds an inch apart. Let them grow until the tops are four or five inches tall, and the roots have made small globes; then thin them so that the plants stand four inches apart. The discarded should be cooked, tops and roots together.

An extension of this idea involves covering the flyscreen with a piece of cellophane for the first two weeks

And although there are usually three generations each summer, it is rare that more than one occurs in the same locality. This is explained by the fact that the egg-laying moths from the first pupae are carried away by the wind and thereby produce their second brood at a distant point from the first generation.

The moth measures about 1½ inches across its expanded wings—the same measurement as the caterpillar's greatest length. The moth is easily identified by single white spots near the center of each front wing. The rear wings are slightly darker in shading at their hind edges. Generally the moth's coloring is brownish gray. The small moth of similar characteristics is not a younger moth, but the male of the pair.

While the moth attains full size in a few hours after it emerges from the pupa, the caterpillar is not fully grown for three to four weeks after it hatches from the egg. The worm molts several times, gaining in its appetite after each skin is shed. When numerous it feeds so voraciously that a large number of the worms can be heard feeding in a field of grass or grain. It is essential that farmers be able to recognize the armyworm on sight. Here are the chief identifying characteristics:

When first hatched the worm is so tiny it likely is not seen as it feeds on grass near the ground. When near its fully developed stage (about 1½ inches in length) it is a nearly naked worm, smooth and generally greenish in color, with three main stripes—two along its sides and one broad stripe down its back. These stripes may be almost black in color. The head is pale greenish brown, and if observed through a reading glass, it is seen finely mottled with darker brown.

At least 40 species of birds help keep the armyworm reduced. These include red-winged blackbird, purple grackle, robin, crow, yellow-headed blackbird, song sparrow and cow-bird. Skunks and toads aid greatly in this control. Farmers should carefully guard these allies.

When army worms become so numerous that they travel in groups—by which they get their common name—they may be killed by plowing a deep furrow across their path. After they fall into this moat they are easily killed by dragging a log back and forth at intervals of a few hours. Or, if the sides of the ditch opposite their approach is made verticle or steep, and post holes are sunk about 18 inches deep every 20 feet in the ditch, the worms will fall into these holes where they die in hot weather or may be killed there with kerosene. Poison bait mash is widely used in severe outbreaks.

How To Wage Fight On Cucumber Beetle

Cucumber beetles often stunt and ruin cucumber, melon and squash plants before they get a fair start. The worst damage is done during the first few days after the plants come up. Rottenone dust will check the beetles, but requires constant vigilance and painstaking applications at frequent intervals. One way to avoid this in the home garden where only a few hills are grown is to cover each hill after planting with a wooden frame two feet square and nine or ten inches high topped with flyscreen.

If its edges are well covered with soil to prevent the beetles from crawling under, such a frame will give these vine crops a trouble-free start that means much in preserving the vigor to resist disease. When the vines begin to run the boxes are removed, for danger of serious beetle injury is then past. Treated with wood - preserving chemical, such frames may be stored and used for many years.

An extension of this idea involves covering the flyscreen with a piece of cellophane for the first two weeks

SOIL CONTENT IS IMPORTANT GARDEN FACTOR

By DR. ALEX LAURIE
Ohio State University

You don't have to be a scientist to have a pretty satisfactory backyard or truck patch. Your seeds will grow, with reasonable care, and you'll have a harvest of some sort, even if your gardening is done in a half-hearted manner.

But—the health-building qualities of the vegetables you raise this year will depend largely on the quality of your soil. If the soil for your neat rows of beans, peas, potatoes, turnips, onions, etc., is mineraly depleted and otherwise poor in the qualities that produce vitamin-packed foods, your produce liter may "look like a million dollars yet not be worth a nickel" so far as health-building qualities are concerned.

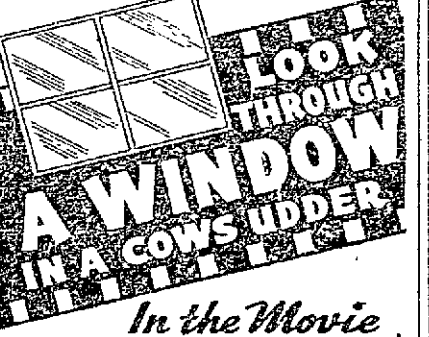

Since you and I can't scoop up a hand full of soil and tell whether it is rich or poor with regard to the health-building qualities it will impart to growing produce, we have to turn to science for some technical help.

Give Garden "Feeding"

You can get this help in several ways—an analysis can be made to determine the chemical properties of your garden plot, but this takes time and some expense. Since we gardeners usually get a late start anyhow, and since weather conditions are so important to us that we hate to wait for a laboratory check-up on a sample of our soil, there's an easy, simple alternative which may interest you more than the analysis.

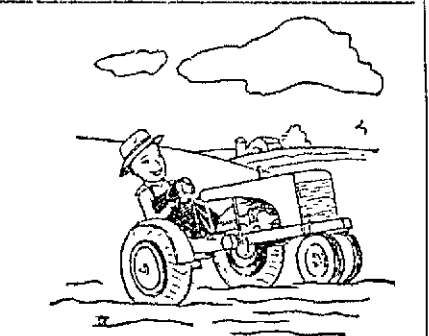

It is the distribution of the proper fertilizing ingredients on the soil to assure it an abundance of health-giving richness in the foods that will come from your garden. Most soils, unless they have been cultivated, nourished and developed or so, thus making each frame a miniature coldframe. Hills thus protected respond to the increased warmth by quicker germination and better growth in the early stages. Take off the cellophane, leaving just the screen, by mid-June.

carefully by an expert gardener, are deficient in one or more of the chemical ingredients essential to the production of fully-nourishing foods. If you are uncertain about how your soil would measure up in a laboratory test, the chances are that your garden can stand a substantial "feeding" before you put it to work.

Reduced to Science

Fertilizer manufacturers have reduced the feeding of vegetable gardens, flower gardens, lawns and farm fields to an exact science, and most of them supply instruction booklets with their products. One of the handicaps of some fertilizers, however, is that they should be applied well in advance of the planting season. The difficulty is that we don't get enthused about doing any preparatory work in the garden until the planting season is nearly upon us. Science, however, has given us a way to partially compensate for late fertilizing by developing liquid fertilizers which, because they are in solution and need not wait on rainfall to dissolve them, are ready to go to work the instant they come in contact with the soil. Your local seed store or garden supply shop can give you some suggestions about the newly developed liquid fertilizers now available to assure your new garden or flower bed a good send-off.

Soil Investment

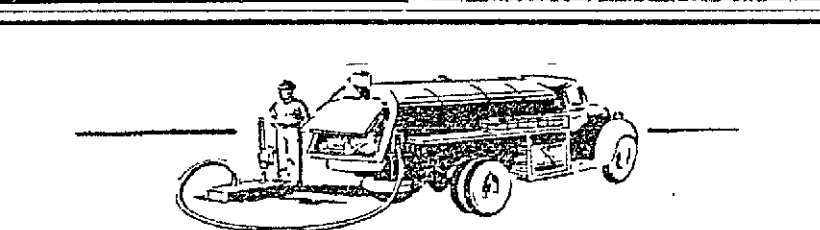

The importance of a fertilizing program in connection with your new garden can't be over emphasized—a statement which any experienced gardener will readily affirm. This is almost universally true because we as a nation have been inclined to drain our soils of the rich, health-building qualities which were part of its virgin quality.

ROWE-LEONARD SUNDAY CHORES HELP PHILLIES

By LEE LINDER
Philadelphia, May 12 (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies are breathing hot on the neck of the National league's first division today and it is all due to a pair of Sunday pitchers.

Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe and Emil (Dutch) Leonard comprise the "win-every-Sunday" mound duo. The aged former American leaguers have won nine Sabbath games including three consecutive Sunday twin-bills.

And just to prove Rowe's contention that "we're not just Sunday pitchers" the "Schoolboy" stuffed the hard-hitting New York Giants on a week day at the Polo Grounds New York.

These two pitching veterans, who seem to get better with age, have won 10 of the Phils' 11 victories this season. Rowe has chalked up a five win and none lost record to lead National league pitchers, while Leonard has turned in five victories against one defeat.

Each of the prolific hurlers gained number five yesterday against an old Phillies nemesis, the Brooklyn Dodgers. A crowd of 41,660—largest ever to jam Shibe Park—turned out in anticipation of seeing Rowe and Leonard turn in their third consecutive Sunday twin-bill victory.

Smacks Home Run
And the two grand old veterans were equal to the occasion.

Leonard stopped the Dodgers with seven hits and won easily, while Rowe hurled six innings of the nightcap earning credit for the victory. In addition to his pitching, Rowe smashed a line drive home run into the lower bleachers, a necessary blow as the final 5-4 score indicated.

Rowe, who makes his home in Eideredo Ark, says it feels great to be the leading National league pitcher.

But "and he seemingly cautioned himself the thing to do is stay on top. I can't waste time feeling good and patting myself on the back or I will find myself behind the well-known eight ball."

Schoolboy, who won four straight last year before he was injured and forced out of the lineup for the season, now has won nine consecutive National league games. He declined to predict how many he might win.

"Not Bad For Old Man"
I'll just take each game as it comes and will hope the victories continue to pile up.

Williamsport Takes Eastern Loop Lead

(By The Associated Press)
A new leader, Williamsport, ruled the Eastern loop today after a day's play in which the weather man formidable earned-run average of 2.12—"not bad for an old man."

Leonard winner of 10 and loser of a similar number for the Washington Senators a year ago also refused to hazard a guess on how many he would win. He hopes for a million.

Leonard says he likes the National league.

Leonard said that while he was happy in Washington where "Owner Clark Griffith treated me swell, I'm glad that, since he had to get rid of me, he sent me to Philadelphia."

"The Phils are an up and coming outfit and I hope that when my playing days are over the club will find a spot for me in its vast farm system."

forgot himself and smiled, rather than frowned, for a change.

Williamsport invaded Hartford for a double win yesterday, 7 to 3 and 13 to 4, before a 744 to gain first place at the expense of the Chiefs who had enjoyed a brief solo reign at the top.

Attery and Elmira split the loop's other doubleheader. A home crowd of 5,197 watched the Senators take a 2 to 0 whitewash from the Pioneers in the opener but come back to win the nightcap, 2 to 1.

Binghamton teed off on three of four Wilkes-Barre hurlers to smash out a 9-3 victory in the opener of the series in the triplets' home park.

Despite a local bus strike, 2,940 fans turned out for the contest.

In the day's other single game, Utica blanked Scranton, 1-0, before 3,714 home fans.

In the only games Saturday, Wilkes-Barre defeated Scranton 5 to 1 and Binghamton turned back Utica, 5 to 2.

Says UMW Demands 'More Conservative'

Bethlehem, Pa., May 9 (P)—Thomas E. Larkin, umpire of the Anthracite Board of Conciliation, declared today that John L. Lewis' AFL United Mine Workers Union "has grown more conservative" in its demands upon hard coal operators.

Addressing the fifth annual Anthracite conference, Larkin asserted the union "has shown a tendency to hold gains already won."

"The operators by and large," he added, "accept the working of the closed shop and check-off."

Describing the Anthracite Board of Conciliation as "possibly the oldest continuous grievance adjustment setup in the United States," Larkin said it is widely copied in other industries. "For other industries to be as successful as anthracite, they must accept the spirit of conciliation and arbitration that is found in the anthracite industry."

LEGALIZING OF WAGE AND SALES TAX COMING UP

Harrisburg, May 9 (P)—Legislation to permit municipalities and school districts to turn to wage or sales taxes to augment local revenues headed toward a House vote next week with one Democratic leader planning today to seek to amend it.

"We don't like the bill," in its present form, commented Rep. H. G. Andrews (D-Cambria), House minority leader, after the measure was moved into position for a vote without discussion yesterday.

The Democratic leader said "some amendments" may be offered Monday despite a House rule requiring unanimous consent for such action at that stage of the legislative process.

To Broaden Local Taxes
Andrews indicated the Democratic minority was studying in particular a provision inserted in the bill in the House Municipal Corporations committee which would bar local taxes on the receipts of business already paying a state income tax, directly or indirectly.

Rep. Herbert P. Sorg (R-Elk), House Republican leader, said this provision would prohibit any local amusement taxes on companies paying the corporate net income tax and added the Republican leadership "will welcome" amendments that improve the proposed legislation.

It was sponsored by Reps. Charles H. Brunner, Jr. (R-Montgomery) and William J. Stonier (R-Lackawanna) in line with the announced policy of Gov. James H. Duff to broaden local taxing powers so they can raise needed funds at the local level instead of seeking increased grants from the commonwealth.

Trial Period
The bill, making possible local taxes on subjects and transactions not now levied on by the state, would be for a four-year trial period with the proviso that the new local levies would expire if the state could later impose similar ones. Only the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh school boards, Philadelphia city council and counties would be

First In Our Thoughts

Mothers give much and ask little of others. Their time is largely devoted to home and family. Each day brings its round of cares and duties. They find happiness in unselfish service.

Mother's Day gives opportunity to show appreciation for what your mother has done for you. Gifts are always appropriate and treasured. But to make the day an occasion of real joy give her what she will value above all else—your love—your time—your thoughtfulness—your attention. Give her yourself. Then she will surely know you did not forget.

To all mothers in this community we extend sincere good wishes.

300 DELEGATES AT CHURCH MEET

Harrisburg, May 9 (P)—The annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Harrisburg moved toward its final session today with election of lay officers up for action.

More than 300 delegates from a 26-county area in Central Pennsylvania are attending the two-day convention which is being held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

The delegates yesterday reelected all of the diocese officers which saw the return of the Rt. Rev. John T. Heistand, of Harrisburg, to the office of bishop of the diocese.

Speaking last night at the annual dinner, Canon Wedel, Warden of the college of preachers, Washington Cathedral, Washington, told the delegates: "We are not so much concerned today with intellectual preciseness as we are with being a living church."

He declared that people today are demanding a church "that can heal the sick, that can drive out the devils and take a man from the gutter and turn him into a saint x x x."

Other diocese officers reelected include: Charles L. Miller, Lancaster, Chancellor; Leslie McCreath, Harrisburg, secretary-treasurer, and the Rev. Charles E. Berghaus, Marietta, registrar. The Rev. Canon Paul S. Atkins, of York, and the Rev. Anthony G. Van Eiden, of Waynesboro, were elected to the diocese standing committee. Mrs. Andrew S. Rhoads, of South Williamsport, was elected new president of the Woman's Auxiliary and Mrs. Catherine Carpenter, of Jersey Shore, was named new parliamentarian.

Wilson Graduation Being Held Today
Chambersburg, Pa., June 9 (P)—Wilson college graduates were urged today to "take a citizen's part in the life of your community and your nation" as the first step in aiding America to promote universal peace. Miss Helen C. White, professor of English at the University of Wisconsin, and well-known as a novelist and literary critic, in an address prepared for delivery at the annual commencement exercises at

Wilson, told the seniors the whole world "is at present perplexed because we do not seem able to turn our industrial and scientific resources into the paths of peace."

She said the reason for the perplexity is "due to the fact that it is much harder to bring our industrial and scientific resources to bear upon the task of peace than it was upon the task of war."

A sausage made from soybean and skim milk formed the mainstay of the German Army diet during the recent war.

Some authorities believe the banana tree may be the oldest cultivated plant.

For humid days ahead, you'll find this fresh-looking frock doubly delightful. It has smart cross-over shoulder straps to let you take on that wonderful tan... and a little bolero to match that shelters you for the street.

No. 3042 is cut in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2½ yards 35-inch for the dress; 1½ yards 35-inch for the bolero.

Send 20c for PATTERN, which includes complete sewing guide. Print your Name, Address and Style Number plainly. Be sure to state size you wish. Include postal unit or zone number in your address.

In the BOOK OF FASHION for Summer you'll find wonderful, wearable clothes to make for that vacation—such pretty togs they'll make it a gala year. A 36-page book printed in rotogravure with over 150 styles for all ages. Send now for your copy, price just 15 cents plus 2 cents for mailing.

TORNADO, FIRE, AND TRAFFIC KILL 15 IN PA.

(By The Associated Press)

At least 15 persons met death in a violence-marked week-end that brought a tornado, a freight train wreck, a fire and a wave of traffic accidents to Pennsylvania.

Nine persons died in highway accidents and three perished in the tornado which ripped into western Pennsylvania. Two drowned and one was electrocuted. In addition, scores of persons were injured, eight critically.

Ronald H. Miller and Edwin Shook of Sharon died in the wreckage of a garage as the gigantic twister swirled into Pennsylvania from Ohio.

Child Electrocuted

Henri Todd of Ambridge died of a heart attack after he got out of his car near Mercer to take photographs of the approaching tornado.

Mercer county sheriff said at least 150 houses were damaged and that $600,000 in damage followed the tornado in which he saw "pieces of roof, spouting, shingles, boards, debris of all sorts sucked into the air."

Eleven-year-old Mike Klim, Jr., Carnegie, was electrocuted by a high tension wire which fell on him during a sandlot baseball game.

Five persons were injured in a fire which wrecked a dress shop and second-floor apartment in Philadelphia.

Two crewmen of a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie freight, E. W. Folley and C. H. Colley, both of McKees Rocks were injured as their train plowed into a landslide at Fallston.

In Philadelphia, 16-year-old Peggy Farrell was injured critically and her horse killed in a collision with a Schuylkill transportation company bus carrying 40 persons from Norristown to a Philadelphia church.

The body of 10-year-old Ager Williams was recovered from the Allegheny river at Pittsburgh. Police had been groping for his body since Thursday.

An unidentified man jumped to death from a bridge over the Monongahela bridge at Pittsburgh. His body was not recovered.

Heavy Traffic Toll

In addition, the following died in traffic accidents:

Jack Pheasant, 28, St. Davids, struck by a car as he crossed a highway at the Main Line golf club. Two companions were hurt seriously.

Laverna N. Dorward, 27, Emerald, fatally injured by a flying tire rim as he pumped up the tire of his truck. He was a bridegroom of one week.

Janice Sloyer, seven, Bethlehem, killed in a collision between a Lehigh Valley Transportation Co. bus and an automobile. Her mother and two others were hurt seriously.

William J. Ryan, 29, Philadelphia, church, gave a 15-minute organ recital and played the traditional processional and recessional. He also accompanied the soloist, Miss Esther Royer, Carlisle, cousin of the bridegroom, who sang, "I Love You Truly" and "O Perfect Love."

Ushers were Robert W. Weaver and Webster M. Jackson, Gettysburg, and George E. Null and Richard B. Null, brothers of the bride, from Greentown.

Altar Is Decorated

The church altar was decorated with white lilies, and baskets of white and pink summer flowers, palms and lighted candles. Huge baskets of peonies were placed at each window.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom, 36 East Lincoln avenue. A three-tier bridal cake was cut by the bride.

The couple left on a wedding trip to an unannounced destination and will reside in Gettysburg upon their return.

The bride wore tan with black accessories for her going-away costume.

The bride is a graduate of Gettysburg high school in 1943. The bridegroom graduated from Gettysburg high school in 1939 and from Gettysburg college in 1943. He is a public accountant with offices here. Included among the guests who were present were, the Rev. and Mrs. J. Wilson Harner and two children, Myersville, Md., brother-in-law and sister of the bride; Miss Jessie Hance, Harrisburg, an aunt of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Matthias, Hanover, an uncle and aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daley, an uncle and aunt of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Israel Royer, Carlisle; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dapp, Jr., Miss Oliver Badger, Mrs. Thelma Hersman, Miss Minnie Rine and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Belton, all of Harrisburg; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Valentine, Carroll Valentine, Mrs. Calvin Valentine and Gregg Kaiser, all of Keymar, Md.

killed in a collision between his car and a city police emergency ambulance. Lawrence M. McCourt, 23, Philadelphia, killed in the crash of his automobile and a steel electric standard. James R. Hill, 77, California, killed in automobile collision.

Sgt. Thomas J. Danchik, 24, Homestead City, killed when his army staff car plunged down an embankment at the Greater Pittsburgh airport. George Singler, 65, Clairton, died after he was struck by a hit-run driver. Donald Campbell, 40, Morgantown, fatally injured near Bridgeville as his car skidded over a hill.

TEACHING YOUR DOG TO "HEEL"

Making Your Dog a Better Citizen
by Tom Farley

Since you have taught the dog the position of "Heel" it is only necessary to teach him to stay in that position when you move ahead and to sit as soon as you stop. Starting with the dog sitting at heel (picture 1) move forward urging him to accompany you (picture 2). As soon as you stop bring him to the sit position (picture 3). Keep doing this until the dog follows naturally and sits almost instantly. The leash should be kept loose at all times.

If the dog gets ahead of you, as in picture 4, correct him with a sharp quick jerk on the leash. If he pulls away, as in picture 5, urge him in with the left hand, while handling the leash with the right. It is best not to take off the leash until there is no need for it whatsoever, probably two or three months for the average healthy well nourished dog. However, it may be carried over the shoulder as shown in picture 6.

This is the seventh of a series of picture articles on dog training featuring Frances Hartsook, nationally known trainer, photographed and prepared in a campaign to make dogs better citizens. The lessons must be studied from the beginning to be effective. If you miss any of the articles we suggest that you purchase the back issues so that you have the complete series. (P-D Photos).

MAROONS DRUB ST. FRANCIS 9

A seven-run rally in the sixth inning enabled the Gettysburg high school baseball team to nose out St. Francis Prep here Friday afternoon in a slugfest, 13-11. The victory was the third in four starts for Coach Howard Shoemaker's lads. St. Francis got off to a fast start by scoring five runs in the first two frames. The Maroons took the lead with four runs in the third to make it 6-5 but the visitors again went ahead with two runs in the fifth and another in the sixth.

Ronnie Kump, who relieved Donald Bucher as pitcher in the second inning, started the sixth with a double after one was out. Hershey doubled and Benner singled. W. Bucher was safe on a fielder's choice. Hess fled out to left but a base on balls to Leecher, a double by Biesecker and single by Eisenhart followed by an error by Shedy allowed the runs to trickle over. St. Francis fought back in the seventh and pushed over a trio of runs before Kump fanned Dobscha for the final out with the tying run on base.

Kump whiffed 13 batsmen as reliever hurler. Hess led the Gettysburg attack with a pair of triples while Eisenhart collected a single and triple and Benner a pair of safeties. J. Green poled three singles for the visitors.

Howie Schultz Is Sold To Phillies

Philadelphia, May 10 (AP)—Branch Rickey, owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers, indicated today he intends using Jackie Robinson, first negro baseball player in modern major league history, at first base despite recent reported anti-racial diamond developments. Robinson's main competitor for the regular first base job with the Dodgers, Howie Schultz, was sold to the Philadelphia Phillies here last night for $50,000. Rickey, here for a conference with Herb Pennock, general manager of the Phils, disclosed the sale of Schultz after the Dodgers had dropped an 11-inning night game 6 to 5 to the Phils. It was the first game of a four-game series.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, May 10 (AP)—Featherweight Champion Willie Pep has begun therapeutic treatments on his left leg, injured in a plane crash, and hopes to start light training by July. . . . Earl O. Stice, who took fourth money in the Derby with On Trust and may do better in the Preakness today, recently bought one of California's top two-year-olds, Inconstant, with the idea of trying again next year. . . . Columbia and Penn. rivals in almost every sport for years and years, will meet in their first dual track meet since 1909 today. . . . Wonder if any schoolboy athlete can match the mark set by Alan Hegelein of Englewood, N. J., this week? On Tuesday he won the 220-yard dash and shot put (setting a league record with the shot). Wednesday he pitched a six-hitter and fanned 13 for the baseball team, losing the game because he didn't perform up to standard as cleanup hitter.

WEEK END ITEMS
After he finishes his first pro football season with the Boston Yanks, Fritz Barzilaukas plans to go right back to Yale to prepare for dental college. Apparently footballers learn to appreciate teeth after getting a few kicked out. . . . Southern California's Roland Sink plans to concentrate on the two-mile run for the rest of the season. Seems Illinois' Bob Rehberg convinced him he can't win any mile titles. . . . They have an ice hockey team in Belfast, Ireland, and are planning to organize one in Dublin. . . . Absence of ice won't matter if they have shillelaghs.

Derby Winner To Seek Preakness Pot

Baltimore, May 10 (AP)—Jet Pilot, the front running flyer from Maine Chance farm, and 10 challengers who aren't quite sure about that Kentucky Derby business, are slated to shoot for the $138,140 Preakness pot today, but they really ought to let the Weather Man be an added starter.

With a record Pimlico crowd of around 45,000 predicted for Maryland's premier turf classic, so much seems to depend upon whether it rains or shines that the Weather Man has been quoted more than the trainers.

The Jet job won the Derby in off-forecasting because he seems to like the stuff. And the general idea is that he won't do so well over a fast strip in the mile and three-sixteenths Preakness—which is a sixteenth shorter than the derby—because of half a dozen speed horses in the field.

Senators Win Only Interstate Game

(By The Associated Press)
The Harrisburg Senators led the Interstate league by a game and a half today following an 8 to 3 win over the Hagerstown Owls at the Pennsylvania capital city. Cold caused the postponement of the remaining three scheduled games last night. A crowd of 551 saw the Senators chase Boots Poffenberger with a four run outburst after they had momentarily lost the lead to the Owls 3 to 2 in the fifth inning. Whitey Griefau, 18-year-old outfielder, rapped a double to score two Harrisburg runs during the fifth inning rally.

TO USE OPEN DATE
(By The Associated Press)
Four Eastern league clubs took advantage of open dates today, attempting to play two of 41 games piled up in the circuit's schedule backlog by early-season rain, snow and cold. Wilkes-Barre travelled to Scranton for an afternoon game and Utica stopped off at Binghamton for a night contest. Cold weather prevailed again last night and forced postponement of all four double-headers.

Dick McLaughlin's Fairfield high nine crawled to within half a game of Biglerville by pounding out a 12-5 victory over Arendtsville at Fairfield. The winners held the lead throughout and clinched the decision with four runs in the sixth.

Boiling Springs kept in the thick of the race by walloping York Springs 13-5. The Bubblers collected 15 hits. Wolf connected a homerun for York Springs. New Oxford rallied for a pair of runs in the last of the seventh to nose out East Berlin at New Oxford, 6-5. Wentz started the inning with an infield hit and stole second base. Wildman fanned. Harman singled to advance Wentz to third base. Harman stole second base. Wentz then tallied on a passed ball and Harman moved to third. Harman scored the winning run on I. Mechtly's infield hit.

CLINT HARTUNG, GIANT ROOKIE, STOPS BRAVES

By JACK HAND
(AP Sports Writer)
Clint Hartung, the fabulous New York Giants rookie, who was supposed to throw faster than Bobby Feller and hit harder than Babe Ruth, has turned out to be a pitcher. Hartung's mound record in Honoluulu last summer was a gaudy 25 wins and no defeats, pitching for an Army Air Force team. In his spare time he hit .361 as a fly chaser.

Bill Voizelle and Mike Budnick had been treated roughly by Boston yesterday, yielding six runs in the first three innings, so Manager Mel Ott decided to unveil Mr. Hartung as a big league pitcher. Clint shut out the hard-hitting Braves the rest of the way, allowing only two singles in six innings and striking out five.

Johnny Mize's ninth homer and Willard Marshall's third got two of the runs back but the Giants succumbed to Warren Spahn's fancy left-handed pitching, 6-2. Chicago Noses Tigers
Boston's success was rewarded with a first-place tie with Chicago which thumped Cincinnati, 5-1, because Brooklyn fell from the top by losing an 11-inning night game to the Phillies, 6-5.

Bobby Feller had to work hard to get a decision, going 11 frames before Cleveland topped St. Louis, 6-5. In Joe Gordon's third hit of the night, Feller had retired the first 12 men in order when the Browns rallied for three in the fifth to tie the score. Ellis Kinder, who replaced the tired Cliff Fanning in the eleventh, was charged with the loss, the seventh in a row for Muddy Ruel's crew.

Chicago regained the American league lead from Detroit by nosing out the Tigers, 2-1, with Orval Grove handing Hal Newhouser his fourth successive setback. Lefty hasn't won since opening day and Grove hasn't lost yet. New York, Boston, Washington and Philadelphia in the American and St. Louis and Pittsburgh in the National were not scheduled.

collected Bob's wages, and also took the money made by herself and Edward at various jobs. Her father continued drinking, she said, and had trouble with the boys. When he was sober "he would not punish the boys for anything they did but when he was drinking he would pick on the children." When he drank, "he would fuss with mother and she would pay no attention to him, then he would pick on the children and mother would get into the fight. This was continuous as far back as I can remember."

State Completes Case

The prosecution continued its case on Friday after the noon recess by calling Lloyd W. Kuhn, Bendersville banker and co-executor of the Humpert estate. Mr. Kuhn told of meeting Staley, state police, the district attorney and Mrs. Little at the Humpert farm on the afternoon of April 1.

He testified that the statements read by Mrs. Little quoting Staley while at the Humpert home were correct.

Robert Swope, South street, who was employed March 24 at an orchard near Bendersville, told the court that Staley had come to the orchard that afternoon and asked if he, Swope, knew where Herbert Humpert lived. He said that he did not, but added that he asked Ryland H. Wright, Florida Dale, who was working with him.

Wright, brought to the stand, told of telling Staley where Humpert lived.

Staley Was Drinking

Betty Clouse, Gardner's R. D., told of seeing the Simmons' car on the road leading past the Humpert home during the afternoon of March 24. Mrs. Myrtle E. Herring, Baltimore street, sister of Staley, was called but not asked to testify.

Mrs. Ernest E. Lupp, Baltimore street, testified she saw Staley about 7 p. m. on the evening of March 24. Staley came to her house to see his sister, Mrs. Herring, Mrs. Lupp said. She added that she saw Staley, Mrs. Herring and Ray H. Simmons in the kitchen of her home and that they were drinking. She went out, Mrs. Lupp added, and returned about 10 o'clock. The three were still drinking, she said, and told her they were on their second fifth. About three-quarters of an hour after she returned, Mrs. Herring testified, Simmons and Staley left.

The two men came back again about 1:30 o'clock on the morning of March 25 and Staley came into the house. He went to the kitchen and turned on the water. Staley made a fire for her in the furnace before he left and had said something about washing his hands, but he did not wash them at that time, she recalled. She said she thought he had decided to wash them to get that furnace dirt off, but when she asked him if he wanted soap he turned the water off and walked into another room. In the next room, she said, "Bob had a wallet with some money in it. He opened it and looked in and sort of counted through it. I don't know how much he had in it. I said 'I thought you were broke.' He made some kind of an answer and then the horn blew of a car outside and I figured Ray was getting impatient. Bob said 'I'm gonna leave. Tell Sis I'll call her tomorrow.'"

Procession of Witnesses

Questioned as to how she knew Staley was "broke," Mrs. Lupp said she had brought the subject up when the pair was at her home earlier that night. She had told them she was flat broke and jokingly added that she'd probably have to rob a bank. "Bob," she said, "said to Ray: 'Maybe we ought to take her along,' or something like that."

William C. Imhoff, New Cumberland, gas station operator, testified that Simmons and Staley came to his service station "between midnight and 3 o'clock the morning of March 25," and washed their car there.

John Jones, West High street, was called to testify that Staley, Staley's sister and Simmons had borrowed $3 from him on the night of March 24, coming to his house to borrow the money.

Deputy Sheriff Blaine E. Bixler then was called to the stand to identify an envelope containing $1,310 which he said had been given him by Corporal Lodwick D. Jenkins on April 4, and that he had custody of the money since that time. Jenkins testified he had been given the money by Detective R. O. Parsons and turned it over to Bixler. Parsons said he got the money April 4 from Mechanicsburg Chief of Police Harry W. Koser and had turned the money over to Jenkins.

Money Traced

Koser said that the money was given him on April 2 by Mary Baker, of Mechanicsburg, and that he in turn gave the money to Parsons. Mary Baker, brought to the stand, kept her eyes averted from Staley throughout her testimony and spoke in such a low tone that the judge had to repeat all of her statements to the jury.

Miss Baker said that on March 25, at the Eagles in Harrisburg, she had been given a sum of money by Staley to keep for him. She added that she did not know how much money it was altogether. Then she said Staley later took two $50 bills, $40 at another time and on another occasion "something over $100." Staley then took all of the money back and on the morning of his arrest returned $1,310 to her to keep for him. When she learned April 2 that he had been arrested, possibility of natural causes of death and he set the time of death during the period when Simmons and Staley were there. The Commonwealth's theory is that this crime was committed in the commission of a felony.

Staley Case

"Blood on Hands?"

"We have burglary and robbery. In this case I am thinking particularly in the robbery of the key from the pocket of Humpert. Mrs. Lupp is a creditable witness because she is a friend of the defendant's sister. In Staley's presence Mrs. Lupp testified, she said jokingly, 'What do they do to someone robbing a bank?' Simmons said, 'We should take her with us.' This shows their determination to carry out the plan. Staley made no objection. She said when they returned at 1:30 a. m. Staley proceeded to the kitchen as if to wash his hands but when Mrs. Lupp came out to the kitchen he did not wash his hands. Would you be justified in believing he might have had blood on his hands?"

"Mr. Imhoff said that they washed the car about 3 o'clock the next morning. Why did they wash the car? Was there something on that car? The defense argues that Staley told the truth. We must admit it true as far as it goes. We have the witness Swope who said that Staley on the afternoon before the crime occurred asked where Humpert lived and that Staley was driving the car. In his statement Staley said he asked for several other persons before asking for Humpert so as to throw off suspicion.

Told of Money

"He cleverly coldly asked for someone else first. Does this indicate that he was trying to avoid robbing Humpert? Another witness says that the car went first past the Humpert house with the top down and then with the top up. This means they were casing the place. This shows the detailed reflection and cool planning with which the parties went about their work that day.

"Who was it that told Simmons about Humpert? Who told Simmons that there was about $5,000 to be gotten at the Humpert home? This indicates that he was dangling the money before Simmons to get him to go.

"Do you think that these young men left Humpert out there as they say they did? Can you conceive that they left him on the ground? I think you might devote some thought as to how Humpert got in the feed entry. Don't you think they knew he was just as they intended, knocked cold, and they took him and laid him beneath the hay hole?" Teeter said.

"If Humpert had been laid, had been able to sit up, a couple of yells and the McKinnys would have been awakened. I think you can assume that they carried him into the feed entry, and then burglarized the house," said Teeter.

Asks First Degree

The assistant prosecutor argued that Staley's action indicated little or no mercy toward Humpert, and asserted his "actions speak louder than words," he said "it wasn't mercy. Staley still wanted that money," and he further said that "Staley was even holding out on his buddy. That's the kind of man you are dealing with."

In closing, he said: "We submit

FAVOR MOVE ON UNITED EUROPE

Washington, June 10 (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall has expressed general approval of a resolution to put Congress on record as favoring creation of a United States of Europe within the framework of the United Nations.

"Of course the United States wants a Europe which is not divided against itself, a Europe which is better than it replaces," Marshall said. "Only as we can inspire hope of that can we expect men to endure what must be endured and make the great efforts which must be made if wars are to be avoided and civilization is to survive in Europe."

"But we should make clear that it is not our purpose to impose upon the peoples of Europe any particular form of political or economic association. The future organization of Europe must be determined by the peoples of Europe."

Marshall wrote Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, in response to a request for his views on the resolution sponsored by Senators Fulbright (D-Ark.) and Thomas (D-Utah).

A similar resolution has been introduced in the House by Rep. Boggs (D-La.).

"The Fulbright-Thomas-Boggs proposal, if adopted by the Senate and House, would constitute simply an expression of congressional opinion."

The campers were in Waynesboro Saturday night and Cumberland, Md., Sunday night before coming here. During the trip they expect to cover more than 1,500 miles.

ROWE INJURED AS PHILS WIN LONGEST GAME

Philadelphia, June 10 (AP)—The longest national league game of the year brought another injury to Schoolboy Rowe and a new nickname—"Hard Luck Pitcher"—to Murry Dickson today.

The three and three-quarter hour 15-inning struggle found the Philadelphia Phillies winning out 2 to 1 over the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

It was the second half of a make-up doubleheader in which the Cards copped the opener, 4-2. The entire twin bill, witnessed by 17,792 paying customers yesterday, required nearly six hours to complete.

Rowe's injury, his third ailment in a year, came in a freak accident.

Musial's Bat Breaks

The Phils held a 1-0 lead in the sixth inning of the nightcap when Stan Musial came to bat. Musial swung, his bat broke in half and part of it sailed out and hit Rowe on his pitching arm.

The veteran hurler, whose record stands at seven victories and one defeat, suffered a deep cut on the elbow. Manager Ben Chapman said he did not think the injury was "too serious."

While Rowe has been having phenomenally bad luck remaining healthy enough to take his regular turn on the mound, Dickson has been having an amazing amount of trouble winning a ball game.

The diminutive right-hander who helped pitch the Redbirds to the National league flag last year has failed to win a game this season while losing seven.

Good In Defeat

But he never looked better than in defeat yesterday. Little Dickson had saved the opener for the Cardinals by pitching Alpha Breeze out of a tough spot in the seventh inning—but manager Eddie Dyer called on him again in the nightcap.

Dickson entered the game in the seventh inning with the score 1-0 against him. His teammates tied the count an inning later but were handcuffed by Blix Donnelly and Charley Schanz the rest of the way.

In the 15th Dickson yielded a single to Emil Verban, retired pitcher Schanz and then was rapped for another single by Skeeter Newsome, Verban racing to third.

Then Harry Walker lined to center and Verban was forced to hold up. Most of the pressure was off—but Del Ennis drove one off Dickson's glove and the ball game was over.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 10 (AP)—The day that Frank "Spec" Shea made his first start for the Yankees this spring, Naugatuck, Conn., high school had to call off examinations.

Too many kids played hookey to see their home town hero.

After the Yanks dropped that one to the Red Sox despite Spec's three-hitter, Joe DiMaggio told Scripps Hank O'Donnell that Shea had pitched well enough to win nine out of ten games "so we'll have to win the next nine for him."

Well, Spec has won seven straight and Joe has been a big help.

Strangely, that's the day the powerful Wildcats play Kings Point.

Johnstown, Pa., June 10 (AP)—About 350 employees of the Koppers Coal division Sorman Slope mine near Portage were on strike today in a dispute over work division.

Gas Truck Crash Fires Six Homes

Philadelphia, June 10 (AP)—A truck hauling more than 7,000 gallons of gas crashed into a power line pole Monday and sparks ignited the gasoline, injuring five persons and setting fire to six houses.

A huge ball of fire rose approximately 100 feet in the air after the accident after sparks ignited the gas leaking from the truck and trailer tanks behind the truck. Flaming gasoline set fire to the houses forcing 22 persons to flee.

Firemen battled the blaze for nearly three hours before it was brought under control.

ILL PIN HOPES ON BLACK BOX MYSTERY RAYS

By HAL BOYLE
Long Beach, Calif., (AP) — Roy Beebe and his mysterious little black box are a Southern California phenomenon.

On one day recently motor cars from 28 states parked near his home. Thousands of ailing young and elderly people visit him each week because they believe his black box gives off a strange but health-giving "cosmic ray."

On the other hand Beebe, who holds no license to practice medicine, says that the black box merely is the source of a new "static breaker" he has invented, and denies he has cured anybody of anything.

"It would be foolish for me to tell you that the cosmic has a ray, or that it doesn't have a ray," he said. "If anybody says he got well here—I didn't do it."

But some people are hard to convince. For the last seven or eight years from 2,000 to 4,000 a day have come to his small cottage here seeking relief from their ailments. Neighbors complained bitterly and Beebe has started a new establishment on a 25-acre plot just outside the city limits.

The day he opened his "cosmic research laboratories" some ten thousand visitors jammed in.

Agricultural Chemist

I went out to see his place. I found Beebe, a keen-eyed man of 63 wearing whipcord trousers and boots, putting about the new plaster building, nucleus of a $100,000 center. He is an agricultural chemist and has grown eight-pound onions and five-pound tomatoes by mineralizing the soil. During the war he won some local renown by suggesting that America could solve the rubber shortage from the fluid of the Mexican red poinsettia. The government, however, relied on other measures.

"This laboratory is to teach chemistry as applied to the soil," he said. "And if anybody calls it a health resort—I'll whip 'em. I've got 2,000 signed up for the advanced courses. We believe in planting according to the planets. We don't go into astronomy any deeper than that."

"We have research here in the garden that is going to be a wonder. We're mineralizing it through solidified radiation."

I couldn't understand just what that was, so I asked Beebe to explain his "static breaker." Wires are strung all around the area, and many people who come here believe a "cosmic ray" flowing from these wires cures them of their ills.

Use Coils of Wire

One gray-haired woman nearby sat silently holding a coil of the wire to her bent head.

"My static breaker is only 10 per cent perfect," Beebe said. "I got ninety per cent to go. It clarifies the air like a thunder storm. You take an old radio that clicks and sputters from static. Bring it out here, and it's clear as a bell."

"I've had people of every nationality and political belief out here, but we've never had a disturbance."

"There must be a cause for that—there's a cause for everything. It's because the air is clear of static. That is it's at least ten per cent clear. I've got that black box hid, too, where nobody can find it."

I asked him about a score of jugs of water brought by visitors. A wire had been stuck into each jug.

Accepts Donations

"It clears the algae from the water," he said. He doesn't charge visitors, and puts on three free night shows a week to entertain them.

"Costs nobody a penny but me," he said.

There is a jug handy, however, in which callers can drop in any sum they want. Beebe also has whole wheat bakery bread available that has been treated with the "static breaker" to take any confusion out of the grain. It isn't for sale exactly. You ask for a loaf and put down any amount of money you choose to. No change is given.

PRICES OF MEAT HIT NEW HIGHS

Philadelphia, June 10 (AP)—Wholesale and retail meat dealers say a shortage which caught them completely off guard has caused price increases which some spokesmen describe as the highest on record.

A jump of from eight to 11 cents in retail prices over those of week ago was noted and retailers reported wholesale prices had increased from five to eight cents more per pound.

Beef, pork, lamb and veal disappeared from some of the smaller markets, a newspaper check disclosed.

Predictions of the length of the shortage ranged from "a temporary condition" to "until the end of the year."

John C. Duendorfer, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Association of retail meat dealers attributed the cause to exportations to stricken countries, slaughter volumes decreasing over the long Memorial day holiday weekend, floods in the west and midwest reducing shipments. He blamed also the reported reluctance of some smaller wholesalers to go into the market at prevailing price levels in the face of what he said were overwhelming livestock reservoirs piling up in Chicago.

BRITAIN'S FOOD SHORTAGE HAS BROAD EFFECTS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

It isn't easy for a country like ours, which never has been hungry on a national scale, to understand just what is meant by the distinguished British dietitian, Dr. Frank Bicknell, when he states in "The Medical Press" that "England is dying of starvation" and that "as a nation we must literally perish" unless food stocks improve.

And we don't get much help from the British government's estimate of the situation, which is that despite the admittedly short rations, the country's overall health has been better than before the war because of more equitable distributions of foods. What that means, I take it, is that the folk who used to be very hungry are, less hungry now, and those who once were blessed with an abundance have been reduced to the general level. Anyway, the government emphatically denies that England is starving.

Your columnist has been watching this development closely, having seen more than a little of it at first hand, and has no doubt that the food situation in Britain is serious. The problem seems to be qualitative. That is to say, people are getting enough bulk in their tummies without securing the necessary nourishment—fats and so on.

Cumulative Effect
Dr. Bicknell states that the foods available, outside of restaurants, provide a diet of less than 2,100 calories daily. He says the average moderately active man needs 3,000 calories, and the average housewife 2,500 calories, daily to provide the energy necessary for a full day's work.

The bad effect of a diet so short in calories is cumulative. Healthy people can stand it for a time, but when they get it day after day, month after month and year after year, as the Britons have been doing since back in war days, then health suffers. The awful monotony of it is in itself a nerve breaker. Continuation must mean a collapse.

Many Reasons
The shortage of foodstuffs in England is due to several causes. For one thing she imports the bulk of her food and there is such a great world shortage now that many countries are running on dangerously low rations. Then Britain, despite her own needs, is spending something like $300,000,000 this year to help the inhabitants of the British occupied zone of Germany.

But England's shortage is due in no small degree to the new socialist government's austerity program under which it is conserving its credit abroad for the purpose of fostering manufacture and trade so to overcome the country's economic crisis. The people are being asked to tighten their belts in order to save this money.

Such Spartan determination is one of the widely admired characteristics of the British race. However, there's a limit to the endurance of even such hardy folk, and it's small wonder that experts like Dr. Bicknell are warning that the time has come to provide a better diet.

A. When you take off the gear case cover again check to see if the oil return hole to the crankcase is clogged. On your car a special wrench is needed for tightening the cover bolts.

Q. Quite a lot of oil is leaking out around the distributor shaft of my car. I have been told that this may be due to excessive pressure within the crankcase, the oil being forced out. Is this possible?—R. E. B.

A. Yes, the chances are that the screens of the crankcase vents are clogged with dirt. If you will clean these you will find that the oil will stop working up around the distributor.

ENGINEER ON SPEEDING TRAIN DIES OF BURNS

Bryn Mawr, Pa., May 10 (AP)—John C. Clark of Harrisburg, Pa., 50-year-old engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad, died today in Bryn Mawr hospital of third degree burns suffered when he was caught in a searing arc created by crossed cables while a 56-car train sped on at 50 miles an hour.

Two high voltage cables short circuited in the cab of Clark's west-bound freight train last night and enveloped the engineer in flames before the automatic throttle brought the train to a stop at near-by Ardmore, a PRR spokesman said. Clark's clothing was burned from his body.

Two other crewmen, George Saylor, 40, a fireman, and Leo Coltalo, 32, a brakeman, both of Harrisburg, suffered burns of the hands and feet as they tried to extinguish the flames. They were treated at Bryn Mawr hospital.

Train Stops Self
The PRR spokesman said the train was enroute from Philadelphia to Harrisburg over the railroad's main tracks and had just passed the Wynnewood station when there was a blinding flash over Clark's head. Saylor and Coltalo were on the opposite side of the cab when the accident occurred and escaped most of the flames.

As Clark released his grip on the electric engine's throttle the train automatically began to brake itself and came to a stop about a half mile away from the point where the accident occurred.

Traffic on the railroad's four main line rails was delayed for nearly half an hour.

'ATOMIC' SHIPS STILL UNSAFE FROM BLAST

By ROBERT M. FARRINGTON
Washington, May 10 (AP)—Ten months after the Bikini atom bomb tests, the target ships still are "unsafe for permanent occupancy."

The Navy so reported Friday in announcing that most of the big vessels which survived the twin blasts last year will be towed without crews to Hawaii and the west coast this summer for study.

Officials emphasized, however, that the heavy radioactive contamination will not endanger the populations of either Pearl Harbor, San Francisco, or Bremerton, Wash., where the studies will be carried on. They are part of the Navy's intensive research program which already has resulted in drastic changes in ship design theories.

Work On Decontamination
A battleship, a cruiser, two submarines and two transports already have made the long voyage from Kwajalein in the central Pacific, where the target ships have been anchored since last fall.

The announcement said the decontamination study is one of the Navy's most important projects in preparing against atomic warfare.

"Until these radioactive materials are removed by means of decontamination methods, the ships will be unsafe for permanent occupancy," the announcement said, "but personnel can work on board them and stay for a limited period provided

MORE TIRE FOR YOUR MONEY

There's EXTRA VALUE in the Tire that OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES

It's time to measure what you get for what you pay. No matter what you buy, the measure of true worth is in performance . . . how long it will serve you.

In tires there are several yardsticks . . . mileage, protection against bruising and road shocks, resistance to skidding. In all of these, the B.F. Goodrich Silvertown gives you extra value.

Its wider, flatter tread which covers more road area, spreads the wear more evenly. The more tire in contact with the road also means more tread to grip . . . to prevent skidding. Beneath this better tread is a 35% stronger cord body built with sturdier cords and more of them to give better resistance to road shock and bruising.

All this Extra Value adds up to today's big tire buy . . . the postwar B. F. Goodrich Silvertown — the tire that OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES.
